FREE BRANDENBURG AFTER BRIEF DEBATE

Jury Finds That He Did Not Commit Larceny in Selling the Cleveland Article.

DECIDED ON TWO POINTS

Jury Unconvinced That Article Was Bogus or That The Times Bought on the Seller's Representations Alone.

Broughton Brandenburg was acquitted yesterday, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, of the charge of grand larceny in the second degree, arising out of the sale last August to THE NEW YORK TIMES of a political article purporting to be by Grover Cleveland, the genuineness of which was challenged after its publication. The jury made up their minds within a quarter of an hour after leaving the courtroom. They took only two ballots. On the first they stood 10 to 2 against conviction.

The jury took this attitude, it was learned afterward, because those who voted at once for acquittal felt that the People had not proved their case, which depended upon the article's not being authentic. The minority of two were doubtful on this point, but went over at once. They also considered to some extent that part of Justice Fitzgerald's charge which directed the jurors to acquit in case they held that the employees of THE NEW YORK TIMES had relied rather on their own investigations than on the statements of the defendant.

The point raised by the People by their contention that the signature of Mr. Cleveland in evidence was not only forged, as the defense admitted, but was actually forged by Brandenburg, was deprived of much of its weight by the Judge's charge that the alleged crime was grand larceny and not forgery, and that the point only had importance as bearing upon the broad consideration of the authenticity of the whole article.

Oswald N. Jacoby, counsel for Brandenburg, said after the verdict had been announced:

"Ten of the jurors, according to what I am informed, believed at once that no evidence had been adduced sufficient to impeach the genuineness of the article. The other two were doubtful, but were soon won over. My argument in the summing up had a good deal of weight with them. I argued that if a man gave a signed warranty that a horse was sound and kind, and did actually sell a horse which was sound and kind, no crime could be charged even if the warranty were forged. So, while we contended that the signature and article produced were not genuine, we held that Brandenburg had supplied to THE TIMES a genuine article by Mr. Cleveland."

The end of the trial came suddenly. Justice Fitzgerald dismissed the jury at 12:50 o'clock, and soon afterward went out to luncheon. In his absence a rumor spread that an agreement had been reached. Both counsel at once declared that they were convinced that that meant they had been successful. When the Judge returned he assumed that the jury, in asking permission to return, wished only instructions or the reading of evidence, and received it in the courtroom, with only counsel present.

That a result had been reached was not known till the doors were thrown open and the crier announced that the criminal part was adjourned for the term. The jurors came streaming out, and were at once surrounded by those who had been excluded from the court. They were reticent, but informed Mr. Jacoby and his associate, Samuel Bell Thomas, that it was the failure of the prosecution to substantiate the attack on the article which had caused them to decide as they did.

Brandenburg Rearrested.

As Brandenburg came out he was immediately arrested again by Detective Sergeant Fitzsimmons on a St. Louis indictment for kidnapping. He went at once to the detectives' room, near the District Attorney's office, and in a few minutes was taken before Magistrate Cornell, in the Tombs Court. There he was held on a short affidavit, waiting the arrival of formal extradition papers from Albany. He will be brought up next Tuesday morning, and in the meanwhile is in the Tombs, subject to $5,000 bail. He was much elated by his acquittal, and considers that he will be equally successful in St. Louis.

At the opening of the proceedings yesterday morning Mr. Jacoby asked permission to add one point to his summing up. He pointed out that the dates Mrs. Cleveland gave for Mr. Cleveland's last visits to his office were precisely those on which the defendant contended that he saw him there. Then Mr. Nott declared that he would make an almost mathematical demonstration that both the article and the signature were forged and that the paper was written in Miss Bacon's office. He had never, he said, seen a case in which all the witnesses for the People were so respectable.

This brought Mr. Jacoby to his feet with an objection to references to other cases, but he was overruled.

"Why should not these business men, engaged in publishing a great New York newspaper," went on Mr. Nott, "want to make away with a genuine paper and substitute a false one? What motive would they have? It would be against their own interests. Mr. Hastings jumped at a defense he had never thought of before because it lets him out. But the defense knows that THE TIMES did not make any such substitution."

Prosecution's Theory.

Then Mr. Nott unfolded his theory of the case. He argued that as long as Mr. Cleveland was alive Brandenburg tried to sell the substance of his talks with the ex-President as an interview, but no one wanted them. Then after Mr. Cleveland's death he made an arrangement with the Cleveland estate and immediately after he had signed an agreement with Mr. Hastings, hurried to Miss Bacon, to whom he was a complete stranger.

"There was no need for him to forge an article," said Mr. Nott, "till after this interview, but the very next Monday he rushes to a strange typewriter's office and actual witnesses saw him write the article with his own hand. After this, for the first time, a signature appears on it."

Mr. Nott poured scorn on the "bold, burglarious band of Bryanites," who, according to the defense, knew by second sight that the article was in THE TIMES office, and took it away. Declaring that it was natural that a professional writer of fiction should concoct a clever story in his own behalf, he asked the jury which they believed, Brandenburg or Mr. Miller. Counsel ran over the few chance meetings of the defendant with Mr. Cleveland and

RESENTS A JOKE, IS KILLED.

Placard on Atlanta Man's Desk Said He Was in Insane-Asylum-Town.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 29.—In a quarrel following a practical joke upon E. G. Williams of the local office of the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York Williams was shot and killed by Donald M. Bain, a leading insurance man of Atlanta, in an office in the Prudential Building this afternoon. Charles Beardsley was the only other person in the office with the two men. In trying to separate them he was shot in the right arm just below the elbow.

Williams was shot twice. Four shots were fired. One bullet penetrated the right shoulder blade. The one that caused his death pierced his brain. After killing Williams, Bain took a seat and waited for the police.

A placard had been placed on Williams's desk stating that he was out of town—" in Milledgeville." The State lunatic asylum is in Milledgeville.

Williams resented the joke and taxed Bain with being responsible for it. In the quarrel that followed Williams slapped Bain's face.

"I am too old a man for you to treat that way," said Bain.

He drew his pistol and killed Williams.

Bain said afterward:

"That man has worried me for months, and only about three weeks ago he made an attack on me in the office, and to-day he did the same thing. He is a big man, and when he made the attack to-day I shot him."

Bain is about 68 years old. Williams was 40. Bain has been prominent in Atlanta for years. Scores of friends have offered to go on his bond.

Mrs. Bain and her daughter Donna are at present in New York.

Rumored That Harvard Will Give It to Him—Made President Emeritus.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 29.—Former President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University has been elected President emeritus of the institution, it is announced to-night. The honor was bestowed on Dr. Eliot yesterday by the Harvard corporation at its regular meeting. It was stated to-night that the honorary office carries a salary based on a percentage of his salary as President, but the amount was not made public.

Since his retirement as President on May 19 Dr. Eliot has had no official connection with the university. Dr. Eliot is Harvard's first President emeritus.

Although his movements will in no wise be restricted, and he will be called upon for no routine duties, Dr. Eliot, because of his honorary office, will be at the call of President Lowell and the Fellows of the corporation for advice and counsel.

Reports were current throughout the alumni meetings and class reunions today that Dr. Eliot will receive a fund to-morrow, which, it is said, amounts to nearly $500,000. The subscriptions have been secured from graduates and undergraduates. The raising of the fund began a few weeks after Dr. Eliot's resignation was first announced.

MRS. TUCKER GETS DIVORCE.

Daughter of Gen. Logan Freed from Col. Tucker by Chicago Court.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 29.—Mary Elizabeth Logan Tucker, the daughter of Gen. John A. Logan, no longer is the wife of Col. William F. Tucker. A decree of divorce was signed by Judge A. C. Barnes this afternoon, following a brief examination of Mrs. Tucker and her mother, Mrs. John A. Logan. Col. Tucker did not appear. The question of alimony had been settled privately out of court. The divorce was granted on the ground of desertion, the charges in the original bill having been withdrawn.

As soon as the decree had been entered the attorneys for Col. Tucker gave to Mrs. Tucker's lawyers deeds to the real estate which constitutes the alimony. The real estate thus transferred is valued at $5,000.

Col. Tucker's lawyer was asked to give his promise in open court that in case the real estate was found to be incumbered the decree of divorce should be annulled. On the other hand, Mrs. Tucker was obliged to give her promise to Judge Barnes that she would return to Col. Tucker certain small items of personal property, among them two watches.

When she was examined Mrs. Tucker said that she had not seen Col. Tucker since aJnuary, 1906, when he sailed for the Philippines. He had supported her up to April 17, 1907.

Judge Barnes asked whether Chicago was the legal residence of both herself and Col. Tucker. Mrs. Tucker said it was.

"Would you under any circumstances live with Col. Tucker again?" asked Col. Tucker's lawyer.

"I assume I will be divorced, which would preclude any possibility of such a thing," replied Mrs. Tucker.

SHRINE TO POPE PIUS IX.

Archbishop Farley Takes Lead in Preserving His Homestead and Relics.

ROME, June 29.—Archbishop Farley of New York has definitely settled upon the purchase of the homestead of Pope Pius IX. at Sinigaglia. It will be transformed into a shrine, in which relics of that Pontiff will be placed. Archbishop Farley in a recent conversation with the Pope said that a New York priest had contributed $500 to the project, the priest recalling that when he was a child his father had said to him: "Pius IX. is a saint."

The Pope was greatly touched at this incident and asked the Archbishop when he had seen Pope Pius IX., to which the Archbishop replied that he had seen his Holiness when he visited the American College, where Mgr. Farley was a student, during a Vatican council; then shortly before the fall of the temporal power, when Pius IX. suddenly appeared in the Villa Borghese, where the American students were playing baseball, the Pope taking great interest in the game; and, finally, on the eve of his departure for America, after he had been ordained a priest, when he was presented by Bishop Chatard, then rector of the American College, to the Pontiff, who gave him a silver medal, which is still religiously preserved.

The Pope thanked Archbishop Farley warmly for his generous interest and asked him to extend his thanks to those who had contributed to the plan to preserve the homestead.

ALDRICH-TRICK PUTS INCOME TAX ASIDE

Uses Senate Rule to Force a Vote First on the Corporation Tax Plan.

HAS A CLASH WITH BAILEY

Admits He Hopes to Kill Income Assessment by Corporation Scheme and Then Repeal That.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Senator Aldrich's well-known ability to get out of tight legislative places was again revealed to-day, when the question of an income or corporation tax came before the Senate. By his move the insurgent Republicans and the Democrats who had been united on the Bailey-Cummins plan for a direct tax on incomes were completely routed. As one of the insurgents said tonight, they are all "up in the air."

The Republican "regulars" generally understood before the Senate convened today that the Senator from Rhode Island had decided upon some new move to circumvent his opponents. To-day's tariff discussion began with Senator Tillman's amendment to put a tax on tea, and although the South Carolina Senator fought hard for his measure on the ground that it would bring in several millions of dollars revenue to the Government, it was lost by a vote of 55 to 18.

How the Trick Was Played.

It was on the conclusion of the dutiable and free paragraphs shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon that the corporation tax was called up. Then by a clever parliamentary manoeuvre that took the insurgents unawares, the proposed Administration substitute for the income levy was so handled that the income tax was indefinitely sidetracked and the corporation tax was left before the Senate in such a tactical position that under the rules of that body any amendment to it will be out of order.

Senator Bailey of Texas was out of the chamber when this move was executed. He returned shortly afterward and had a little talk with Mr. Aldrich and Mr. Lodge, smiling sheepishly at what had happened. Under the rules of the Senate an amendment in the third degree is out of order. Mr. Aldrich and Mr. Lodge hit upon the expedient of so introducing the corporation tax as to put it in the second degree, and all further amendment would therefore be out of order.

No sooner was Senator Tillman's tea tax voted down than Mr. Lodge offered a long general countervailing clause covering all the schedules as a substitute for the Bailey-Cummins income tax. This countervailing clause provides simply that in the case of imports on which the country of origin has paid a bounty there shall be levied additional duties equal to the bounty. It had nothing whatever to do with the income tax, but served the purpose of constituting an amendment in the first degree.

Even Senator Lodge Winked.

Mr. Aldrich then presented the corporation tax as an amendment to Mr. Lodge's amendment. That made the chain somewhat complete, and no further amendments were in order. Debate then proceeded, while most of the committee members, sure of the situation, left the chamber smiling contentedly. Even Senator Lodge, whose eyes are ordinarily fixed deprecatingly on space, looked up to his friends in the gallery and actually winked.

The result of the Aldrich manoeuvre is practically to foreclose all chances of anything like a direct vote on the income tax. This vote Mr. Bailey had assured his Democratic colleagues he would secure for them on the floor. The first vote will be to include the corporation tax amendment into Mr. Lodge's substitute.

When that motion is carried the next vote will be to accept the substitute as amended—that is, the corporation tax and the countervailing duty provisions together in place of the Cummins-Bailey income tax. Only in the improbable event of the corporation and countervailing provisions being voted down will the income tax be reached at all. Supporters of the Administration say that it is now certain that the corporation tax will pass the Senate amended.

So sure are the organization leaders of the situation that Mr. Aldrich expects to go away to-morrow for a day or two of rest. He laughingly declined this afternoon to divulge his proposed place of retreat, but said he would return soon.

Aldrich Explains His Stand.

The debate on the tax did not get very far to-day, though important explanations were made. In reply to taunts from Senator Clay of Georgia, Mr. Aldrich, stating his position with reference to the corporation tax, said bluntly:

"I shall vote for the corporation tax as a means of defeating the income tax. I shall be perfectly frank in that respect. I shall vote for it for another reason. The income of the Government this year will show a deficit of $60,000,000. Next year this will be a deficit of $45,000,000. I am willing that that deficit shall be taken care of by a corporation tax, but at the end of two years it should either be reduced to a nominal amount or repealed."

Mr. Aldrich said that he did not favor as a permanent form of taxation a "tax which is sure in the end to destroy the protective system."

Thereupon Mr. Bailey entered the debate.

"Under the statement made by the Senator from Rhode Island," said Mr. Bailey, "those who have said they favor an income tax, and now join him in this subterfuge to defeat it may see clearly what they are doing. We now are told that this corporation tax is to be entirely repealed, or at least emasculated within the next two years, and see that, after all, it is simply a contest between an income tax as part of our fiscal system or a corporation tax as a subterfuge to be continued two years."

"My support of the corporation tax," replied Mr. Aldrich promptly, "is not a subterfuge. The corporation tax is a tax clearly within the right of Congress to impose, and those Senators who are honestly in favor of an income tax that is constitutional and that can be operated will support the income tax proposition of the Administration as against the proposition of the Senator from Texas, which is certainly, in the minds of the most thoughtful people, unconstitutional."

Cummins Renews His Attack.

Senator Dixon made a set speech in favor of the inheritance tax as opposed to the President's measure, though he admitted that he intended to vote for the corporation tax in the end. Senator Owen made a short speech along the same line, and Mr. Cummins began his regular attack on the measure.

He charged that the tax as drafted was not a "faithful and complete reproduction" of the President's recommendations. He commented on the unfairness of the tax, which he said will strike as heavily at small stockholders as at the wealthy.

SUFFRAGETTES RIOT; 112 ARE ARRESTED

Thousands of London Policemen Defend Parliament House from Raid to See Asquith.

ONE WOMAN ON HORSEBACK

Two Knock Off Inspector's Cap—Others Try Underground Passage—Many Windows Smashed.

LONDON, June 29.—One hundred and twelve women were arrested to-night after exciting scenes in Parliament Square in connection with the thirteenth vain attempt of the militant suffragettes to obtain access to Premier Asquith by deputation. Among those arrested were Mrs. Pankhurst, Mrs. Solomon, the Hon. Mrs. Haverfield, daughter of Lord Abinger; Miss Margresson, daughter of Lady Margresson, and Miss Maud Joachim, niece of the violinist.

The plan of campaign followed the lines previously employed by the suffragettes. The "woman's parliament" assembled in Caxton Hall at 8 o'clock in the evening and named a deputation, headed by Mrs. Pankhurst, to endeavor to see the Premier, who had previously decided not to receive it.

In Caxton Hall were Viscountess Harberton, Mrs. Israel Zangwill, Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, Miss Elizabeth Robbins, and Miss Beatrice Harraden, besides all the well-known suffragette leaders.

London is becoming accustomed to suffragette raids on Parliament, but the idea that a more determined attempt than ever was to be made to-night to force Premier Asquith's hand attracted an enormous crowd around the Parliament buildings. Probably 50,000 persons gathered there, but the authorities had made ample preparations to deal with the situation.

All avenues of approach were cordoned by police numbering several thousand, and ambulances were provided to deal with cases of accident. Within the cordon were a large number of members of both houses of Parliament watching the scene and scores of women in dinner wraps and men in evening dress. Among these were Lord and Lady Granard, Lord Morley, Lord Wolverhampton, and Lord Althorp.

Just before 8 o'clock the Prime Minister himself drove away from the house unobserved by the crowd.

Great excitement was caused among the crowd by the movements of the equestrian suffragette, Miss Vera Howe, who, in riding habit and bowler hat, rode back and forth carrying messages between different deputations, and who was finally arrested.

The deputation under command of Mrs. Pankhurst was received by the crowd with wild cheers. Escorted by the police, the deputation arrived at the St. Stephen's entrance to Parliament, where it was met by Chief Inspector Scantlebury, who handed Mrs. Pankhurst a letter from the Premier, regretting his inability to receive the deputation. Angrily throwing the letter on the ground Mrs. Pankhurst exclaimed: "I stand on my rights as the King's subject to enter the House of Commons," and she endeavored to force an entrance.

The police tried to induce the women to disperse quietly, and then began to take the members of the deputation by the arms to lead them away. To the surprise of the spectators, who were massed around the entrance, Mrs. Pankhurst slapped Inspector Jarvis in the face, knocking his cap in the mud. There were cries of "Shame!" and several of the spectators told the suffragette leader that she had no provocation for such an act.

A moment later another member of the deputation, Mrs. Saul Solomon, knocked off the Inspector's cap a second time, while others made determined attempts to rush the cordon of police. Eventually the entire deputation was placed under arrest.

By this time a second deputation had left Caxton Hall, accompanied by some hundreds of suffragettes and others, and an attempt was made to reach the House of Commons through the underground passage leading from Westminster Bridge. This, too, was unsuccessful, but for two hours the whole district was in a state of uproar, the police dispersing the crowds and arresting women by the wholesale.

The windows of many of the Government buildings were smashed with stones wrapped in paper during the disturbance.

Throughout the demonstrations the police behaved with the utmost forbearance, but the suffragettes in many cases forced them to some rough handling. There was much screaming, and in some cases fainting, and many women had to be taken to the hospitals in a state of collapse.

The great crowds indulged in considerable horse play, but generally no active sympathy was extended to the suffragettes. One policeman's horse was stabbed by a man in the crowd and a constable was badly injured.

Dr. Clifford, one of the supporters of the Suffragette movement, in an interview afterward, said that he greatly regretted Mrs. Pankhurst's action. Such things, he said, helped to lock the lips of the advocates of women's rights.

"I have supported women's suffrage for many years," he added, "but when I see such scenes as this how can I say anything?"

WON'T TALK SUFFRAGE.

Mrs. Mackay, Home with $15,000 in New Gowns, Gives Husband as Excuse.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay returned yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelm, accompanied by her husband, her secretary, two servants, and $15,000 worth of new gowns from Paris.

Asked if she had imbibed any new ideas on the other side on the subject of woman suffrage, Mrs. Mackay laughed and replied that she was not allowed to talk for publication when she traveled with her husband. To this Mr. Mackay courteously added, when requested to deliver a few words to the reporters, "I never speak when I am with my wife," and there the interview ended.

WRIGHT AEROPLANE FAILS, THEN FLIES

Defect That Prevents Its Leaving the Ground Finally Located in the Motor.

ONLY FLIGHT A SHORT ONE

Orville Wright Makes a 600-Yard Circuit at Fort Myer, Staying Up Less Than a Minute.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—For nearly two hours to-day the Wright brothers struggled with a recalcitrant flying machine before they induced it to leave the ground and soar through the air. Even when the aeroplane did rise after three attempts, it was with the greatest difficulty that Orville Wright piloted it in its sweeping flight of about 600 yards. It was up less than one minute and was brought safely to earth. The brief trip, however, served an important purpose, in that it disclosed to the aviator the trouble that prevented the success of the trials.

The trouble lay with the combustion mechanism of the engine. There was a flareback that prevented the powerful little motor from developing its full driving strength, and in consequence the momentum gained by aid of the starting device was not sufficient to lift the machine into the air and keep it there. When Orville landed after his final effort, which was made after the moon had risen, he stepped smilingly out of the driver's seat when he saw his brother Wilbur approaching.

"I've found it!" he shouted. "It's the engine. We've got to fix the combustion coils, for they keep driving back on me. It isn't the planes but the engine that we will have to put in working order."

Orville said it gleefully, for only a short time before he had engaged in a somewhat warm argument with his brother over the defects that prevented the aeroplane from proceeding once it was shot from the starting track. Orville contended that the fault lay with the engine, which was not developing the power it should, while Wilbur insisted that the forward planes, which lift or deflect the machine while in the air, were too light and should be weighted.

Accordingly, on the third trial the forward planes were weighted by the addition of two pieces of lead attached by iron clamps. The additional weight must have totaled close to twelve pounds. When the machine was shot away it skidded over the ground without rising at all, and while Orville grinned at the vindication of his argument, Wilbur looked puzzled. The weight was lightened, and the machine was again shot off for its one successful flight.

There was nothing like the crowd out to-day to see the flights that was present at Fort Myer yesterday. A large number of diplomats were present, but the members of Congress were conspicuously absent. The heat they experienced yesterday, coupled with their disappointment in not seeing the airship in flight, the close policing of the grounds by the cavalry, and the refusal of the Wright brothers to permit themselves to be put on exhibition for the enjoyment of Senators and Representatives, kept them away. Neither President Taft nor any of his personal or official family was present when the aeroplane was taken out of its shed by Signal Corps men and wheeled across the dusty parade ground to the starting track.

Until late in the afternoon it was believed that no flight could be made because of the direction of the wind. The breeze was gentle, but it blew from a quarter directly behind the machine. The brothers remained in the balloon shed until the anemometer showed that the breeze had died down to a mere zephyr. Then they ordered the aeroplane to be made ready.

There was a great honking of automobile horns and a burst of applause from the 1,500 or 2,000 persons gathered at the north end of the parade ground when the machine appeared. After a long wait, during which Orville tested the engine several times, he climbed into the aviator's seat a minute or two before 6 o'clock, gave the signal, and was off.

It was seen at once that there was not enough power to carry the car up successfully. It skimmed the top of the grass for about 200 feet, turned sharply to the right, and bumped the ground. When the machine struck, Orville endeavored to take advantage of the momentum, which was scarcely lessened, to drive the car into the air again. It rose for a brief second, and then dropped again, striking the ground sharply with the right forward corner of the lower plane.

The aviator then shut off the engine, and an examination showed that the machine had suffered some damage to the planes, a long slit having been torn in the flexible ends. This was quickly repaired, however, and the car was taken back to the starting point for another trial.

The second attempt at a flight was no more successful than the first. The aeroplane started bravely down the long incline, pulled forward by the 1,500 pound weight on the tripod, skimmed out another 200 feet in a different direction, and settled. Orville shut off the engine, and before his brother and the members of the Signal Corps squad could reach him, was engaged in a close examination of the machinery. He was not satisfied with the motor, which was not developing the power it should, but he could not discover just wherein the deficiency lay.

"There's nothing the matter with the engine," insisted Wilbur, impatiently. "The trouble lies in the frontal planes. They're too light. We'll put on some weights, and that will fix things."

In spite of Orville's protests the weights were affixed. The aeroplane was taken back for a third time and launched. It did not rise at all, but skated along the top of the ground on its sledlike runners. Then the weights were reduced, although Wilbur would not hear of its being removed altogether, and for the fourth time preparations for another attempt were made. It was then after 7:30 o'clock and the moon was up, but the Wrights seemed loath to end the day with an acknowledgment of defeat.

When the machine got away on its final effort it was forced to make a hard struggle to get clear of the ground. At no time did it rise more than fifteen feet above the grass of the parade ground, and it was apparent that only by a vigorous use of the forward lifting planes was Orville Wright able to prevent it from plunging to the earth. Finally, after having made almost a complete circuit of the parade grounds the aviator allowed the machine to settle. It came down gently and was immediately seized by Signal Corps men and wheeled to the balloon shed.

"The trouble lies entirely with the engine," said Orville Wright when he stepped from his seat in the machine. "The combustion is faulty and the motor is not developing more than fifteen horse power, whereas it should develop power enough to give us a surplus of that amount. When we get the engine straightened out we will have no trouble."

Work on the engine will be commenced the first thing in the morning, and it is probable that further trials will be undertaken to-morrow afternoon. The inventors have diagnosed the trouble, and the necessary repairs are compartively simple.

Reproduction of Hudson's Vessel Draws Crowds of Sightseers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, June 29.—The Halfmoon, a reproduction of Hendrik Hudson's ship for the celebration in New York next Fall, was tugged to-day from the navy yard through Amsterdam's canals on the way to Rotterdam.

Thousands of sightseers awaited its appearance about midday. The canals were lined and every window was full. The quaint little vessel made a unique show, under reefed sails, seen against a background of old buildings, and manned by sailors in ancient dress.

An army of photographers has been let loose upon it since THE NEW YORK TIMES published its pictures, which broke the resistance to its being photographed.

MR. TAFT PASSES BY.

Took a Ferryboat Around the Harbor Going to Yale Commencement.

President Taft passed through the city last night on his way from Washington to New Haven to attend commencement at Yale. The President left Washington at 5:35 in the private car Olympia, attached to the Federal express of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

This train carries through sleeping cars from Washington to Boston. They are transferred by boat from the Pennsylvania yards at Newark to the New York, New Haven & Hartford tracks at Mott Haven. The Olympic was carried up the East River with the rest of the train, which arrived at Newark at 10:30.

Mr. Taft was accompanied by Capt. Butt, his military aid, and Mr. Mischler, his assistant secretary. They arrived at New Haven at 2:10 A. M. They were to remain in the car until after breakfast and then go to the home of President Hadley, whose guest the President will be during his stay in New Haven. He expects to return to Washington to-morrow night.

HOLYHEAD REGULAR STOP.

Permanent Service Announced by White Star Line Officials.

The White Star Line management in this city announced yesterday that the call of their big liners Cedric, Baltic, Celtic, and Arabic in the Liverpool service, at Holyhead, recently instituted on the eastward voyage, is now a fixture for both outward and homeward passages.

The company has decided upon this innovation on account of the time saved by passengers who are bound for London or the North of England.

Commencing with the Arabic July 10, the four steamships of the line will leave Liverpool on Saturdays at 12:30 P. M., instead of Fridays, as at present, and will call at Holyhead on Saturday afternoon and Queenstown on Sunday morning.

Passengers from London will leave Euston at noon on Saturday for Holyhead, while passengers from the North of England and Scotland will join the ship at Liverpool.

RUSSIAN PRISONERS REVOLT.

Kill Guards in Siberia and Start 2,000-Mile March for the Coast.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 29.—A cable dispatch from Nome, Alaska, describes an outbreak of Russian political prisoners in the Yakutsk District, Siberia, and the flight of the mutineers across the wilderness toward Bering Strait in an effort to reach Alaska.

The dispatch says:

"Advices from Vladimir Station of the Northern Siberia Company, across Bering Strait, are to the effect that a band of prisoners in the Yakutsk District revolted, killed the guards, and started on a retreat of 2,000 miles for East Cape, where they planned to take small boats and make the mainland of Alaska, thirty-six miles away.

"Capt. Kalinnikoff, Acting Governor of the district, ordered Cossacks to take the prisoners. The fugitives, in ambush, killed four Cossacks and wounded twelve others forcing them to retreat."

CABMAN STRANGELY KILLED.

Police of Dobbs Ferry Believe Sellars a Black Hand Victim.

Special to The New York Times.

DOBBS FERRY, June 29.—The police believe that they have a murder mystery in the death of Edward Sellars, who expired at the Dobbs Ferry Hospital last night.

Sellars was a cabman for Best's livery stable in Main Street. At 9 o'clock Sunday night he left the stable for the station to get a passenger. Five minutes later he was found in the road with his skull crushed and a long gash on the side of the head. The horse had wandered to the station, and when Sellars was not seen in his seat a search was made. His body was found in the roadway near the railroad bridge.

He was picked up and taken to the hospital. He never recovered consciousness. The police believe that Sellars was a victim of the Black Hand. They are sure that his death was not accidental, but that he was struck on the head with a club. He was thirty years old and unmarried.

CHINAMEN SAW LING SEND TRUNK AWAY

Four Peered in at Door While Expressmen, Just Found, Started It for Harlem Laundry.

SLAYER HIRED A TAXICAB

Driver Who Took Ling and Trunk to Newark Found and Tells Story—Accomplice Sent Washington Telegram.

The missing links in the grewsome trip of Leon Ling to Newark and back with the trunk holding the body of Elsie Sigel, after killing her in the Chinaman's room at 782 Eighth Avenue on June 9, were gathered up yesterday by the police.

Thomas Cummins, owner of the Constitution Express, at Forty-fifth Street and Eighth Avenue, told the police that one of his drivers carted the trunk to the laundry of Man Lee, at 370 West 126th Street, on the afternoon of the murder.

The man who did the carting, Arthur Logan, later told a reporter of THE TIMES the complete story of the visit to Leon Ling's rooms giving information that four Chinamen were in the room of Chong Sing, next to that of Leon Ling, when the trunk was taken out. These Chinamen watched Logan and his helper as they carried the trunk from Ling's room.

Logan repeated his story later at Police Headquarters. It was the first intimation the police had had that any one outside of Leon Ling had witnessed the removal of the trunk. It indicated, the police said, that Ling had accomplices in the murder.

After these disclosures had been made, word reached the police from the New York Taxicab Company's main office on Fifty-seventh Street, between Eleventh and Twelfth Avenues, that one of their chauffeurs, Martin Luria of 310 East Fourth Street, had hauled Leon Ling and the trunk from the Chinese laundry in Harlem to Li Sing's restaurant at 64 Market Street, Newark. The trip was started in a red taxicab at 11:55 o'clock on the night of the murder, and the trunk reached Li Sing's place, just as the Chinaman had told the police, at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Didn't Send Washington Telegram.

All these developments caused the police to once more change their calculations. It is now certain, the police said last night, that Leon Ling did not go to Washington and send the telegram to Elsie Sigel's father at his home at 209 Wadsworth Avenue saying she would be home on the following Sunday.

Leon Ling was too much occupied to have had any opportunity to get to Washington. He called at Cummins's express stand at about 12:30 o'clock, the noon of June 9. This was only a very short time after Elsie Sigel was murdered. Just before 1 o'clock the driver, Logan, arrived at Ling's room above the chop suey restaurant, and, according to Logan's memory, it was 4 o'clock when the trunk was deposited at Man Lee's laundry.

It would have taken Leon Ling at least twelve hours to have gone to Washington and back, giving himself enough time to send the telegram. As he hired the red taxicab only five minutes before midnight, at 125th Street and Eighth Avenue, not sufficient time elapsed to have allowed him to go to Washington.

This convinces the police, so they said last night, that Leon Ling had an accomplice who made the Washington trip for him. As the telegram blank was filled out in Ling's handwriting, it is now the police theory that Ling, after writing it, hastily dispatched one of his trusted friends to the capital city, and, as rapidly as he could, occupied his own time with the more difficult task of disposing of the body that was then in his way.

From the tales related by the expressman, Logan, and the taxicab driver, Martin Luria, the police formed the impression last night that both Man Lee, the Harlem laundryman, and Li Sing, the Newark chop suey restaurant keeper, did not particularly bother themselves to prevent Leon Ling from getting rid of Elsie Sigel's body. Man Lee, so Logan said, knew that the trunk was coming, for he asked Logan, when the expressman took it into his laundry, if it had been sent from Forty-eighth Street and Eighth Avenue. The chop suey house where Elsie Sigel was slain is three doors below that corner.

Li Sing, according to the chauffeur of the red taxicab, made no objection when the trunk was taken into his place, but the police think that he later must have become afraid, if he knew what was in the trunk, for he refused to allow Leon Ling to keep it there. It was Li Sing's disposition to have the trunk carried somewhere else that induced Leon Ling, that same afternoon, to engage James Halstead, the Newark cabman, to bring it back to this city, once more to the scene of the murder.

Murder Trunk Clung to Slayer.

Leon Ling, the police think, would never have had the trunk hauled back to his room if he had not been afraid he would be detected in taking it anywhere else. It was only as a last resort, they believe, that he told Halstead to drive to the Eighth Avenue chop suey house. His strenuous activities of twenty-four hours, with the trunk almost constantly in his sight, the police think, finally unnerved him.

The police directed a considerable part of their investigation in this city after the disclosures of yesterday in trying to find Man Lee. He sold out his laundry last Saturday to another Chinaman, Yung Wah, and the latter solemnly swore to the detectives that he had no idea where Man could be found. He thought, he said, that Man had gone to Chinatown, but Man had told him he intended opening a restaurant on 145th Street. This restaurant was the same one which Ching Sing Lee, the Mott Street Chinaman, had intended opening, with Leon Ling as the manager.

No trace of Man Lee could the detectives find in Chinatown. He appears to have fled the city.

It was Thomas Cummins who, his attention having been attracted by the newspaper accounts of Leon Ling's flight to Newark with the trunk containing Elsie Sigel's body, gave the police the first clue to the trip made the afternoon of June 9 to the Harlem laundry. Cummins recalled that on Monday night one of his wagons had carried a trunk to a Harlem laundry. He looked over his records of that day and came upon an entry of the trip to Man Lee's place.

Cummins thought for a while, so he said yesterday, that probably he would only annoy the police if he went to them with this clue, for he was not at all certain that the trunk his man took up there was the one with Elsie Sigel's body in it. He decided he would go to bed and wait until morning to decide.

Police Raid Man Lee's Place.

As the night wore on, Cummins became restive, and finally went to the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station and relieved his mind to Capt. Post. It was not long after that when detectives arrived, in breathless haste, at Man Lee's laundry. It was dark and no one answered their knocks. The police broke the door in and scooped up some bundles which, they thought, might contain some of the missing garments of Elsie Sigel. What actually was in the bundles the police yesterday would not say.

After the detectives had finished looking over the Chinese laundry, they put a police padlock on the door and departed. The padlock was there yesterday morning when Yung Wah arrived at the laundry to begin his day's work. Wah also found two detectives waiting for him. When he had answered their questions and had given no information that helped any, the detectives took off the padlock and allowed Yung Wah to go in.

At Police Headquarters the police maintained the utmost secrecy as to what Cummins had told them. All Inspector McCafferty would say was that some expressman—he would not even tell Cummins's name—had given "some information of importance." It would all come out in time, but this was not the time, said the Inspector.

A TIMES reporter who called at the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station met with the same sphinxlike silence. No one would say a word about the expressman. It was all a great mystery. A reporter for THE TIMES, after a hunt in the neighborhood of Leon Ling's place, found Expressman Arthur Logan, who readily admitted that he had taken a trunk from Leon Ling's place. This is his story:

"I was sitting under the awning of my boss's stand, down at Forty-fifth Street and Eighth Avenue, about 12:30 o'clock the noon of June 9 when a Chinaman, dressed up in American clothes and looking like a sport, came along and asked the boss if he could get a trunk taken to a laundry in Harlem. The boss said he was in the business of carting trunks.

"The Chinaman gave his address at the chop suey house in Eighth Avenue, and said: 'I want the trunk taken up there as soon as you can do it. I'm in a hurry.' The boss told him he would send right around for it. The Chinaman gave him the address of the laundry at 370 West 126th Street as the destination of the trunk. He said there would be some one there to take it, and that the Chinaman at the other end would pay for it. The boss told him it would be 50 cents. The name the Chinaman gave was something like Yang Lee.

"After the Chinaman had gone the boss told me to take my wagon and cart the trunk up. I went around with a helper. We didn't start right away. I think it was just about 1 o'clock when we hauled up at the chop suey house. My helper and I went up the four flights of stairs, and at the top landing was the Chinamen who had come to the express office. I know the man was Leon Ling, because I afterward recognized his pictures printed in the newspapers. He was thin-faced and of light skin, just like the descriptions I have read. He talked very good English.

Four Chinamen in Chong Sing's Room.

"When we got to the top of the stairs I noticed that the door leading to a room at the rear was wide open. Inside the room I saw four Chinamen, in blue blouses and all wearing queues."

The room referred to by Logan was that of Chong Sing, which has a door opening to the hall and one leading to the room of Leon Ling.

"The four Chinamen looked out as my helper and I got up to the landing. They had been all jabbering like a lot of monkeys, as we went up stairs, but when they saw us they stopped their noise. They seemed to be wiggling their feet, like they were nervous.

"The Chinaman at the top of the stairs told me the trunk was in the little room off the one that the Chinamen were sitting in. He pointed at it. The room was as dark as midnight. The blinds had been pulled down and I couldn't see a thing. I felt my way in, and stumbled against something. 'Look out,' said the Chinaman. 'That's the trunk. Don't knock it over.' I noticed that the door between that room and the one in the rear was open just a little bit, and I could see the four Chinamen trying to look through it. They were sitting down, in the same place that I saw them when I got to the landing, but they were leaning forward in their chairs.

"Just a little light came through the door from the back room, but it didn't help me see the trunk. I told my assistant to get hold of one end of it and I grabbed the other. The weight was all toward one end. I told the Chinaman the trunk was heavy, but he didn't say anything. He told me to hurry up with the trunk, as it must get up to Harlem as soon as possible.

"When we got the trunk downstairs I noticed that it was tied up with rope. I told my assistant it probably had Chinese money in it, and we laughed. It took me about three hours to get to the Chinese laundry. When I stopped at the door a Chinaman stopped ironing shirts and came out.

The Trunk Was Expected.

"'Got tlunk?' he asked me. 'Sure,' I said. 'Can't you see it?' 'Flom Floity-eight Stleet and Eight Avenue?' he asked. 'That's right,' I said. 'Bling it in,' the Chinaman told me, and we lugged it inside. He pointed to a place back of his shop, and told us to put it there. It looked like a kitchen, but it was a mighty small place, and the trunk half filled it. The Chinaman asked me how much, and I told him 50 cents, which he gave me. I thought I saw him grin when we left the place, and jumped on the wagon."

"Did you tell the police about this?" asked the reporter.

Too Busy to Tell the Police.

"Me tell the police?" replied the expressman. "No; I was too busy hauling trunks after I heard of the murder of the girl. I thought if the police wanted to ask me about it they would come around. I haven't seen any of them yet."

It was not long after this that Logan was sought out by a Headquarters detective and taken to Inspector McCafferty's office. In the meantime the expressman's boss had told all he knew of the trunk trip and had suggested that Logan could give more details. When the Inspector heard Logan's story he gave a low whistle and then demanded:

"Why the deuce didn't you tell us before?"

"Why didn't some of you fellows come and ask me to tell it?" returned Logan.

It was late in the day when the police had finished hearing Logan's tale, and he was told to return to Police Headquarters to-day, when he will be taken to the House of Detention to see if he can identify Chong Sing as one of the men he saw in the room as the trunk was being taken out.

The clue to the red taxicab reached the police while they were working on the information imparted by Cummins. The chauffeur, Martin Luria, casually remarked to the manager of the taxicab company as he appeared for work at noon yesterday that he believed he was the one who had taken Leon Ling's trunk to Newark. He had read what a Newark policeman had said of a red taxicab going toward the restaurant of Li Sing on Market Street at 2 o'clock in the morning of June 10.

Charles H. Bernard, the manager of the taxicab company, telephoned to Police Headquarters after hearing what Luria had to say, and Detective Miller soon appeared and took Luria out to Newark to identify the restaurant and to confront Li Sing.

Ling Prepares for the Night Ride.

The records of the taxicab company show that it was exactly 11:55 o'clock the night of June 9 when Leon Ling appeared at the corner of Eighth Avenue and 125th Street, one of the most frequented spots in Harlem, to engage the taxicab for the trip to Newark. The police know it was Leon Ling from the description given by Luria, and, besides this, Li Sing has positively stated that Leon Ling arrived at his restaurant with the trunk at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Ling walked up to the taxi in which Luria was sitting and asked him how much he would charge to take him to Newark.

"Twelve dollars," replied the chauffeur.

"Well, I must get there in a hurry," said Ling. He told the chauffeur to drive to 370 West 126th Street, where there would be "some one to pick up." The chauffeur reported to the night starter, George Schmittberger, son of Police Inspector Max Schmittberger, telling him that a Japanese wanted to be taken to Newark. Schmittberger stepped to the curb on the 125th Street side of the Colonial Hotel, and, after looking at the prospective passenger, remarked:

"That's not a Jap; it's a Chinaman."

Ling stepped into the taxicab, and Luria in a jiffy had the machine in front of the laundry of Man Lee. A light was burning dimly in the rear of the place. Ling asked Luria to go inside and bring out a trunk. The chauffeur went it, but when he tried to lift the trunk he remarked that it was too heavy to lift alone. The Chinaman who seemed to be in charge of the laundry helped Luria, and the trunk was placed on the driver's seat of the taxicab.

Leon Ling looked at it, and suggested that it ought to be tied to the seat to keep it from falling off. The Chinese laundryman disappeared in his shop, and in a few moments emerged with a long rope. This Leon Ling, with the aid of the chauffeur, tied to the rope already binding the trunk, and then made it fast to the iron handles at the side of the seat.

Murderer Hid Himself in Cab.

This done Ling told the chauffeur that he was ready, and hopped inside the taxicab. The chauffeur leaped to his seat, and as he started the machine noticed that Ling had pulled down all the shades. Luria whirled along toward the Twenty-third Street Ferry, but just missed a boat, so he turned the machine further downtown, and went to the Desbrosses Street Ferry. When the ferry was reached Leon Ling opened a door of the taxicab and held out the ferriage toll. Then he slammed the door again, and kept it closed until the taxicab reached Newark.

Ling had given the driver the address of Li Sing, and Luria says he reached the place just as a church clock struck the hour of 2. When the machine halted, Ling jumped out, and, telling the driver to wait, went upstairs. He was gone less than five minutes, and came down with a Chinaman, who helped Luria carry the trunk up. It seemed to be none of Ling's part to help lift the trunk at any stage of his journey with it.

Inside the chop suey restaurant, Luria said, was another Chinaman, who nodded most agreeably as the trunk was brought in. He pointed to the kitchen back of the restaurant, and the trunk was left there. Ling dug down into his pockets and paid Luria the $12.

"I won't go back," said Ling.

In the record of the Colonial Hotel branch of the taxicab company, the number of the chauffeur appears as 198, and after it are the words, "Newark, sidewalk," meaning that the passenger negotiated for the use of the taxicab on the street. The chauffeurs are always known by numbers instead of by their names. The police had searched the records of the taxicab company's main office, which has a duplicate of the reports from its branches, without the idea sinking into their minds that the reference to the Newark call might have had anything to do with Leon Ling's trip with the trunk. They did not wake up to it until Mr. Bernard telephoned them.

Luria had not returned from Newark with Detective Miller at midnight.

Wrong Leon Lings Arrested.

Inspector McCafferty received various telegrams yesterday of supposed captures of Leon Ling in different parts of the country, but investigation proved that the police had, in every instance, caught the wrong man. A Chinaman who talked of the Sigel murder while riding in a trolley car in Boston was arrested, but he was decided to be demented and was held for examination.

A report that a Chinaman thought to be Leon Ling had been arrested in Juarez, Mex., and another was gathered in at El Cajon, Cal.

BLACKBURN PLEADS GUILTY.

Negro Pugilist Gets 15-Year Sentence for Second Degree Murder.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—John Blackburn, the negro prizefighter, was sentenced to-day to fifteen years' imprisonment by Judge Carr in the Court of Oyer and Terminer for the murder of Alonzo Polk in South Jessup Street on the morning of Jan. 14. The sentence brought the trial to an unexpected close immediately after the reconvening of court for a night session.

Blackburn's attorney, Samuel W. Salus, announced that the prisoner wished to change his plea from not guilty of murder to guilty of murder in the second degree. Assistant District Attorney Taulane declined to accept the change, leaving the matter to the court. Judge Carr said the court would accept the change, and then pronounced sentence.

Blackburn's defense was that he forestalled Polk, who was about to open fire upon him.

VALUABLE JEWELS LOST.

Diamond Tiara, Bowknot, and Large Emerald Vanished on Ferryboat.

A reward of $1,000 is offered by Dreicer & Co., the jewelers of 560 Fifth Avenue, in THE TIMES's Lost column this morning for the return of a package containing valuable jewelry, believed to have been lost or stolen on the Erie ferryboat Passaic yesterday morning. On return of the package the reward will be paid and no questions will be asked.

The package contained a large diamond bowknot, a diamond tiara, a "diamond-paved" watch, and a large emerald. It was lost on the ferryboat on the trip from Jersey City about 10:40 o'clock yesterday morning, and the fact was reported to the railroad company later in the afternoon. A search of the boat failed to reveal the missing package.

Every member of the jewelry firm was out of town last night, and how the package came to be lost or for whom the jewelry it contained was destined could not be learned. At the Detective Bureau at Police Headquarters it was said that no report of the loss had been made there.

Two Bathers Drown in the Surf.

Two drivers for the International Storage Warehouse Company of 308 East Fifty-second Stret were drowned off Belle Harbor, Rockaway Park, Queens, yesterday afternoon. They were William Brohn of 205 East Sixty-first Street and James McCafferty of 253 West 101st Street. They had driven to Belle Harbor with a load of furniture for a cottage. After it was delivered they went to the beach, a few rods off, and went in bathing. No one else was near. Some time later Thomas McKeon of Rockaway Beach saw Brohn's body rolling in the surf. The other body was not found.

ALPINE CHAIN SAVES FOUR FROM A SEWER

Fire Captain and Five of His Men, Tied to a Rope, Rescue Flood-Trapped Workmen.

A FIGHT FOR THEIR LIVES

Rescuers Wade Neck-Deep Through the Rushing Water and Reach Them Just in Time.

Fourteen men were at work in the new sewer which is being built seventy-five feet under Claremont Park, in the Bronx, and is destined to run to Highbridge, three miles away. Over their heads they could hear the roar of water in the already completed sewer which runs over the new one at the intersection of Webster and Wendover Avenues.

Into the old sewer empties an underground creek, swelled to large proportions by the recent rains, and as the steady sound of racing water reached their ears many of the men glanced apprehensively at the light retaining wall which separates the old sewer from the new.

All day the men worked with the danger above their heads, and when knocking-off time came they had become so used to the noise and the risk they ran that four of them lingered before walking to the foot of the shaft and mounting into the park. Their daring nearly cost them their lives, for scarcely had the last of the first ten mounted the ladder leading out of the sewer when there was a terrific noise and a rush of water.

"The wall's gone!" was the cry which arose from the top of the shaft, and the more venturesome who descended partly down the long ladder leading into the shaft hurried upward again with white faces to subsantiate the report.

"The water is whirling through the sewer like a mill race," they said. Then there was a panic among the men gathered at the shaft's top. Beneath them were four comrades, and as the sound of the ever-increasing volume of water in the sewer grew louder the realization that they must be drowned was forced upon their companions on the surface. Some one thought to send for Fire Truck 27, however, and presently the big machine rattled up through the park with Capt. P. C. Curran and a dozen of his men.

The firemen heard what had happened, and then their Captain descended the shaft. He returned in a moment or two to report that the water was fairl yboiling through the sewer.

"There's one chance, though," he said. "Get the life lines."

Two life lines, each 150 feet long, were pulled from the truck and made fast to each other. One end Capt. Curran made fast to some lumber at the top of the shaft. The other he attached to his shoulders. Then Jacob Trede, Joseph McGarrity, Phillip Hublitz, Daniel McBride, and Michael Callahan, members of the truck's crew, fastened themselves along the rope at intervals of ten feet.

When he had assured himself that all were tightly fastened, Capt. Curran led the way down the shaft. He dropped off the end of the ladder into the racing stream of water and found that it was nearly up to his shoulders. Shouting a caution to the men behind him he started toward the far end of the sewer, plunging and slipping as he fought a way through the swiftly moving stream that now filled the sewer. Behind him came his men, and at intervals they raised a shout in the hope that the laborers, if they were still alive, might hear them.

They got no answering shout, but at last, far ahead, Capt. Curran saw a light. He made for it, and soon he and his men came upon an improvised raft of a dozen timbers on which lay the four men almost exhausted. One of them, on hearing the shouts, had managed to light a torch.

With the rescued men the firemen started to fight their way back to the foot of the shaft. If the passage down had been difficult, however, the trip back was doubly so. They were fighting against the current now, and timbers and débris were whirled along, knocking against their legs and bodies and threatening to upset them. The water was rising also, but at last the leader reached the foot of the shaft. The water then was boiling around his neck, and before the last men got foot on the ladder he had to haul himself partly upward to keep his head above water. At last, however, rescuers and rescued reached the surface.

A cheer went up from the men and women, too, who had assembled at the top of the shaft as the men appeared, and firemen and laborers were hurried to near-by houses to have their clothing dried. The rescued men—William Gould, Charles Friend, Harry Work, and Toney Lugeria—went home; the firemen returned to their quarters.

The flooding of the sewer occurred on Monday afternoon. Yesterday, Battalion Chief John F. King started an investigation to substantiate Capt. Curran's recommendation that his men should receive medals for their work.

Aged School Teacher Wins Her Suit.

Supreme Court Justice Dowling, from the bench, decided yesterday in favor of Miss Mary V. McCusker, who lives at the Martha Washington Hotel, in her suit against Mrs. Margaret I. V. Ryan, a second cousin, of 235 East 235th Street, to recover $13,837, the amount of a deposit certificate which Mrs. Ryan claimed Miss McCusker handed her as a gift. Mrs. Ryan is also directed to render an accounting of all moneys received and paid out by her on behalf of Miss McCusker. The court held that the plaintiff had clearly proved her right to the money.

CLOGGING the VITAL CENTERS

One of the most important of the new principles of modern business is that when a clerk does a thing in a roundabout way, or twice over, the waste of that clerk's time is by no means the serious loss—but that each delay or complication is carried along to weaken the vital centers of the business, to hamper the action of the constructive men in the business at those critical moments when speed and impetus are vital.

It may readily be seen what a startling, new importance this idea gives to reducing the routine of a business house to its simplest and most direct terms.

NEW AIRSHIP EXHIBITED.

Inventor an Engineer and He Predicts Great Things for the Machine.

A model of a new airship which contains novel features was exhibited yesterday at the office of the Autolyte Manufacturing Company, 26 Warren Street. The machine is the invention of Bruno von Buizingslowen, a civil engineer, who has been in America several years and devoted considerable attention to the problem of aerial flight.

He calls his machine an aeromobile, owing to its ability to travel on land as well as in the air. Of course, its greatest success, according to the inventor, is to be in the air, and when the complete machine is built he feels certain that it will accomplish everything he is able to demonstrate from the construction of the model.

The model is built at one-sixth of the actual size. The engine and operator's seat form a part of the chassis, resting on a frame supported by four small automobile wheels. On either side of the machine are two revolving helicoptres, and the machine is surmounted by two horizontal planes. There are two propellers, one on each side, and a rudder in the centre projecting from the rear. The complete machine will be 12 feet 8 inches long, 15 feet wide, and 12 feet 2 inches high. The biplanes will contain 520 square feet of supporting surface, and the total weight, with a 30 to 40 horse power motor, will be about 750 pounds.

The peculiar advantages possessed by the machine, according to the inventor, are its ability to ascend under its own power from any spot and in any weather, to fly at any height, and its inability to be upset by the wind.

TO FLY ACROSS THE CHANNEL.

Three Aviators Await Favorable Weather to Make the Attempt.

CALAIS, June 29.—Herbert Latham, Count de Lambert, and Henry Farman are on the coast near here awaiting favorable weather conditions to attempt an aeroplane flight across the English Channel for a prize of $5,000 offered by a London paper. French torpedo boats are being held in readiness to guide the aviators in their flight and to rescue them in case of need.

Count de Lambert will make use of a Wright aeroplane, and has erected a shed for the housing of the machine on rented ground.

Farman will use a new machine like the one with which he made his celebrated flight from Chalons to Rheims, except that he has introduced an arrangement by which the alighting wheels give way and allow skids to bear the shock of the impact. He has introduced also lateral fins similar to those used by Latham on his monoplane. These insure greater stability.

Latham will use his monoplane, with which he has recently made a number of successful flights. He purposes starting from the top of a cliff near Calais and heading straight for the Admiralty pier at Dover.

The distance as the crow flies is 21.73 miles. There is much rivalry between the three aviators as to who will start first.

CURTISS TO FLY FOR PRIZE.

Aviator Will Try to Win Bishop Award for Kilometer Flight.

Glenn H. Curtiss feels that he has been so successful with his new aeroplane, which was recently purchased by the Aeronautic Society, that he purposes within the next few days trying for one of the two-hundred-and-fifty-dollar prizes offered by President Cortlandt Field Bishop of the Aero Club of America for a kilometer flight by a heavier-than-air machine which has not hitherto won any prizes for aerial tests.

Mr. Curtiss sent word to the Aero Club of America yesterday from Hammondsport that he expected to return to this city to-morrow, and if possible he will try for the prize on Friday or Saturday at the Morris Park track. His machine is now at Morris Park, and before Mr. Curtiss leaves the city again he will train one of the society members, so that flights may be made without his presence.

ZEPPELIN I. BREAKS DOWN.

Trip from Friedrichshafen to Metz Interrupted by Overheating of Parts.

BIBERACH, Germany, June 29.—The airship Zeppelin I., traveling from Friedrichshafen to Metz, landed here this morning on account of the overheating of its machinery, which caused a fusing of certain metal parts. The landing was effected during a rainstorm without difficulty.

The crew of four officers and four men held the craft down until a detachment of soldiers arrived and gave their aid. Major Sperling, in command of the vessel, has sent for duplicate parts of the damaged machinery.

The distance traversed by the balloon is about thirty-seven miles.

PRINT PAPER IN BALLOON

And Drop Copies of It Over a Section of Ohio.

HAMILTON, Ohio, June 29.—What was said to be the first newspaper ever printed in a balloon was received in Butler County this afternoon, when a balloon from Dayton passed over the western part of this county. The bag was equipped with printers and a printing press by a Dayton newspaper, and as it soared over the towns miniature copies of the paper, printed in the balloon basket, were thrown to the ground.

When the balloon reached Wood's Station, eight miles east of Hamilton, copies were sent down telling of an exciting experience at Darrtown, four miles from Woods, where farmers fired at the balloon with rifles.

Miss Peck to Make Balloon Fight.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., June 29.—Miss Annie S. Peck, the mountain climber, will soon make a balloon flight from this city. She will come to Pittsfield to await a southerly wind. William Van Sleet, who will act as pilot, will use the balloon Massachusetts in the flight.

RESCUES A DROWNING BOY.

Bernard Bridges Swims to His Aid When He Sees His Sailboat Capsize.

Quick work on the part of Bernard Bridges, a brother of the late Alderman John Bridges of Brooklyn, saved 18-year-old Augustus Ireland of 358 East 152d Street from drowning in the East River off Classon Point yesterday afternoon when a small sailboat capsized.

Young Ireland is a nephew of Borough President Haffen of the Bronx. He was in the boat with Joseph Gonzales, who lives at St. Ann's Avenue and 134th Street.

Ireland and Gonzales started from Classon Point for a sail and had got about a quarter of a mile off shore when the boat went over. Gonzales caught hold of the overturned boat, but Ireland was swept along on a strong tide.

Bridges was one of a score of men and women who witnessed the accident from the pier at Classon Point. Bridges, who is a strong swimmer, threw off his coat and shoes and went over. He soon caught up with Ireland, who was almost exhausted. Bridges supported him for ten minutes until Cornelius Quinn, a life saver at Classon Point, reached them with a boat. Gonzales was taken off in the same boat. Ireland was treated by a doctor in the neighborhood and was then able to go home.

Fire Mascot in the Lost Column.

Members of the crew of the Fireboat Lawrence, stationed at 132d Street and the Harlem River, chipped in yesterday to advertise in THE TIMES lost column for their mascot, "Punch." He is a bull terrier, white, with brindle markings, and has been missing since Saturday, when one of the men took him on a visit to his home at Clason's Point, the Bronx. The firemen don't believe that any one will really try to steal an engine house mascot.

SUGAR PROSECUTION WON'T BE ABANDONED

Temporary Delay Due to Legal Technicalities Raised by Sugar Trust Counsel.

INDICTMENTS NEAR AT HAND

Immunity and the Statute of Limitations Pleaded as a Reason for Ending Inquiry.

There were developments yesterday in the Federal investigation of the Sugar Trust's $1,250,000 loan to Adolph Segal, which became the basis of the plan to put the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company out of business as a competitor, disclosing the reason why the indictments that have been due for some days were not reported on Monday by the Federal Grand Jury.

It appears that the counsel for the trust and for John E. Parsons and Gustav Kissel, two individuals who were concerned in the loan, raised points of law in their talk with United States Attorney Wise on Monday that were submitted to Attorney General Wickersham for his decision before the indictments which are expected in a short time should be reported.

Accordingly Deputy Attorney General Oliver Pagan has gone to Washington to take the matter up with the department. Mr. Wise, whose work in connection with the sugar case is practically over, sailed for Europe yesterday to take testimony in Paris in the libel action against The New York World on account of the Panama Canal story. There remain few witnesses to be examined before the Grand Jury here, and this work will be continued in Mr. Wise's absence by Assistant District Attorney Crim. It was stated in the Federal Building yesterday and confirmed by dispatches from Washington that the Government has not abandoned its pursuit of the Sugar Trust and the individuals responsible for the Segal loan, and that the delay is only a temporary one.

The legal fight which was started on Monday by John G. Milburn, as counsel for the Sugar Trust; John M. Bowers, as counsel for John E. Parsons, and William D. Guthrie, as counsel for Kissel, amounted in substance to the raising of legal points before Mr. Wise in advance of indictment which would ordinarily be raised on the indictments themselves. The three attorneys filed an extended brief, which, however, did not run to a denial of the charges of conspiracy to put the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company out of business, but to the question of the Statute of Limitations, the question of immunity of their clients on account of having furnished in previous litigation records on which the Government is relying in this action, and the contention that the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Knight case showed that the state of facts admitted in this instance did not constitute a crime under the Sherman Anti-Trust act.

It is understood that the bearing of the Knight case and that of the Statute of Limitations was carefully considered and dismissed by the Department of Justice before the Segal loan was laid before the Grand Jury. The Knight case was one in which the Sugar Trust years ago was prosecuted for having bought up four independent refineries, which were at the time substantially its only competitors in this country. The Supreme Court held that such a purchase did not constitute restraint of trade under the Sherman act.

It is understood there are six weeks yet before the Statute of Limitations runs.

American Sugar Refining Company stock rose 3½ points yesterday on the publication of a story to the effect that the Government had abandoned its case.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The Government has not abandoned the prosecution of the American Sugar Refining Company on account of any legal question raised by counsel for the company, or for any other reason. This statement is not officially authorized, but it is known to represent the views of the Government.

The plea advanced by counsel for the company that the Statute of Limitations operates to bar prosecution contemplated by the Government, it is said, has delayed action for a few days, but no longer. It is understood that the Department of Justice officials are fully determined to push these prosecutions to an early determination, and that they are sanguine of success.

ARREST ON LARCENY CHARGE.

Heickheimer Charged with Swindling Texans with Bogus Diamonds.

Acting on a telegram received by the local detectives bureau from Sheriff B. C. Burkes of Belton, Bell County, Texas, Detectives Hagerty and Barber of the Central Office last night arrested Henry Heickheimer at the Hotel Cadillac. They say he is wanted on five indictments for grand larceny at Belton in connection with alleged swindling with imitation diamonds.

Heickheimer was taken to Police Headquarters as a fugitive from justice. But he did not stay there long. It seemed that during his stay at the Hotel Cadillac he had associated wth many well-known men; for when the detectives took their prisoner to Mulberry Street, they were followed by Felix Isman of the Hotel Knickerbocker, Supreme Court Justice Erlanger, and Solomon Bloom of 65 Central Park West. Justice Erlanger fixed Heickheimer's bail at $2,500; Mr. Bloom furnished it, and Heickheimer went home.

CLEANED OUT IN AN HOUR.

Dentist's Office Stripped by "Afternoon Burglars"—Bronx Sleuths Puzzled.

A burglary, said to be one of several carried out by a gang of "afternoon burglars"—so named for the hours in which they operate—is perplexing the Bronx detectives. Incidentally Dr. Julian Harris, a dentist, who has been living at 1,309 Clinton Avenue, the Bronx, is looking for $1,000 worth of jewelry, surgical instruments, and personal effects, and for the smooth thief who made away with them.

Dr. Harris sent his wife and family out of town for the Summer two weeks, ago, and made his office on the second floor of the Clinton Avenue address. Thursday he left his room for an hour at noon. When he returned he found his door "jimmied," yet closed against him from within by a chair wedged under the knob. Forcing the door, he found every drawer and closet rifled of its contents.

Taking an inventory, he found that the burglars had left only the room. How they had managed to do that still puzzles the Bronx sleuths, for there is no fire escape from the windows, and the main and rear entrances of the building are known to have been under close observation while Dr. Harris was out. Moreover, the doors were closed from the inside.

Dr. Harris has offered a liberal reward and immunity to whomsover will return his goods or the pawn tickets therefor.

WOULD BAR "FAKE" AUCTIONS.

Fifth Avenue Association Also Wants Omnibus Rule Modified.

A campaign against the holding of "fake" auctions on Fifth Avenue was decided on yesterday at a meeting of the Fifth Avenue Association, an organization interested in the welfare of that thoroughfare, held at the Hotel Lorraine, Forty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue.

The matter came up when Robert Grier Cooke, the President of the association, was requested by members to take vigorous action to prevent "fake" auctions from invading the avenue, and also, if possible, to prevent the issue of auctioneers' licenses for business there, except for such places as are conducted as regular and legitimate business firms.

Other matters considered included the recent decision of the courts prohibiting the omnibuses from going along upper Fifth Avenue and Riverside Drive. It was felt that this would cause loss to the merchants in the avenue through the dropping off of trade, and it was decided to see the Park Department in an effort to arrive at some compromise.

A letter from Chief Engineer C. F. Lacombe of the Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity informed the association that arrangements had been completed for the better lighting of the avenue.

A permanent office of the association is to be opened at 542 Fifth Avenue.

TYPEWRITER SHOP TO CLOSE.

Labor Dispute Leads the Remington Concern to Take This Action.

UTICA, N. Y., June 29.—Notice was posted in the Remington Typewriter Works at Ilion to-day that beginning with July 1 the establishment would be closed until further notice. The typewriter works employ 2,100 people, mostly men, and the weekly pay roll is about $30,000.

Some time ago the company attempted to introduce a machine for accomplishing a part of the work of aligning the letters on the type bars of typewriters. The men engaged in aligning objected to this and struck, and shortly thereafter the assemblers quit work.

Conferences have been held between the company and the striking workmen, but they have not resulted in healing the differences, andthe shut-down is the result.

It is not believed that the company will again open the factory until it can do so under its own plan.

KILLS BOTH PARENTS-IN-LAW.

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 29.—Calvin Littlepage, a farmer living near Valley Junction, a suburb of Des Moines, shot and killed to-night Elmer Jamieson and Mrs. Jamieson, the parents of his divorced wife, and then forced her and her infant child to enter a carriage and go with him.

Littlepage drove toward Adel in a rain and hail storm. A posse was soon organized in Des Moines and started in pursuit. Farmers with shotguns joined in the chase, having been attracted by the screams of the woman. Automobiles were used by the posse, but, owing to the bad condition of the roads after to-night's storm, they made small progress.

Littlepage's act was the result of the refusal of Mrs. Littlepage to live with him. She got a divorce last May. Littlepage often threatened murder after the divorce, his wife has said. A lynching is feared if Littlepage is captured.

SUES TO HOLD UP $20,000,000.

Argument was begun before Vice Chancellor Howell in Newark yesterday on an application for an order restraining the proposed distribution of $20,000,000 in gratuities among industrial policy holders of the Prudential Insurance Company. Included in the application was a request for an ad interim stay enjoining the carrying out of the company's recent announcement relative to the apportionment of the $20,000,000. The applications were made in behalf of Leon F. Blanchard, a stockholder in the company.

The argument in behalf of the injunction concerned itself chiefly with the contention that the constitution of the insurance concern called for the distribution of all profits when obligations had been satisfied among the stockholders of the company. Counsel for the company held that such distribution had been accomplished eight times before by the company without protest, and that it was in no sense depriving the stockholders of what was their due.

asked whether it was likely that a man of the latter's age, experience, and conservatism would trust him with a typewritten document in which substitution would be easy.

According to the defendant's testimony Mr. Cleveland wrote about fifty pages of notes between March 4 and 5.

"Do you think that a man of Mr. Cleveland's years," asked Mr. Nott, "could have been so rapid a writer? It was that very night on which Mrs. Cleveland testified she accompanied her husband to New York. Do you not believe that she would have given Brandenburg the benefit of her testimony if she had known Mr. Cleveland had been writing these notes?"

Interview Made an Article.

Mr. Nott contrasted Brandenburg's testimony that Mr. Cleveland signed a carbon copy with the testimony of Mr. Lewis of The Herald and Mr. Reick and Mr. Lincoln of THE TIMES, that it was a ribbon copy that THE TIMES received. He pointed out that as long as Mr. Cleveland was ill none of Brandenburg's friends or business acquaintances saw anything but notes of conversations with him. Not till Brandenburg approached Mr. Lewis was there a complete article, and Mr. Nott contended that the date on which the defendant went to Mr. Lewis was after he had had the first complete article made by Miss Bacon.

"Brandenburg," he went on, "swears he gave THE TIMES a copy as well as the original. Why, then, did he not give a copy to The Herald as well?"

In the same way Mr. Nott scoffed at the idea of any substitution of another copy of the article while it was in the possession of THE TIMES. He bade the jury hold the signature and the article up to the light to see how well the watermark on the two pieces of paper corresponded. Taking up the negotiations with Mr. Hastings, Mr. Nott said:

"I blame Hastings very much, and I think all you gentlemen will, for his letter of Aug. 21, in which he tries to evade responsibility. But he does not say even there that the article is genuine. THE TIMES could not rely on that letter."

Discrepancies in Defense.

Another point in the defense which called for the ridicule of the prosecutor was Brandenburg's statement that he had not looked at the article when it was handed back to him. He quoted Miss Blascoer's evidence to show how valuable he thought the document, and asked why he should have asked her to copy the article if he had all the copies of the article he pretended to have.

Mr. Nott reviewed the story of Brandenburg's forfeiture of his bail for the sake of so inconclusive a witness as Miss Hudson and a man whose name and address he did not know, and asked if the jury would take the word of the man who had had the St. Louis adventure against the witnesses produced by the People. He asked also if Mr. Cleveland was likely to trust a man like Brandenburg with statements about the Hughes anti-gambling bills, which had not yet been passed.

"If you believe Mr. Cleveland trusted this man with prophecies, which, if they did not come true, would have filled him with confusion in the midst of the political campaign," said he, "you will believe anything. Brandenburg is worse than a pickpocket, for he has helped to deceive his fellow-countrymen in the midst of a political campaign; he has inflicted mortification on a lady in the first months of her widowhood. If he is acquitted he will walk out with the proud consciousness that he has fooled, not only THE NEW YORK TIMES, but twelve of his fellow-citizens."

The Judge's Charge.

Mr. Jacoby made the usual motions to charge, and then Justice Fitzgerald began his charge. He said in part:

"The rulings on evidence do not determine questions of fact, but only the admissibility of certain things. You must take your reading of the law from me, but you must focus your attention on the question whether the defendant did or did not steal $500 from THE NEW YORK TIMES. You must not allow the question whether the views of our late distinguished fellow-citizen were improperly introduced into politics to weigh with you."

After laying down that the people must prove the crime beyond reasonable doubt, the court went on to explain that it was alleged, and Brandenburg admitted, that he had represented to THE TIMES that certain papers and a signature were by Mr. Cleveland. Brandenburg asserted that his representations were true, whereas the people contended that neither signature nor article was genuine.

Justice Fitzgerald read the definition of larceny, which includes the taking of money from its owner "by color or aid of fraudulent or false representation or pretense." The jury must consider, he said, whether THE TIMES relied on the representations of Brandenburg, and the court reviewed briefly the evidence dealing with this point.

"Before you can convict of misrepresentation," the court laid down, "you must be convinced first that the statements of the defendant were made with the intent to deceive; second, that they were relied on by the officers of the corporation to an extent to induce them to purchase the article.

"If you believe that they relied on their own investigations you must acquit the defendant, because their money was not obtained by the color and aid of his representations."

Taking up the question of the genuineness of the signature produced, the Judge charged that the jury must give the opinion of the experts such weight as their experience and capacity seemed to warrant.

"You must remember that Brandenburg is not charged with forgery," he said, "but with representing as genuine an article which in fact was not. But the genuineness of the signature is important as affecting the general proposition of the genuineness of the article."

Passing on to the evidence of the conduct of the defendant outside the case the Judge pointed out that it was admitted as a test of his credibility. In conclusion, the court took up separate points setting forth the conflict of evidence as to whether the signature purporting to be cut from the article is genuine or not, defining the meaning of "reasonable doubt," and telling the jurors to weigh the manner, interest in the case, and possible motive witnesses might have in their testimony and to consider whether any of them had given different versions of the same matter at different times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 29.—Circuit Attorney Jones said to-day that a requisition for Broughton Brandenburg, indicted by the Grand Jury here on a charge of enticing James Shepard Cabanne from the home of his grandmother in St. Louis last April, was in the hands of Gov. Hughes of New York, and that the Circuit Attorney's office had assurance from Gov. Hughes that the requisition would be honored in the event of Brandenburg's acquittal in New York on the larceny charge. Brandenburg, the Circut Attorney said, would be brought to St. Louis at once and speedily tried.

Wanted—A Good Advertising Man With a Good Advertising Account.

An advertising agency just about to start into business would like to interest a good advertising man to join its forces and bring along a good newspaper or magazine account.

This is purely an opportunity to make a better arrangement than the man now has in regard to salary or commission. No partnership is offered at the present time—the future always offers a free field to ability.

If we were to suggest where this man is to be found we would say he would be—

A good man acting as advertising manager for some institution which could be convinced that losing their advertising manager to a good, live advertising agency would increase the efficiency of their own advertising and still put the man in the way of a future he would find impossible in their business. (Geo. Dyer's case is a good illustration.)

ONE DEAD, 3 HURT, IN AUTO ACCIDENT

High-Speed Car Crashes Into a Telegraph Pole Near Elizabeth, N. J.

DRIVER INSTANTLY KILLED

He Had Just Sold the Car and Was Taking His Friends, One a Newark Girl, for a Last Ride.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 29.—The roar of an automobile approaching at high speed caused Constable Charles Van Houton to run to his front yard on Morris Avenue, near here, this morning. As he reached his gate the machine shot by, scarcely more than a streak of gray, so fast was it going. An instant later the constable heard a scream of fright, then a loud crash.

He ran into the road and saw, an eighth of a mile beyond, the wreck of the auto lying beside the road. He hurried to it and found that of its four occupants, three were unconscious. The fourth was dead. His neck, back, and nearly every bone in his body had been broken when he was hurled against a telegraph pole into which the machine crashed when a tire burst causing it to skid.

The dead man was Edward Cooley of Roselle Park, who conducted an automobile agency there, and who was driving the car, one of the make for which he was agent, when the accident happened. The injured are:

LANLIER, JOHN F., a tire agent of Rochester, N. Y.; fractured right arm.
REED, STANLEY L., garage owner of this place; scalp wounds and bruises.
TUCKER, Miss MAUD, 172 East Kinney Street, Newark; shock and bruises.

Van Houten called an ambulance from the Elizabeth General Hospital, where the three injured persons were taken. It was said there last night that all would probably recover, although it was feared that Reed may have internal injuries.

It was learned that Cooley had just sold the machine he was driving and was taking his last ride in it. He invited Reed and Lanlier to accompany him, and then got Miss Tucker, who is employed in a store in Newark.

The accident occurred near Meeker Inn Hill on a stretch of road which is a famous speeding place, as there is a five-mile straightaway, with an almost perfect roadbed. The riders were evidently enjoying their ride to the utmost, when the tire burst, and Cooley lost control of the car. Lanlier was found under the car, although he was not crushed.

THREE HURT IN AUTO WRECK.

Flavius S. Miller May Die as Result of Crash Near Flushing.

Frederick Belz of the Karsch Brewing Company of College Point, L. I., driving his automobile along the College Point Causeway to Flushing yesterday afternoon, saw the wreck of another automobile lying against a telegraph pole about half a mile out on the causeway. Thirty feet from it lay a man unconscious, while nearer to the car sat two other men groaning and only half conscious.

Belz started with the unconscious man to the Flushing Hospital, then went back to the scene of the accident. When he reached there he found Mounted Policeman O'Malley watching the machine. No one else was about. He told O'Malley of the man he had picked up, and the policeman immediately set out after a trolley car, on which the only man the policeman had found beside the car had left for the hospital.

He caught the car and arrested the man, who said he was Frank Schippers, assistant manager of the Simplex Automobile Company, at Eighty-third Street and the East River, Manhattan. O'Malley let him continue to the hospital, a prisoner. There Schippers said that he, with William Watson, a demonstrator for the company, and Flavius S. Miller, in business at Fifty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue, Manhattan, had set out for a ride in order that Miller might see how the car ran.

On the Causeway, which is narrow, they saw a car in which were only two women approaching. To give them all the room possible, Schippers, who was driving, turned into the ditch, when one of the forward wheels collapsed and the machine struck a telegraph pole hard enough to break it off some feet from the ground.

Miller may be mortally hurt. His skull was fractured and he received internal injuries and a fractured right knee cap. Schippers's right hand was badly mangled, but otherwise he escaped injury. Watson slipped away, and it is not known how badly he was hurt.

MINER KILLED BY AN AUTO.

Struck Near Dover, N. J., by Car Going Twenty Miles an Hour.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., June 29.—Paul Hance, 21 years old, a Hungarian miner in the employ of the Thomas Iron Company at the Richard Mine, was struck and instantly killed this evening by an automobile driven by Nelson Post of New Foundland while walking with two fellow-miners on the Sparta Turnpike.

Post says that when he neared the trio, going at the rate of twenty miles an hour, one man turned to one side of the roadway, another to the other, while the third, who was Hance, dodged from one side to the other. Hance was caught and dragged some distance.

In trying to avoid striking him, Post ran his car into a pile of rock, damaging it so that he had to have it towed into Dover.

DOUGLAS ROBINSON HURT.

Hands and Face Cut When His Auto Crashes Into Another.

Douglas Robinson of West Orange, N. J., a brother-in-law of ex-President Roosevelt, was cut about the hands and face on Monday night by flying glass in an automobile smash in Eagle Rock Avenue, West Orange.

With Mr. Robinson was his son, Theodore, Charles A. Munn, and several others. Their car collided with another at a bend in the road overhanging the new Nevins Quarry about 10:30 o'clock. It was reported that the other one belonged to Alonzo Church, Secretary of the Park Commission, but Mr. Church said yesterday that at the hour at which the collision occurred he was in bed, and not only that, but his machine is out of commission and his chauffeur ill.

Mr. Robinson was not seriously injured. His car was badly damaged. Its lamps were smashed, and its shield and radiator broken. The other machine did not appear to be badly damaged. It backed away and then sped on over the mountain.

FINE AND JAIL FOR SPEEDER.

Thirty Days' Sentence for Boston Chauffeur—Bartol Parker Fined, Too.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 29.—Joseph Barbose, chauffeur for J. Reed Whipple, a prominent Boston hotel proprietor, and Bartol Parker, former Captain of Harvard's football eleven, were in the District Court to-day charged with speeding.

Parker, whose father is a member of the State Highway Commission, which has charge of issuing automobile licenses, was fined $40. He was represented by his uncle, ex-Attorney General Herbert Parker.

Barbose was charged with speeding and reckless driving. The policeman who arrested him testified that Barbose was racing with another car in North Cambridge last Sunday at the rate of fifty miles an hour, whereupon Judge Charles Almy observed that Barbose ought never to be permitted to operate a car. Judge Almy then imposed a fine of $50 and a sentence of thirty days in the House of Correction. Barbose appealed and Mr. Whipple furnished bonds in $300.

CHAUFFEUR GETS 30 DAYS

For the Larceny of Gasoline Burned in a Surreptitious Auto Ride.

William Foley of 987 Sixth Avenue, the chauffeur who pleaded guilty to stealing a half gallon of gasoline, valued at 10 cents, the amount he used up while driving without permission a car belonging to his employer, Judson S. Todd, a lawyer, living at 45 West Fiftieth Street, was sentenced yesterday by Justice Hoyt, in Special Sessions, to serve thirty days in the Tombs.

When Mr. Todd heard that it had been made a felony for a chauffeur to take his employer's car without permission, he said that he did not wish to press so serious a charge, but would prosecute for the larceny of the gasoline.

Arrest Chauffeur Who Ran Down Boy.

The chauffeur who last Saturday night, at Bushwick and Flushing Avenues, Williamsburg, ran down with his auto and seriously injured fourteen-year-old Henry Gottlieb of 461 Bushwick Avenue, was captured yesterday by the police of the Hamburg Avenue Station. He was Louis Korreak, 21 years old, of 853 Hart Street. Some women who witnessed the accident furnished the clue which led to his arrest. When arraigned in the Manhattan Avenue Court he was held in $1,000 bail. The boy is still in St. Catherine's Hospital, with a broken leg.

DIRECTORS SELDOM PRESENT.

Depend on Trust Companies' Executive Boards, Says Alvin W. Krech.

SARATOGA, N. Y., June 29.—Alvin W. Krech, President of the Equitable Trust Company of New York, testifying to-day in the suit of Charles H. Kavanaugh against the former Directors of the Trust Company of the Republic, stated that in 1902 the Directors of all New York City trust companies customarily delegated their duties to the board's Executive Committees and possessed only a general knowledge of the manner in which the affairs of the companies were being conducted.

Frequently, in the Summer months, he said, it was impossible to obtain a quorum of Directors at a meeting. The Directors relied on the reports made to them by their officers and Executive Board and never made a personal verification.

Mr. Kavanaugh alleges that the Directors permitted the funds of the Trust Company of the Republic to be invested and lost in financing the United States Shipbuilding Company in the Summer of 1902.

FUNERAL OF "MARTY" KEESE.

Many of His Old Associates and War Veterans Pay Last Honors.

"Marty" Keese, the old janitor of City Hall, was buried yesterday afternoon in Greenwood Cemetery. The funeral took place at an Eighth Avenue undertaking establishment, from which the procession, consisting of a dozen carriages containing relatives and old friends, proceeded downtown.

The Mayor had given them permission to cross the City Hall Plaza in front of the big portico under which "Marty" had sat and coughed and coughed during the last few months. All the flags on the City Hall were also at half-mast, an unusual honor to so inconspicuous a city official.

The Rev. W. M. Geer of St. Paul's officiated at the services. Over five hundred people were present, among them representatives from "Marty's" Grand Army Post, the "Vamps," and the Trustees of the Firemen's Fund. The pallbearers were Matthew Hennessey of the post, Andrew Boyes, John Nolan, Michael Buckley, and Harry Niebheur, who ran with "Marty" and the "machine" in the old days; ex-Chief Bates of the Volunteer Department, ex-President Cullen of the Volunteer Association, and President Daniel Bradley; President Monks of the Exempt Firemen, and Peter J. Hickey, John J. Mulligan, and John Buckley of the association.

215 IMMIGRANTS HELD UP.

Didn't Have the Necessary Cash and All May Be Deported.

Following the order issued on Monday to steamship agents by Immigration Commissioner Williams, 215 second-cabin passengers out of a total of 301 who arrived yesterday on the Holland-Amerika liner Ryndam were held at Ellis Island because they had not the essential $25 cash in their possession.

"Not all these aliens will be deported," said the Commissioner, "but the ruling was necessary because certain steamship lines have been careless in accepting passengers, and too many indigent immigrants have been coming in. Many of these people who have not enough money will be met by relatives who can assure us that they will not become public charges."

THE HUNDRED SEEK GRAFT.

Indicate Having Found Abuses Among Corporation Inspectors.

One of the first phases of the city administration which will receive the attention of the Committee of One Hundred in the quest of that body for material to be used against Tammany Hall in the municipal campaign is the system now employed by the city for the inspection of work done by corporations in streets and public places.

The work is done by officials known as Corporation Inspectors. They are appointed by the Borough Presidents in most instances, but receive their pay from the corporations whose work they are inspecting.

Members of the committee have had this subject under discussion and have reached the conclusion that the system is illogical, and that it needs reform, as opening the way for grave abuses. A statement issued yesterday at the headquarters of the Committee of One Hundred on the subject said:

Information has been received of the refusal of at least one important official in Manhattan to disclose the names of the corporation Inspectors appointed by him. This official was formally notified that if he did not comply with the request to furnish the list application would be made for a mandamus to require him to furnish it. He then took a day to think the matter over, and eventually the list was furnished. The Committee of One Hundred will carefully scrutinize all the lists of corporation Inspectors appointed in the various boroughs, and will make investigations into the character of inspection. Such reports as have already been received indicate that the system has been made a source of much political graft, and that care needs to be exercised to prevent its being used as a method of payment for political services in the coming campaign.

Mrs. Ridley Sues for $35,000 Damages.

Mrs. Frances J. Ridley, the Atlanta, Ga., widow, who was accused in March of stealing $5,000 worth of jewels from Mrs. Andrew Albright, Jr., on a Pennsylvania Railroad train, has brought two suits for a total of $35,000 damages against Andrew Albright, Jr. The summons was served on him yesterday at Newark. The papers were made returnable on July 8. The criminal action against Mrs. Ridley was dropped recently.

MRS. WOODILL VOWED LOVE FOR EASTMAN

"Though You Were a Bandit," She Wrote, "My Heart Would Beat in Response to Yours."

LETTER FOUND IN BUNGALOW

Also One from Eastman to a Friend Repeating That His Companion Was Slain by a Woman.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. MICHAELS, Md., June 29.—A remarkable letter, written by Edith May Thompson Woodill to Robert Emmet Eastman, and found with other papers among the effects of the murderer and suicide at his bungalow, was made public this afternoon by State's Attorney Turner of Talbot County and then turned over to Col. Thompson, the dead woman's foster father. The letter was signed "Edith." It not only indicates the woman's infatuation for the fugitive New York broker, but also shows that she had known him for a year. The letter in part follows:

> Is the iron immodest when it creeps through the loadstone and clings to its side? Is the seed immodest when it sinks into the ground with budding life? Is the cloud bold when it softens into rain and falls to earth because it has no other choice, or is it brazen when it nestles on the bosom of heaven's arched dome and sinking into the blueblack infinity ceases to be itself? Is the human soul immodest when drawn by a force it cannot resist it seeks a stronger soul which absorbs its ego as the blue sky absorbs a floating cloud, and as the warm earth swells the sea, as the magnet draws the iron?
> All of these are of one quality. The iron, the sea, the clouds, and the soul of man are what they are, do what they do, live as they live, or die as they die, because there is no other choice.
> We think we are free because at times we act as we please, forgetting that God gives us the "please" and that every act of our being is only the result of a dictated plan.
> Do you find any freedom save that which you firmly believe exists within yourself? Do you? You don't! There is no self-God. By every people He is called differently—the people of the East—
> (Here the page is torn and the remainder of the sentence lost.)
> And to the end lives and dies with a mistaken understanding of it all.
> I do not feel myself to be bold or wrong or "in myself" for drifting toward you as I do. I would not feel myself wrong to go straight to you to-morrow.
> There is ever and always some human soul to love and trust us, and whose confidence we would not alter. We are not of our own making, and our lives belong to another. Abraham who rules and is wise.
> Have I said all this before? May be so, for it is my present belief whenever human things go against my desire and always the same lesson comes back to me.
> As one who was unconcerned, and in every line of it and I read only the same adoration that a year's absence would not shadow.
> And the wonder comes to me that you did not, could not, understand. Surely a life such as yours brings time understanding; you most know lewd from the modest, the untrue from the true—
> (Four pages are here destroyed. Then the letter continues):
> Agent; it seems no one is unnoticed, however humble, and so it is that I sit idly dreaming when my longing is to be putting down every thought.
> Dreaming of you, did I say? Longing for you would be better, for every heartbeat seems to cry out against the enormity of the crime that makes me no longer yours. All the best in everything seems only to exist because of you and for you.
> I hate existence away from you. Why do men dare to lift up their voices against the blessed art in others, which is but a greater, stronger, warmer spark of God's Souls that they possess, or can lessen the understanding we have for the other and no difference can make us forget?
> Remember me always, as you loved me best, and though were you a—a bandit—a anything—my heart would beat in responsiveness to yours.
> Thine but asks in stead "Will thou be mine?" Loved by time has grown to know its significance. Has usury been made a degenerate thing? That is hard to recognize.
> Are we not blessed and know that no happenings can? EDITH.

On the same paper, but in Eastman's writing, is the following, evidently written to Mrs. Woodill:

> Little Dear: I cannot live after our short —— of bliss.
> With the coming of you and parting ever before me. If we meet in the unknown let's continue the blissful times that we spent here. I am with you in every thought.

The State's attorney also gave out this letter by Eastman. It is similar to one written to his wife and already published:

> Mr. Taylor: Inclosed find $10 to cover my indebtedness to you. I believe it ample. If not, will send difference.
> Appearances are against me, but I had no hand in the tragedy. The poor little girl was practicing the art of taking a fellow from another girl who was under the influence of wine and hit her three times with a full bottle of champagne.
> The four immediately left and I removed the evidence of the crime, and once more making an effort to get bondsmen, for I don't want to get locked up.
> But if not successful and I cannot persuade all parties to come up and take their medicine, why, I will blow off the top of my crazy head, and in that case I wish you would kindly see that all letters found on me are mailed. ROBBIE.

In a letter addressed to Miss Julia Eastman, Larch Avenue, Bogota, Bergen County, N. J., was found a deed, No. 674, dated Nov. 23, 1898. This deed was for a lot in a cemetery of the Maple Grove Cemetery Association, for which $93 out of $240 had been paid. The deed was in the name of Robert E. Feeney and Julia Miller.

MURPHY FOR MYERS TO RUN FOR MAYOR

Tammany Favors Ex-Controller and the Present Likelihood Is He'll Be the Man.

HIS RECORD HIS CHIEF ASSET

Sold City Bonds at 2½ Per Cent. and Got a Premium for Them—Brought Tax Rate Down from 2.40 to 1.95.

With the tax rate and the condition of city finances likely to come to the front as the most important issues in the municipal campaign, talk about Mayoralty candidates in Tammany Hall within the last few days has centred on ex-Controller Theodore W. Myers. It is only recently that his name has been spoken above a whisper in the inside circle of Tammany Hall, but there are many Tammany politicians who believe that while other names have been mentioned galore, the former Controller is the present choice of Tammany leader Charles F. Murphy.

"If the convention were to be held tomorrow," said a man who is in a position to get correct information, "I have no doubt that Mr. Myers would be the nominee for Mayor."

The former Controller has not been active in Tammany politics for many years. In fact, he has always been more or less of an independent. He was first elected Controller in 1887, as the nominee of the old County Democracy. He was re-elected in 1890 as the candidate of all the parties then in the field, receiving 207,011 out of a total of 213,199 votes cast for Controller in the old City of New York, comprising Manhattan and the Bronx.

The advocates of ex-Controller Myers's nomination for Mayor maintain that by reason of his record as Controller he would be a strong candidate in a year when all the clamor is for a "business administration." In his first term he brought the city's credit to a point where he succeeded in floating a $14,000,000 bond issue at 2½ per cent., the bonds selling at a premium. In the second he kept such a close tab on the city's expenditures and on its receipts as well, that he brought the tax rate down from 2.40 in 1885 to 1.95 in 1889.

Mr. Myers, it is also urged, would appeal strongly to the Jewish voters in the city, and Tammany Hall has been looking around for just such a candidate. He retired in 1902 from the banking firm of Theodore Myers & Co., which he established.

In recent years Mr. Myers has not figured at all in politics, and he is little known to the voters of to-day. During the first Cleveland campaign, when he was a member of the County Democracy of the old Twenty-first Assembly District, he organized the Cleveland-Hendricks Campaign Club from among members of the Stock Exchange and took a leading part in the great Cleveland rally which was held on the steps of the Sub-Treasury in that year. Later he was elected President of the Business Men's Democratic Association.

Mr. Myers was born in 1844, and is now 65 years old. During the civil war he was active in the organization of the Sickles Brigade, and served as a Captain in the Third Regiment of that body. After the war he joined the Ninth Regiment, N. G. N. Y.

While friends of District Attorney Jerome firmly believe that Tammany Hall will indorse him for reelection, the talk among Tammany politicians points in the other direction. In any event, it was said yesterday by a friend of Mr. Jerome, he would take the field as an independent candidate. Mr. Jerome will spend all of next month resting. Unless his plans are changed, he will announce his candidacy in August.

ST. GABRIEL ALUMNI BID SCHOOL GOOD-BYE

Golden Jubilee the Occasion of Farewells, for Its Buildings Are to be Replaced.

FATHER CHIDWICK ELOQUENT

Many Prominent in City's Life Who Graduated There Years Ago Present with Sons or Grandsons.

Hundreds of men, most of them beyond middle life, wandered last night through the twisting corridors and weather-beaten classrooms of old St. Gabriel's School for Boys, in Twenty-sixth Street, just below Second Avenue, to look for the last time at the places where they studied and got into mischief scores of years ago.

For early in July workmen will begin to tear down the old buildings that have stood for fifty years, supported by St. Gabriel's Parish, and when the simple brick houses, with all their tradition of pioneer Irish memories are gone to the ash heap, there is to be raised a finer brick schoolhouse of five stories, at a cost of $200,000.

St. Gabriel's, whose golden jubilee it was last night, stands out among Irish Catholic parishes, and this school for boys, originating when there were few Irish politicians but many "drawers of water and hewers of wood," as the speaker of the evening, the Rev. John P. Chidwick, formerly Chaplain of the historic battleship Maine, put it, was among the small educational beginnings by Irishmen in this country. Besides, St. Gabriel's was once the parish of Archbishop Farley, and many a well-known figure of this city, besides "Big Bill" Devery and his brother Jack, began life in that school.

For half an hour before the exercises in the assembly hall the old alumni walked through the school—the school that, starting at 309 West Twenty-sixth Street, now runs from No. 305 to 321. So many additions have been made, so much has been crowded into so little space, considering the numbers that went there, that now old St. Gabriel's is labyrinthed with twisting passages, as full of little three-step flights of stairs, of cubbyholes and crannies and blind narrow hallways, and almost as full of memories and traditions as any Spanish castle. And through it all the alumni wandered, finding the ways they had forgotten for many years.

"I hadn't seen this room for twenty years," said one man with white hair, his eyes twinkling with pleasure.

"If that isn't my old desk with my initials on it," said another, pointing out the initials on a blackened desk in a corner of an interior class room which had always to be lighted with gas—"and there's where poor old Jerry McCuen sat next but one to me, and always in scrapes, poor lad."

Another, catching a younger man, his son, by the arm, led him by devious ways to a little room with no light from out of doors. "There was my classroom, boy," he said, proudly. "They've made it a vestry room now, but my old desk used to be right here."

At last the men, almost boys again, gathered in the assembly hall. There were among them Thomas Madden and John Killian, two of the very first pupils; there were also ex-Fire Marshal Peter Seery and Philip J. Britt, counsel for ex-Sheriff Tom Dunn; Judge William J. Boyhan of the Municipal Court, and Cornelius F. Collins, Assistant Corporation Counsel; Martin J. McCue, Assemblyman from the district where the school stands; Francis J. Lantry, ex-Fire Commissioner; Stephen J. O'Hare, and many others well known. Many with sons, some with grandsons, too, were among the audience.

When Edward F. Boyle, one of the city's chief accountants, introduced Father Chidwick every one rose and roared applause, and Father Chidwick moved them almost to tears by his remarks. He said:

"It is but a sentiment that brings you here to-night, but it is a sentiment so inspiring that your splendid numbers do honor to yourselves. We are gathered simply to say good-bye to an old, simple, unadorned pile of brick and mortar, plain and unornamented, without majesty or beauty—yet wreathed and garlanded with fondest, softest memories. Its founders came from a land of oppression to win for their children greater advantages. For a long time they were but hewers of wood and drawers of water; yet from them came no cry of anarchy.

"Their only hope was that their children might some day vindicate their labors and sacrifices by gaining the honor those labors and sacrifices deserve. Now old St. Gabriel's, like an old mother, closes her eyes—for the old must move out for the new—and she calls us from all walks of life, for we come and bid her close her eyes in peace.

"For in this which is happening, in replacing this hallowed old building with a new and better and grander one, we are fulfilling the wish, the dream, and inspiration of St. Gabriel's founders."

After this came songs and story telling and clog dancing by boys of the school, old and young.

BRITAIN FACES COAL CRISIS.

General Strike of Miners Likely to Follow Lockout in Wales.

LONDON, June 29.—The country is threatened with another serious coal crisis. The new mines eight hours act, which goes into effect in Wales on July 1, has led to a dispute between the mine owners and the men, which is expected to result in a lockout of all Welsh miners.

A conference of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain was held in London to-night, and a resolution was adopted promising to support the Welsh miners, and, if no settlement of the dispute is reached, to call a national strike of all the miners in the Kingdom.

Gompers Welcomed in Dublin.

DUBLIN, June 29.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, who is visiting Ireland preliminary to a Continental trip, was welcomed here to-night at a special meeting of the Dublin Trades Counsel.

BROWN-TAIL MOTH HERE.

Massachusetts Destroyer of Foliage Came on Boston Plants.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., June 29.—The dreaded brown-tail moth, which for years has been most destructive to the foliage of Eastern Massachusetts, has made its appearance in Rye, just across the line in New York. It has come on shrubbery purchased from a Boston concern by W. W. Cook, general counsel for the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, who has a place in Rye. The section is occupied by the estates which form the Summer homes of a large number of New Yorkers.

To-day a hundred men, employes of the New York State Department of Agriculture, are working to exterminate the pest, and the smoke from the fires which they are using was seen for miles. Acres of grass surrounding the shrubbery have been sprayed with gasoline and ignited. As yet the pest has not appeared on the Connecticut side of the line, but the Connecticut State authorities are watching the foliage. The moment the appearance of the moth is reported efforts will be made to exterminate it.

Charles Hotaling, the Greenwich tree warden, discovered the pest on the Rye estate of Mr. Cook. Mr. Cook some time ago bought $3,000 worth of shrubbery from a Boston concern and had it set out. Mr. Hotaling, two weeks ago, examined the shrubbery, and found what he believed to be a caterpillar of the moths. He notified Inspector Walden of the Connecticut Department of Agriculture, who accompanied him to the spot.

As the estate was in New York, it was necessary to notify the New York Department at Albany. The notification brought Inspector Niles of the department to Rye. He sent specimens to Albany, and they were declared to be the brown tail moth.

The moth is covered with a poisonous substance, which is left upon the hands or face of those whom it touches.

A day or two after infection the poison shows itself in inflammation, swelling, and severe itching. There are parts of Massachusetts where people do not care to sit outside in the evening, and women fear this destroyer of complexions.

So great is the dread of the brown tail and gypsy moths that in some Connecticut towns, near the Massachusetts line, town employes brush off every automobile and carriage known to have come from Massachusetts.

PITTSBURG CARS RUN AGAIN.

Townsmen and Union Men Rejoice at Ending of the Strike.

PITTSBURG, Penn., June 29.—With rousing cheers from both street car men and hundreds of Pittsburgers cars were run out of the various barns of the Pittsburg Railway Company at 5 A. M. to-day. Three hours later every division was in full operation and schedules were being maintained.

The ending of Pittsburg's first complete street car strike was as sudden as the beginning.

While the trouble was adjusted by Mayor Magee with a compromise agreement favorable to the men, concessions were granted by the union, too.

Excepting one point, which will be arbitrated later, every difference was settled definitely at the conference held in the Mayor's office at 10:30 last night. Following is the basis of settlement:

The number of "short runs" shall be reduced 50 per cent.

The men withdraw their objections to emergency runs.

Sunday runs shall not be longer than the weekday schedules.

Motorman Ashford, discharged on charges of drinking while in uniform, shall be reinstated, pending arbitration.

Conductor Halboth, suspended on charges of refusal to help remove an obstruction to traffic, shall be paid in full for the time of his suspension.

Conductor McGibbony, who lost seniority, shall be restored.

FERRERO DISPUTES GORKY.

American Oligarchy of Wealth Cringing Before Masses an Untrue Picture.

PARIS, June 29.—Signor Guglielmo Ferrero, the Italian historian who visited the United States last year, continues the publication in the Figaro to-day of his comments on the anti-plutocratic movement in America. He calls attention again to the lack of organized resistance on the part of the rich, which he explains by a general recognition on their part that the movement has been provoked by real abuses which must be corrected.

Many people sympathize with this movement openly, and some sons of rich men have thrown themselves into the fight. This fact the writer considers to be another proof of the endurance of idealism in America, where the basis of everything is the theoretical rule of the majority. The infiltration of anti-plutocratic ideas among the masses is recognized, and the Republican Party, although allied to the interests of the rich, has realized that it could not adopt too hostile an attitude without provoking revolt.

Signor Ferrero is of the opinion that the picture painted by Maxim Gorky and others of the vicious rich American oligarchy cringing before the masses is erroneous, and says the belief is held in some quarters in Europe that the masses in America are organizing a revolution to despoil the wealthy.

Signor Ferrero, in promising a final installment of his articles, explains the grounds for his conviction that the feeble defense which the rich men of America are making against this anti-plutocratic movement will not result in a social catastrophe.

CLARK'S PARTY TO RETURN.

Fatal Clash in Chinese Province to be Fully Investigated.

PEKING, June 29.—The American and British Legations here have decided that it will be better to have the members of the meteorological expedition under Lieut. Clark, a former officer of the American Army, return to Peking as requested by the Foreign Board.

A full investigation into the encounter between the expedition and natives of Kan-su Province last week, in which Hazrah Ali, a British subject, was killed, will be made by the Peking Government.

The British Legation has demanded the return of Hazrah Ali's body and that full reparation for his death be made.

HEIRS CLAIM MILLION IN BUFFALO PROPERTY

Paris Descendants of Louis Lecoulteux, Pioneer Resident and Philanthropist, to Sue.

INSTITUTIONS HOLD LAND

Orphan Asylum, Public School, and Churches Among Those Whose Rights Will Be Questioned.

PARIS, June 29.—Louis and Henri Lecoulteux de Caumont and their nephew, Baron de Bizi, descendants of Louis Lecoulteux de Caumont, a pioneer resident of Buffalo, N. Y., signed powers of attorney to-day, authorizing Donald Harper of Paris and Edmund C. Randall of Buffalo to institute suit in the Supreme Court of New York for the recovery of certain property in the heart of Buffalo, valued at $1,000,000.

This property was bequeathed between 1827 and 1838 by the grandfather of the claimants to the authorities of the Catholic Church for ecclesiastical and charitable purposes. The present suit is brought on the ground that the conditions imposed by the testator have not been fulfilled. The property includes the Church of St. Louis, at Main and Edward Streets, given for a church and cemetery; a block of tenements at Delaware Avenue and Edward Street, given for a minister's residence, and reversionary interests in other property.

When it was desired in 1889 to rebuild the Church of St. Louis, the Catholic authorities found it impossible to place a mortgage on the property, as no deed existed. Mgr. Corrigan, who was then Archbishop of New York, thereupon gave Bishop Ryan of Buffalo a quit-claim deed. Under the proscriptive statute this deed to the property will ripen into an incontestable deed the end of next month. The present suit, therefore, is for the purpose of testing the legality of the claim of the heirs.

The plaintiffs are men of wealth and are interested in horse breeding.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, June 29.—The property which the heirs of Louis Lecoulteux seek to recover is valued in the aggregate at about $1,000,000, and is among some of the choicest property in the city. The principal site is that at Main and Edwards Street, upon which stands the St. Louis Catholic Church, while eight houses on Delaware Avenue, north of Edward Street, are also included in the claim. The Delaware Avenue property is now owned by Frederick K. and Knowlton Mixer, Louisa G. Germain, Marie S. Usher, Charles W. Hamlin, A. W. Thorn, and the Foster estate.

Louis Lecoulteux was one of the earliest settlers of Buffalo and was one of the city's greatest benefactors. It was he who started the public school system in the city, and he also gave much of his property to the city and to Catholic institutions.

The property involved in the claim of the heirs was given to the Catholics. Other property given to the Church in the city by Lecoulteux includes the site of the Immaculate Conception Church and the site of the Lecoulteux Deaf-Mute Asylum, both on Edward Street. To the city he gave the site of the public school at Virginia and Edward Streets and the present site of the Buffalo Orphan Asylum on Edward Street.

In 1829 Lecoulteux deeded to John Du Bois, at that time Roman Catholic Bishop of New York, the land at Main and Edward Streets, now occupied by St. Louis Church. The deed provided that "the southwest corner of the property be reserved for a family vault and burial ground for Louis Lecoulteux and his heirs forever." The southwest corner of the church property is now used as the site of the parochial school and the residence of Mgr. Helscher, rector of the church, and it is supposed that this fact furnishes the technical ground on which the suit is to be brought.

PLAN TO EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Traveling Scholarships Proposed for America, Canada, and United Kingdom

LONDON, June 29.—A scheme for the interchange of university students between the United States, Canada, and the United Kingdom, rivaling in importance that established under the will of the late Cecil Rhodes, is in process of formation, with every prospect of success. The idea, which is supported by an influential committee headed by Premier Asquith and Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner of Canada, and including the heads of the chief universities in the United Kingdom, with the indorsement also of the Presidents of American and Canadian universities, aims at providing opportunities to students of the three countries to obtain some real insight into the life, progress, and customs of other nations, with a minimum of inconvenience to their academic work and at the least possible expense.

In the first place the promoters suggest the provision of certain traveling scholarships, the selections for which are to be along the lines of the Rhodes scholarships, the selected candidate, in addition to his academic qualifications, to be what is popularly known as an "all around" man.

Twenty-eight of these scholarships are proposed, fourteen to be available for universities in the United Kingdom, ten for America, and four for Canada, the American and Canadian students securing them to make a ten weeks' tour in Great Britain under the guidance of a university man; the British students to make a similar tour of American and Canada during their respective vacations.

In addition to the scholarships it is proposed to establish two students' traveling bureaus—one in New York and the other in London—under American and British secretaries, respectively, both to be college men. They would afford every facility to any graduate or undergraduate of any university who wishes to visit the United States, Canada, or the United Kingdom for the purpose of obtaining an insight into the student, national, and industrial life of these countries.

Before efforts are made to obtain permanent endowment for the scheme it is proposed that funds shall be asked for its maintenance for an experimental period of three years. It is hoped that the first interchange will be made next year.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

CARACAS, June 29.—Nicomedes Zuolaga and Pedro Uztaris, claimants to the Imataca iron mine in opposition to the Orinoco Corporation, have brought suit for criminal libel against Rudolph Dolge, local representative of the corporation, charging him with having purposely retained certain documents signed by George Turnbull until Turnbull was out of the country, and then giving them publicity. These papers are said to be exceedingly damaging to Zuolaga and Uztaris, showing that their alleged titles to the Imataca Mine are not valid.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, June 29.—It was learned here to-day that the President of one of the banks of Maracaibo, Venezuela, recently defaulted with $60,000. The credit of the institution has not been affected by the defalcation, and it continues to do business.

BARCELONA, June 29.—Bombs were exploded at midnight last night in two of the Barcelona theatres. One playhouse already was empty, but the other was crowded, and the audience was thrown into a panic. One man was fatally wounded.

AMOY, June 29.—According to official reports there have been 177 deaths from the bubonic plague in Amoy in the fortnight ended yesterday.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, June 29.—The Haitien Government has informed the National Bank of Haiti that the proposals made by that institution for financing the republic have been rejected.

ST. Truth, Like a Good Story, Will Bear Repeating

Some days ago we printed this:
"Brill stores are not CHEAP stores."
That is true.

Brill stores are the only New York stores where you can buy strictly GOOD clothes at $10 and up.
That is true.

Because Brill stores are the only New York stores enjoying the combined advantages of close mill connections, Brill directed tailoring organizations, no-expense Brill designing facilities and enormous four-store outlet.

Most good clothes stores insist that you pay at least $15 or $18 for good clothes.
That is true.

Brill stores every year sell 25,000 garments at from $10 to $15, and they are GOOD garments.

If they were not, we would have more complaints than we do—about twelve a year.
That is true.

"Can I do as well in your Fifth Avenue store as in your other stores?" is a question we frequently hear and it always gives us the chance to drive home the fact that prices in any one Smith-Gray store are the same as in the other three.

A Man Has Been Selling New York City Sawdust Simply Moistened With Oil for $7.00 a Barrel. And that's the smallest of the "Gold Bricks" for which the City has been spending your money. You may think that this town is poorly managed, but here is a story that will wake you up. A calm, convincing statement of conditions unthinkable. James Creelman tells the story and he doesn't rake mud for fun. The City has been paying $2.21 each for hanging 6 cent coat hooks, and this story is full of such outrageous items—full of particular truths about the worst managed government in the world. What are you going to do about it?

Also this Magazine tells why the Standard Oil $29,000,000 fine was reversed. Mr. Roosevelt said that it was a sad miscarriage of justice. What do you think? Here is the first complete explanation. Bailey Millard tells what happens to the man who answers glowing investment advertisements and Sloane Gordon explains the methods and characteristics of Theodore Burton, the new Senator from Ohio, who may go higher in the Government. For fiction there are six short stories and one complete novel, a corking detective story.

HADLEY ADVOCATES AN ENGLISH SYSTEM

Tells Alumni He Would Separate the Honor Men from the Pass Men at Yale.

PRAISES STUDY OF GREEK

But Notes Indifference to It—Mrs. Morris K. Jesup Gives $100,000 for Memorial to Mr. Jesup.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 29.—President Hadley presented his report to the meeting of the alumni of Yale University at the meeting in Alumni Hall. The meeting was well attended. To-morrow President Taft will be here and the alumni will welcome him heartily.

At to-day's meeting of the alumni Gifford Pinchot, '89, presided. President Hadley in his report discussed the diminution in the study of Greek and its effect; the possibility of combining modern culture studies with the old-fashioned requirement of hard work; the considerations which should govern the choice of professors, and the possibility of introducing honor courses like those of Oxford or Cambridge into the American college.

"Greek is an intellectual game," said he, "where the umpires know the rules better than they know the rules in the game of French, for instance, or history or botany. A man's rating in an examination on any one of these last three subjects is largely the result of accident unless the examiner is quite unusually skillful. A man's rating in Greek, on the other hand, means something.

"Unfortunately a large number of the strongest men both in England and the United States have decided that this game takes more time than it is worth. Personally I believe that this change of mind was in many respects a misfortune.

"But colleges cannot teach a thing to a public which does not want to study it, and we must recognize the fact that an increasing part of the American public does not care to have its sons give the time necessary for the effective use of the Greek language as a means of competition and discipline. This makes academic problems more difficult.

"Some think that this evil can be met by a change in the character of the college Faculties themselves, whereby more stress should be laid on ability to teach and less attention devoted to power in research as a basis for appointment or promotion. This plan cannot, I think, be carried out without losing more than we gain. Research may be either good or bad. Any one who looks over the history of Yale for the last hundred years will find that, with very rare exceptions, the great teachers were investigators and that the investigators did better and better teaching as they grew older, while those who were not investigators reached the maximum of their influence earlier and then began to decline.

"I frankly own that I should be glad to see the English system of separating honor men from pass men introduced at Yale. In physical matters the man who goes into sports on a large scale is relieved of compulsory exercise in the gymnasium. Why should not the same principle hold in matters intellectual? I should be glad to allow any man who had attained a good general standing at the end of his first year to declare himself a candidate for honors, and be relieved of many of his attendance requirements, and, indeed, of most of the purely quantitative requirements of the regular pass man's course, and to extend the same privilege at the end of subsequent years, perhaps under somewhat closer restrictions, to those who had proved themselves worthy of it."

Attention was called by the President to the establishment of the Yale University Press, which is to publish lectures, books, and the results of investigations by professors.

President Hadley announced that $100,000 had been given by Mrs. Morris K. Jesup for the endowment of a professorship in sylviculture in memory of her husband, and $30,000 by an anonymous friend of the Art School in memory of the late Richard S. Fellowes of the class of 1832.

During the alumni meeting it was announced that Cornelius Vanderbilt, class of '95, had made a gift of $10,000 as the nucleus of a fund in memorial to Dean Henry P. Wright, who retires from the academic department with this commencement.

The first steps toward raising a fund for the memorial to Yale men who fell in the civil war, and which is advocated by prominent alumni, including President Taft, '78, were taken to-day.

The obituary record made known to-day shows the deaths during the year of 155 Yale graduates, their average age being 59 years. The death list includes Donald G. Mitchell, the writer; Col. George B. Sanford of the United States Army, George A. Adee, a supporter of rowing, and Frank T. Brown, a prominent Connecticut lawyer. The oldest living graduate is now Chester Dutton of the class of 1838, who lives at Concordia, Kan.

Mr. Kitchell, head of the Bureau of Self-Help, said in his report to-day that during the year the bureau had supplied help for students to the amount of $26,574, and that there are 600 men in the university who are earning their way through college.

The fellowships announced to-day included these:

Soldiers' Memorial Fellowship.—Carl W. Blegen, '08, Minneapolis.

Eldridge Fellowships.—John M. Stetson, '09, New Haven, and Arthur H. Weston, '08, Mount Vernon, Me.

Silliman Fellowship.—Howard E. Palmer, '07, Branford, Conn.

HARVARD'S SENIOR ALUMNUS

Now the Rev. Mr. Coolidge of the Class of 1838.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 29.—Many class reunions were held at Harvard University to-day on this alumni day, the occasion for the return of many old graduates.

It was announced to-day that the total number of deaths among the alumni, officers, and temporary members during the last year was 283, of which 220 occurred since last commencement. Of the total number recorded 221 were degree holders, 59 were temporary members, and 3 were officers not graduates. $1,000,000 FOR WESLEYAN.

Dr. Shanklin, the University's President, Pledges Himself to Raise It.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 29.—At the alumni luncheon to-day Wesleyan University's new President, Dr. William Arnold Shanklin, pledged himself to raise a million-dollar endowment for the university. As a beginning he announced two gifts aggregating $75,000, one of $50,000 from George G. Reynolds of the class of 1841, Brooklyn, and one of $25,000 from James N. Brown of New York City. Both are Trustees of the university.

In the midst of his first speech to the alumni of the university, Dr. Shanklin turned to Judge Henry C. M. Ingraham of Brooklyn, President of the Board of Trustees, and asked him how large an endowment was needed. Judge Ingraham suggested a million dollars. President Shanklin said:

"All right."

Then he stepped over and shook hands with the head of the Board of Trustees as the alumni applauded with vim.

A LESSON TO SEAT SEIZERS.

Man Who Wanted "to Test the Law" Fined and Another Got a Choking.

Louis Weiman, a middle-aged salesman living at 1,584 Lexington Avenue, sat on a Madison Square Park bench labeled "Reserved for Women and Children," yesterday, and when ordered to leave it by Park Attendant McCarthy, declared he was a citizen and had as much right on the bench as any woman or child.

Weiman and McCarthy were having a scuffle when Traffic Patrolman Green ran over and told Weiman he was in the wrong and must not use the reserved benches.

"But I have as much right as the women and children," answered Weiman, "and I want to make a test case of this."

He soon had a chance, for he was landed in the Jefferson Market Court before Magistrate House, who fined him $1, which he paid. The court said he regarded the reserve seat law as admirable.

In discharging Albert Richards, an elderly man from Greenwich, Conn., who admitted choking Philip M. Cohen, 30 years old, of 3 West 112th Street, when he refused to make room for a woman on a Fourteenth Street crosstown car, Magistrate House, in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday afternoon said:

"This gentleman is discharged. While I don't advise gentlemen to choke street car hogs, I'm not going to punish them when they do."

DEBTOR'S SALARY IMMUNE.

Court Holds That Creditor Has No Redress Against Discharged Bankrupt.

Judge Chatfield, in the United States Court, Brooklyn, ruled yesterday that money could not be deducted under the garnishee law from the salary of an employe to satisfy a creditor when the debtor has been adjudicated and discharged in bankruptcy. The decision was in the case of John J. Ludeke, who is employed as a truant officer by the Board of Education. John T. Gallagher held against Ludeke a claim for $2,111. On Feb. 10 Ludeke filed a petition in bankruptcy and later Gallagher got a judgment against him for the amount of his claim. Ludeke got a discharge in the bankruptcy proceedings.

PLENTY OF OFFERS FOR MEN OVER 50

Two Concerns Ready to Take Ten of Those Who Advertised for Work.

DEMAND FOR OFFICE MEN

Women Over 50 Who Are in Need of Employment Will Be Included Next Sunday.

Responses of business houses to the appeals of the "men over 50" out of jobs, as made in their advertisements in THE TIMES on last Sunday, have been quick and generous.

One firm has asked for five of the "old men," and another wants four. More than fifty responses to the advertisements were received at the main and downtown offices of THE TIMES yesterday, in addition to the forty received on Monday. This takes no account of the replies which, as requested by the advertiser, were sent directly to their homes.

The firm asking for four of the men over 50 is the Brockway Brick Company of Brockway, N. Y. This company thinks it can use "Seeker C 35," who said he was 54 years old, with 28 years' experience in factory offices of two corporations, with intimate knowledge of the work done in such offices from that of time-keeper to cashier. It has also asked "A. B. 44, Times," who represented himself as physically sound, and capable of being a collector or office assistant.

The advertisement of "C. H. P., Times," a bookkeeper, who said that in spite of his sixty-seven years he was an "active, energetic, clear-headed American," also caught the attention of the Brockway company, and they want to see him. This firm also thinks it can use "H. X. 34, Times," 55 years old, a native of this country, with eighteen years' office experience, and a speaking and reading knowledge of French. He said he was willing to take any position of trust and could be valuable in assisting on accounts.

Then George H. Parker of 391 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, thought he could use five of the advertisers. It struck him that "A. S. 33, Times," 51 years old, sober and reliable, who said he wanted a job "where punctuality and intelligence would be appreciated" might suit him. So he has asked to see him. Mr. Parker also wanted to see that man of 53, who, in spite of his many disappointments in getting work, still retained his faith. This man, with first-class references, with twenty-five years in the jewelry business, and for five years a salesman with a prominent house, will have an opportunity to tell Mr. Parker what he can do.

He Wants a "Team."

Mr. Parker thinks he may be able to use "Energetic" as well as "Faith," the two making a team which ought to bring success to both and to their employer as well. "C Box 25, Times," and "C 51, Times," are the remaining two of the five Mr. Parker has asked to call on him. Both are men of large business experience, and the latter is a Mason.

Besides those replying directly to the advertisers, three firms, unable to pick out the men they wanted from the 166, but anxious to give them a chance, have written to THE TIMES explaining their needs.

This is the letter of one of these correspondents:

> To the Editor of The New York Times:
> Observing the interest you have taken in your columns regarding the employment of some trustworthy people who have passed the middle age of life, I beg to say that I am in need of an honest, sober, and clean man who can do some good, plain cooking for gentleman members of a club.
> We can offer the proper party sleeping accommodations and a salary, together with such profits as he may make out of the meals to be served.
> If you have such a person seeking a comfortable berth kindly advise me.

It may be stated that this clubhouse is in Manhattan, and if any of those advertising on Sunday would like to get into communication with the correspondent, applications addressed to "C, 10 A, Times, Times Square," will be forwarded to him.

Another correspondent writes:

> To the Editor of The New York Times:
>
> In regard to positions for elderly men which you are now so nobly advocating, we desire to say that in our business we can make good use of such a man.
> If among the many men that have applied for positions there are any who have a knowledge of interviewing prospective customers, we will be pleased to take him on at once, and while not being able to offer a very large salary, we can offer him a position which if handled intelligently will lead to a good and steady income.
> We would prefer one who has some knowledge of the photographic or photo engraving business, at least sufficient to be able to converse intelligently on these subjects. But a man of good presence and an intelligent salesman can easily master the field.
> The position will be permanent to the right man. Knowledge of typewriting will be of benefit.
> We trust this will be of some service to some one who is in need of work, and congratulate you on the noble work you have undertaken.

How to Make Applications.

Those advertising on Sunday who feel as if they would like to apply for the position offered above may address "C, 10 B, Times, Times Square," and their applications will be forwarded. In each instance, if they prefer a personal conference to an application by mail, the applicant may state his qualifications, asking for an appointment. The third correspondent wrote:

> To the Editor of The New York Times:
> I have followed with keen interest your broadminded and generous plan for helping men over 50. Its breadth, thoughtfulness, and practical value stamp it as one of the most useful and helpful things of which I know.
> I may be able to co-operate with you, and wish you would insert an advertisement for a man over 50, thoroughly experienced in literary and research work, preferably one who has some knowledge of railroading.

Those wishing to apply for this job may address their letters to "C, 10 D, Times, Times Square."

Besides the two men Brill Brothers asked to come to see them yesterday, with whom they are still negotiating, the clothiers also want to obtain a shipping clerk from among Sunday's advertisers, laying particular stress on the requirement that he shall know the streets of New York thoroughly. They say the work will not be heavy, and one of the old men with the knowledge they require can readily do it.

Among the letters to THE TIMES yesterday on the subject of the man over 50 were several from the advertisers themselves. One wrote:

> Please accept my sincere thanks for advertisement you so kindly placed for me in your Sunday issue. Even if I get no results, the thought that some one is willing to help you makes one feel more hopeful.

Another said:

> I thank you heartily for the insertion of my advertisement for men over 50. I am sure each man ought to be deeply grateful to you for such an exhibition of good-will and charity.

Advertisements for those fifty and over out of employment will be published again next Sunday free of charge, with the privilege now extended to women as well as to men. The only conditions are that the advertisements must contain not more than fifty words and be in the office not later than 12 o'clock noon on Friday.

Some of the Police Dogs to be Sold.

Lassie, Nanon, Kittie, and Sue, four of Deputy Police Commissioner Woods's far-famed police dogs, will be sold at auction at the department kennels, Riverside Drive and Depot Lane, on July 9. The advertisement of the sale simply classifies the canines as "condemned." This does not mean, it was said last night, that the use of the police dogs has been abandoned.

S. S. HOWLAND WEDS AGAIN.

Mrs. Leslie Wallace the Secret Bride of August Belmont's Brother-in-Law.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—Samuel S. Howland, a brother-in-law of August Belmont, and well known in New York and Washington, was secretly married to Leslie Mosby Wallace in this city last Wednesday, and, with the bride booked as his sister, sailed the same day on the steamer Manchuria for Hongkong.

Mr. Howland arrived in this city last Tuesday with his intended bride, and obtained a license from County Clerk Mulcregy with the utmost secrecy. The ceremony was quietly performed the next morning by Presiding Judge Cooper of the Appellate Court. After the wedding the pair returned to their hotel, where they remained quietly until the Manchuria sailed.

A dispatch received here from San Francisco yesterday confirms the report that S. S. Howland, brother-in-law of August Belmont, was married in that city last Wednesday to Mrs. Leslie Mosby Wallace of this city, and that they sailed away immediately across the Pacific for a honeymoon in the Orient.

The marriage of Mr. Howland came as a surprise to his friends here. According to a private telegram, Mr. Howland reached San Francisco a week ago and joined Mrs. Wallace, who had preceded him by a few days, at the St. Francis Hotel. Last Wednesday they went to the Marriage License Bureau, obtained a license, and then drove to the home of Judge A. L. Cooper of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, where they were married, after Mr. Howland, according to the information received here, had earnestly requested Judge Cooper to keep the ceremony a secret.

On returning to the hotel Mr. Howland engaged a suite on the steamship Manchuria for himself and "sister," and when they went to the dock he was greeted by friends, to whom he introduced the new Mrs. Howland as his sister. He said that he was going to the Orient to take a long and much needed rest.

It was not for several days that the fact of the marriage became known, and this was brought about by the filing of the return certificate with the Clerk of the Court by Judge Cooper, as required by law.

This is Mr. Howland's second marriage. His first wife was a granddaughter of Matthew Galbraith Perry, a brother of Oliver Hazard Perry of Lake Erie fame. He is a brother-in-law to August, Oliver H. P., and Perry Belmont. He is President of several racing associations and well known in society here and abroad.

Mrs. Wallace is also well known in New York and Newport society. She is about 30 years old, while Mr. Howland is in his sixtieth year. He was first married in 1877 and his wife died at Hot Springs, Va., in June, 1902.

DILLON GOES TO SING SING.

Indefinite Sentence for Policeman Slayer of Young Louis Probber.

After denying a motion by the prisoner's counsel for a new trial of the case, Justice Maddox in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, sentenced Patrolman James F. Dillon of the Adams Street Station yesterday to Sing Sing Prison for not more than fourteen years and not less than seven years.

Dillon was convicted last week of manslaughter for killing Louis Probber, 19 years old, in the grocery store of the lad's father, at 217 Myrtle Avenue, on May 2 while the policeman was arresting the elder Probber for keeping his place open on Sunday.

Before passing sentence, Justice Maddox asked the prisoner whether he had anything to say. Dillon replied in a low voice that he had shot the Probber boy by accident. The court asked him if it was not true that he had on two occasions attacked his wife and at another time assaulted a man. Dillon admitted that he had been accused of striking his wife once, but denied the assault on the man.

After sentence had been pronounced upon him, Dillon was taken into the Sheriff's office, where he had a tearful parting with his wife and family. Early in the afternoon he was taken to Sing Sing by Deputy Sheriff Buick. Florence J. Sullivan, Dillon's counsel, said he intended to appeal from the decision of the court.

WRIGHT—KINRADE.

Only Witness of a Famous Canadian Murder Marries Here.

Through a letter sent from this city to a newspaper at Hamilton, Ont., it was learned yesterday that Miss Florence Belle Kinrade of that city was married in the Madison Avenue Methodist Church here on Monday to Claire Montrose Wright, a graduate of Victoria University, Toronto. The Rev. Wallace MacMullen of the church officiated. The bride was given away by her father. Mr. and Mrs. Wright may spend some time in England and the principal European cities.

Miss Kinrade was the only witness of the murder of her sister, Ethel Kinrade, on Feb. 25 last.

RIOTING ITALIANS NEARLY KILL WOMAN

She Was Walking Along Quietly When They Started Their Battle.

A FUSILLADE OF SHOTS

Police Chase the Belligerents, but They Get Away Into Alleys and Doorways.

Walking quietly through East Twelfth Street last night with her 3-year-old grandson, Mrs. Mary Commerato, 48 years old, of 437 East Twelfth Street, was shot through the abdomen by one of a crowd of men who ran through that street firing at each other from opposite sides of the thoroughfare. After the shooting the men got away without their identity being learned, and the woman was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said her condition was serious.

The shooting appeared to result from a meeting of opposing and hostile gangs of Italians. The words "Black Hand" were on every tongue after the affair, but the police were unable to learn that the shooting was a result of "Black Hand" trouble of any kind, and are of the opinion that two lawless cliques of Italians came together unexpectedly.

The police learned from witnesses that half a dozen Italians in one party and about a like number in another met at Avenue A and Twelfth Street and commenced shooting at each other. At least a dozen shots were fired. One man drew a pistol and fired at the other group, and after that all flashed pistols and evidently all took a hand in the shooting. Policemen ran toward the corner from several directions at the first shot and the two bands started east through Twelfth Street, each group keeping on its own side of the street.

They fired repeatedly at each other as they ran, but as far as the police could learn Mrs. Commerato was the only person injured. It is possible that one or more of the men were injured, and kept quiet about it. Generally in such cases the injured man goes to a private doctor for treatment, dreading the questions that would be put to him at the hospital. Hospitals in the lower section of the city, however, were all notified to look out for an Italian asking to be treated for a gunshot wound, and to hold the man and notify the police should such a person appear.

Mrs. Commerato, who lives with her married daughter, a Mrs. Nunziata, took her grandson Salvatore, 3 years old, for a walk. The streets and stoops of the houses were crowded by Italians. The woman walked in the middle of the street with the boy holding to her hands. She was struck by the bullet and fell to the street in front of 440. The shot caused a panic among the Italians.

Policemen Burke and Cohen of the Fifth Street Station heard the firing and took after the men, but they all escaped into doorways. Burke found a .38-calibre revolver in the hallway at 429 East Twelfth Street. This, it developed, had four empty cartridges in it.

Dr. Burk of Bellevue hurried the injured woman to that institution.

WEST SIDE PUBLIC BALL FIELD

Petition to Aldermen Signed by 15,000 Persons for a Twelfth Avenue Site.

The residents of the middle west side of Manhattan are signing a petition which is to be presented to the Aldermen, calling on that body to establish a baseball field in Twelfth Avenue, between Fiftieth and Fifty-fifth Streets, extending to the North River front, which is in the Thirteenth Assembly District. The committee in charge of the work of gathering the names for the petition say that already 15,000 names have been appended, and they expect that 50,000 names in all will be received.

"The Thirteenth Assembly District is the most thickly populated part of the west side," said James L. McNamee, leader of the Democratic Union of the district, who originated the idea to obtain a baseball field for the youth of that part of the city. "The site suggested for the ball field is available if the Aldermen will advance money for the purpose."

WESTON, Ocean-to-Ocean Walker,

Said recently: "When you feel down and out, feel there is no use living, just take your bad thoughts with you and walk them off. Before you have walked a mile things will look rosier. Just try it." Have you noticed the increase in walking of late in every community? Many attribute it to the comfort which Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, gives to the millions now using it. As Weston has said, "It has real merit."

The Summing Up.

From personal observation made without bias we believe Macy's is the busiest store in New York. That conviction does more than merely gratify us. It serves as a spur to drive our energies. Appreciation of intelligent effort is a prod. The trade movements that rise here broaden and deepen through the power of human interest they involve.

Importers and manufacturers and consumers are in sympathetic accord with our wide-awake policy that keeps us from drowsing away the long, light days of Summer.

A two-sided obligation gives strong impulse to present activity:

First: We have a contract, implied, but none the less clear and binding, to supply the needs of our customers as fast as they develop, in season and out of season.

Second: We have a contract, moral, but none the less definite and stringent, to give employment to thousands of faithful men and women all the year round.

The June record is fresh. We've given you many bargains in goods that you wanted; our salesforce has been maintained without gaps and the result has been satisfactory.

The July record now begins. We hope to make it fine.

The first news has a festive savor. The Fourth of July arrays are ready. Sporting Goods—things that call you out-of-doors—are dominant. All kinds of traveling helps strike a big note, too. And Clothes for everybody are in the forefront just at this time. Our stocks, so complete; our prices, so tempting, are their own arguments.

Amid all the ding-dong about prices we ask you not to forget our standard of quality. We keep up the quality standard. For example take China, Glassware, Cooking Utensils and House-furnishings in general.

Notwithstanding the greatest care that manufacturers of such lines can exercise, about half their products come out defective in one way or another. These blemished things are known to the trade as "Seconds." Not only are they weak, but many of them endanger health. What becomes of the large quantities of "Seconds"? Ask our competitors who absorb them. We never buy; we never sell them. We could make much more money in their departments than we do if we would consent to handle the injured instead of rejecting them. It is quite well known that we often sell firsts for less money than others ask for "Seconds."

Steamer Rugs. Basement.

We have, practically, an exhaustive variety of Imported and Domestic Steamer Rugs. We have recently seen Fringed Steamer Rugs, 62x70 inches, in two handsome plaid designs, selling elsewhere at $3.75. We have them at $2.48.

And the stock contains All-wool Steamer Rugs, very soft and luxurious, one side plaided in Scotch fancies, other side plain, 60x72 inches wide, $6.88, $7.19 and $9.74. At $12.29 we offer Satin-finished Tartan Plaided Steamer Rugs, 63x90 inches; sold elsewhere at $16.00.

The Imported Rugs furnish the text for another story—$13.02 to $39.89. We'll tell it another day.

HORSES AND "HORSE FEED."

It is amusing to see in what unexpected quarters the tariffmakers at Washington are continually discovering that they are imposing needless and oppressive burdens on industries of importance in their pretended anxiety to "protect" American interests. Only a few days ago there was forwarded to the capital from the Teamsters' Association of this city a protest against the duties levied on imported horses and on the various forms of the "feed" used for horses.

Obviously these are taxes on the materials of industry. Horses in this country, where hippophagy has not yet been introduced, are of no value except for the drawing of and bearing burdens, and their owners, from the humble hucksters up to the best-equipped draymen, employ them simply as instruments of their trade. It is unquestionably desirable that the business of the city and of the country at large shall obtain its transportation of freight as cheaply as possible, and everything that adds to the cost of that function adds to the cost of all commerce and of living. The same argument applies with equal force to the food needed by draught animals. It is part of the general expense account of the community, and to increase it arbitrarily by legislation is distinctly injurious to the community.

It is pleaded, of course, that the taxes are for the advantage of the farmers. But the number of farmers who raise horses is very small compared to the number who have to use them. Even within this class the taxes are paid by a majority for the benefit of a minority, while the number who raise draught horses is utterly insignificant compared with the whole population. The protectionist argument as applied to the farmers who raise food for horses is stronger in regard to mere numbers, but, though they are more numerous than the horse breeders, they are still a minority and a small one. If the rights of the majority were considered in the legislation at Washington they would have no standing at all.

NEW YORK STATE INSURANCE.

On the first page of his statement upon the condition of life insurance business in New York State, Supt. HOTCHKISS says that, although the resolution of inquiry passed the Assembly unanimously, yet it failed of passage by the Senate. Accordingly it did not reach his department, yet he will answer it. He was asked for a "concise statement," and he responds with a pamphlet of twenty-five pages, of which only one—the second—is responsive.

The Superintendent replies that in the last three years the business of New York life companies has decreased $207,000,000, and that of companies outside the State has increased $769,000,000. These are the facts set out on his second page. The remaining twenty-three pages are an unsolicited disquisition, not having even the basis of an unasked question. The Superintendent seems to think necessary an argument to show why the above figures are not to be lamented, and are even something to be boasted about. First, the annual decrease has shrunk to $2,061,000. Certainly this is a great improvement. But it compares with a growth of $250,580,135 by non-State companies in the same year whose remoteness from the scandals explains the improvement—that is, the decrease in loss—by New York companies. What reply would the manager of a private enterprise make to a report showing that his rivals were increasing their business more than a hundred times faster than himself, and that his rate of losses had shrunk to a figure giving hopes, if maintained, of the recovery of his loss in a couple of centuries?

The Superintendent proceeds to say that the business which the New York companies lost was not a good sort of business to do, that expenses are smaller, and that there is reason to hope for larger dividends, although some years of experience will be necessary before this last can be stated as a fact. Admittedly there is a difference of opinion whether deferred dividend policies are good insurance business. It depends upon the conditions of the case, and nobody is so good a judge of personal conditions as he who pays the premiums. Those who want such policies, and those who want to issue them, agree that the limitation upon their issue is unacceptable to them. It is impossible to say how much this business contributes to the growth of non-State companies, but there is one measure of the limitation upon New York business of New York laws. One company from the nature of its business is exempt from the limitations of the recent statutes, although it is conspicuously not exempt from the detriment of the scandal era. Yet this company in 1908 contributed $39,876,283 to the total gain of $46,365,475 by five companies reporting increases, according to the Superintendent's figures. The saving of expenses is a good thing in itself, but assumes a doubtful aspect when associated with the loss of business which those expenses used to produce.

There are other points covered in the twenty-five pages which the Superintendent and his auditor occupy between them, but these will suffice to show how far they wander from making a concise reply to a question which the Superintendent says has not reached him officially. The nature of the reply explains why it is made. It seems to be perceived that some defense is necessary of legislation which is not working as was expected. It is well to make the best of the business now, but it may be asked whether the laws would have been passed if the Superintendent's pamphlet had been prophetic instead of historic.

SUPPRESSING MR. ROOSEVELT.

Mr. BIRRELL, the entertaining essayist who has charge of Ireland for the present British Government, has achieved the previously unprecedented task of suppressing utterances of Mr. ROOSEVELT which were undoubtedly intended for publicity, though the suppression endured only a few months.

Just before leaving office the President wrote to the British Ambassador a letter in which he praised very highly—and very justly—the labors of Sir HORACE PLUNKETT in promoting agricultural betterment in Ireland, and acknowledged the indebtedness of our own country and its Government to Sir HORACE for his sympathy and wise counsel in the same direction. The praise was not only just, as we have said, but pertinent, since Sir HORACE is by long residence and by practice himself an American farmer and stock raiser, with an intimate knowledge of agricultural conditions such as few Americans acquire. The letter was duly forwarded to the British Government, but it never got beyond Mr. BIRRELL's pigeonholes. That gentleman had already forced the retirement of Sir HORACE PLUNKETT from a station of great usefulness in Ireland, and he was not quite large enough to make public or even to communicate to Sir HORACE a testimonial of such value from so eminent an authority.

By some means not now clear the letter was published in an American agricultural paper, and republished in England. Mr. BIRRELL is coming in for some pretty rough criticism from all parties, even his Irish friends recognizing that he has done them a disservice. It is related of the late THOMAS B. REED that, calling at the White House and being informed that President HARRISON "could not be seen," he retired muttering: "Has he become so small as that?" It is a remark which is freely made as to Mr. BIRRELL's pettiness.

HATS AND BALDNESS.

Surgeon J. O. COBB of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service is of the opinion that baldness is not congenital, excepting, possibly, in cases where the son inherits his father's lofty brow; that it is not due to dandruff, to parasites, or to any skin disease, and that the hair follicles, once atrophied, cannot be restored. The sole cause of baldness is the constricting bands of hats. Men whose heads are of domelike conformation are most subject to the pressure of their hats, and, above the zone of the hatband, are most afflicted with calvities. In The New York Medical Journal Dr. COBB says:

> If a man's head is very wide, or if he is very prominent fore and aft, that man will become bald in time, because such a person, to make his hat fit snugly, invariably pulls it down tight. The man with low brow and thick, heavy hair rarely is bald. If one wears the hair long and thick it acts as a cushion and prevents in a large measure the constriction caused by the hatband.

The ringletted cavaliers, we imagine, were not subject to this affection, and the close-cropped roundheads who overthrew them were really responsible for the modern fashion of baldness. Dr. COBB suggests that, in this age of contrivances in shoes, suspenders, and braces, somebody ought to be ingenious enough to make a hat that will stay on in a breeze without impeding the circulation in the scalp. Invention that takes the perverse forms of hair tonics, restorers, and apparatus for electrical massage would thus be forestalled. At present only low-browed gentemen can wear hats and keep their hair.

PROFANITY AMONG BOYS.

The statement made in a letter to THE TIMES this morning by Mr. GEORGE WRIGHT that blasphemous and degrading language is increasing not only among the illiterate but "among those in the higher walks of life" may be doubted. Quite possibly profanity is increasing among boys.

Oaths and their imitations are introduced in speech for their exclamatory effect, not primarily as a sign of irreverence. They are usually meaningless, affording the voice merely the opportunity to express elemental moods of impatience, braggadocio, and the like. The use of "swear words" is essentially a sign of illiteracy; an expletive means something serving to fill out, and expletives are employed by persons who have not sufficient command of language to select fitting words to convey their thoughts and feelings. The result is ridiculous when it is not painful. A profane man does not strengthen his parts of speech, he weakens them by his profanity. Parents and school teachers would do well to make the boys understand the principle that, when suitable words are lacking, silence is wisest.

THE ACQUITTAL OF BRANDENBURG.

The vindication BRANDENBURG gets by his acquittal is gained at the expense of Mr. HASTINGS. The charge against BRANDENBURG was that of grand larceny in the second degree in accepting from THE TIMES $500 for an article purporting to have been written by ex-President CLEVELAND, it being charged that the article was spurious and the signature a forgery. Judge FITZGERALD in his charge told the jury that the only thing for them to consider was whether the defendant by misrepresentations stole $500 or not. He further instructed the jurors in these words:

> Before you can convict of misrepresentation you must be convinced, firstly, that the statements of the defendant were made with the intent to deceive, and, secondly, that they were relied upon by the officers of the corporation to a sufficient degree to induce them to purchase the article. If you believe that they relied on their own investigations you must acquit the defendant because the money was not got by the color and aid of his representations.

The testimony given during the trial by members of the staff of THE TIMES had, of course, made it clear to the jury that the article was accepted and paid for, not upon the representations of BRANDENBURG, but upon the attestation of its genuineness by Mr. F. S. HASTINGS, co-executor of the estate of GROVER CLEVELAND. The member of THE TIMES staff to whom the article was referred after it was brought to this office by BRANDENBURG testified as follows:

> Q.—Did you rely on Mr. BRANDENBURG's statement sufficiently to authorize the purchase before Mr. HASTINGS had said it was all right? A.—No.
> Q.—It was the Hastings letter which moved you to buy? A.—Yes.

It being an established and undisputed fact that the article was purchased on the belief in its genuineness inspired by Mr. HASTINGS's statements and not on BRANDENBURG's representations, under the law, which was put before the jury in the Judge's citations from statutes and decisions bearing on the case, a verdict of acquittal necessarily followed.

We have said that BRANDENBURG gets his acquittal at the expense of Mr. HASTINGS. In support of that statement the facts may once more be submitted to a candid world. When the article was brought to THE TIMES by BRANDENBURG it at once became evident that an attestation of its genuineness quite independent of any he could give was necessary. BRANDENBURG had produced a bill of sale, consisting of a letter written by him to Mr. HASTINGS as executor offering to pay the estate $500 for one of a series of articles which he "had under way with Mr. CLEVELAND prior to his sickness," followed by an acceptance of the offer signed by "F. S. HASTINGS, executor of the estate of GROVER CLEVELAND." As was shown in testimony THE TIMES at once sent the article to Mr. HASTINGS as the one it supposed to be best qualified to pass upon its authenticity. We here subjoin in chronological order the various positions taken by Mr. HASTINGS which make up the interesting record of his relation to the Cleveland article, so far as it is known to us:

> Aug. 21, 1908—Acceptance of BRANDENBURG's offer of $500.
> Aug. 21—Letter to THE TIMES saying he was "cognizant of an article written by GROVER CLEVELAND, which by oral agreement he assigned to Mr. BRANDENBURG," and saying further that, "with Mrs. CLEVELAND's assent," he had made written assignment of the article to BRANDENBURG, with the right to dispose thereof.
> Aug. 29—In a letter to THE TIMES: "I have examined the signature submitted to me by Mr. YBARRA and compared it with others of Mr. CLEVELAND's, and believe the one submitted by Mr. YBARRA is genuine. I have talked with Mrs. CLEVELAND since she telegraphed you yesterday. Her telegram was sent you under a misapprehension, and she authorizes me to say that the agreement with Mr. BRANDENBURG is valid. I have no reason to believe the article furnished you by Mr. BRANDENBURG purporting to have been written by Mr. CLEVELAND is not genuine."
> Sept. 23—Interview written by Mr. HASTINGS and published in THE TIMES: "The facts are that there is abundant evidence that Mr. CLEVELAND was engaged in writing an article for publication some time prior to his death, and that this article was sold by him and actually delivered to a literary agent prior to his death. * * * Naturally, in view of the doubt cast by various critics upon the authenticity of the document, I took great pains to investigate all the conditions surrounding the transaction between Mr. CLEVELAND and the literary agent, and I can state positively that I have had no evidence which would warrant any doubt of the genuineness of the article in question."
> Sept. 25—Letter sent to THE TIMES, after referring to the statement written by himself and published in THE TIMES of Sept. 23: "I now desire to say that there has since come to my knowledge 'evidence' which leaves in my mind no doubt of the fact that the said article was not written by GROVER CLEVELAND."
> Sept. 25—When asked by THE TIMES to show the "evidence" that had produced this change of opinion: "I have no evidence. You must see Mr. CARLISLE."
> June 25, 1909—From Mr. HASTINGS's deposition, read at the Brandenburg trial, the question referring to the letter of Sept. 25, 1908, quoted above, in which he repudiated the article: "Q.—Did you yourself write that letter? A.—I did not. Q.—Who wrote it? A.—I don't know."

The letters of Mr. HASTINGS written prior to the publication of the Cleveland article—on Aug. 30, 1908—were considered by THE TIMES to be an authoritative and ample attestation of its genuineness. Nobody could ask better authority. After Mr. HASTINGS's remarkable and unexplained reversal of opinion, failing to procure from any quarter, although it made diligent efforts to that end, any of the "evidence" of spuriousness referred to in his letter, THE TIMES on Sept. 28, 1908, turned the matter over to Mr. JEROME, as set forth in a statement published in its issue of the following day:

> The charge that the article was a forgery is a charge that a crime has been committed, punishable under the laws of the State of New York. Determination of this matter is, therefore, one of grave concern to the people. As THE TIMES is unable to ascertain the facts, it has informed the District Attorney of the criminal charge in question, in the hope and expectation that with the resources at his command he may be more successful.

The verdict acquits BRANDENBURG of the charge of larceny in stealing the purchase price of the article through misrepresentation. Without Mr. HASTINGS's certifications of genuineness THE TIMES never would have bought the article, and that was made perfectly clear in the testimony. Mr. F. S. HASTINGS's part in the affair is one that he alone, if anybody, can explain.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Independence Carried to Excess.

As Senators and Representatives take themselves—and, indeed, should be taken—rather seriously, and have an abiding sense of their own importance, even as compared with the inventors of flying machines, Monday's episode at Fort Myer was not calculated to make them love the WRIGHTS, to become enthusiastic over their achievements, or to appropriate the money which the Signal Corps wants for the establishment of an aerial adjunct to its means of military communication.

Of course the brothers are not to blame for the issuance of the rash invitations that brought the lawmakers afield on a hot afternoon, and it is well known that they loath the rôle of public exhibitors, especially when circumstances make themselves an essential part of the exhibit. Still, as the statesmen had assembled in good faith and good will, it does seem as if the WRIGHTS might have strained a point or two, concealed their impatience at the interruption of their busy day, and, by taking a turn or two around the parade ground, have won the efficient gratitude of the men from whom they are soon in effect to ask, if not for favors, at least for favorable consideration. Apparently the atmospheric conditions were not such as to make a short flight impossible or even dangerous, and, great men as the WRIGHTS undoubtedly are, they are not so great that something like a meeting of Congress in recognition of what they have done was not a high compliment.

Then, too, it was a bit unfortunate that WILBUR WRIGHT should have denied with such emphasis that he or his brother had promised to make a flight at a definite time, announced beforehand. As a matter of fact, they haven't, and at present they can hardly be expected to do so, but some time or other, if their machine is to be of much practical utility in war or peace, it will be necessary for them thus to prove their superiority to ordinary meteorological disturbances. Had they met the little emergency forced upon them Monday, it would have done much to remove the impression that flying machines, even theirs, are still in the experimental stage of development, and not yet to be trusted or depended on for actual service.

But probably the lack of diplomacy shown by the WRIGHTS on this, as on several other occasions, here and abroad, will increase, rather than decrease, their reputation with the general public, as showing their unlikeness to the ordinary promoters of inventions and proving that they are real geniuses.

Never Took as Much as Half.

According to Receiver WHITRIDGE, street railway companies lose less through the pocketing of fares by conductors than they do by the failure of passengers to pay them. That is as may be, and the relative proportions of the two leaks are not easily demonstrable. But that all fares collected are not rung up on the registers is known to everybody who has ever taken the trouble to note the doings of the conductors for any length of time, and in a Brooklyn court this week evidence was presented which showed that in some cases, at least, their stealing is on a large scale.

The conductor on trial for defrauding the company seems to have been of a methodical turn of mind, with a taste for keeping accounts with himself. At any rate, in his possession was found a little book in which he had carefully set down each day the number of fares he had given to the company and beside it the sum which he had appropriated. If the figures were correctly interpreted, he drew the line for permissible—or safe—larceny just this side of half. On one day the entry was: "Fares, 237; profits, $11.05." As it is evident that the man would not have dared to keep all the money he took in except 80 cents, this apparently means that he gave the company the $11.85 which the 237 fares would have made, and that he took 221 other fares for his own use. On another day the record was also "fares, 237," but for some mysterious reason the "profits" were a little less—$10.45. That is, he gave the company twelve more nickels out of the same total. On a day when he seems to have taken in only 205 fares in all, the fellow was content with a meagre booty of $2, but his average was something over $6, which, added to his regular wage, made a rather snug income for a downtrodden lab'rin' man.

He was caught after a comparatively brief career, convicted, and for this and the forging of recommendations, was sent to prison for not less than two and a half years. Of course his case cannot be typical, else would the operation of street railways be impossible, but the possibility of stealing at such a rate as this makes one wonder why the companies invest so much money in fare registering machines. Presumably the great majority of car conductors are honest, and even the dishonest ones are probably less grasping than this ambitious servitor of the "B. R. T."

One Point Was Not Surrendered.

It is significant as well as curious that the one concession which the Pittsburg strikers did not obtain from their employers was the abandonment of the requirement that the men in the company's service should not drink intoxicants, even when not on duty.

This the men demanded, on the ground that such a regulation was an unwarrantable infringement on personal liberty, and so it would have been universally considered only a few years ago, but now the effects of alcohol in diminishing efficiency are better known than they formerly were, and the corporation that gave in on every other point stuck firmly to this one.

The men, wisely, did not insist on their "right" to drink when they are not at work, abandoning it, no doubt, because they know in their hearts that the demand for constant sobriety from workers in positions involving safety of life for many besides themselves is entirely reasonable.

The rapid spread of compulsory abstinence of this kind is a notable feature of contemporary history, and it certainly does prohibit, whatever may be said about the other sort of prohibition.

BOOKS FOR THE BLIND.

Plea for the Continued Use of the New York Point Type.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The New York Free Circulating Library for the Blind was established by me, for its founder, Richard Randall Ferry, who was a blind man. It was incorporated in 1895, and in 1903 it was transferred to the New York Public Library.

Having discovered that many of my friends who helped me from the beginning are confusing this work with that of the Association for the Blind, for which Miss Holt is working, I feel impelled to write to you to protest against that which I consider would be a great wrong to the blind, viz.: to try to deprive them in the schools and elsewhere of the New York Point Type.

Mr. Wait, the inventor, has unselfishly and impersonally given a lifetime to bring the New York Point System of embossed print to the point where its usefulness is almost limitless. Mr. Ferry expressed a decided preference for it, and all the blind people I know prefer it to any other type.

After long and careful investigation the Xavier Society and the Society for Providing Evangelical Religious Literature for the Blind decided in favor of the New York Point, and I am told 600 of the Ziegler Magazines are in New York Point to 21 in American Braille.

The library to-day circulates 500 or 600 books in New York Point to 22 in American Braille, (which, by the way, is a very different thing from European Braille, with which type it is often confused.) It seems a dreadful thing to me, for those living in New York State, and New York City, to allow any persons to come in from other States with a system of print which can be proved to be inferior, and tell us what we should do in our public schools, &c., when at 412 Ninth Avenue we already have an established school for the blind, and there are in other places many other schools—37, I believe—that use the New York Point, and find it everything to be desired. It is to be hoped that the Board of Education and others in authority will look well into this matter, and that they will be urged to do so by the influential citizens of New York, in order that the great wrong shall be prevented of thrusting aside the wonderful work for the blind accomplished by those most competent to judge, and who have made practical use of the New York Point for forty years or more.

They should not have American Braille forced upon them without first giving New York's own type at least a trial in the public schools.

Miss Keller is certainly a wonderful woman, but she would, it seems to me, be biased in favor of any type for which her friends stood and it would be most natural for her to take the stand chosen by her teacher, therefore putting her forward as a reason for choosing a type for all the blind, against the teachers and those interested for forty or more years, seems most unreasonable.

Miss Holt has said so many times that she had much difficulty in having a Bible produced at the library, I think I will explain how it was. In the first place nearly every reader at the library has been presented with a Bible and has it in his own home. The space was very limited in the room we were using for books at the time mentioned, and it would have been quite as difficult for the librarian who had just commenced her duties, and was unfamiliar with raised prints, to find any other title quickly. There is no American Braille Bible.

I am very sorry that any unpleasant feeling has arisen, for the sole object of those first working for the welfare of the blind has been to make this afflicted class of people happy, to educate them, and as far as their strength will allow, help them to help themselves, and when they cannot do this, to lovingly protect and care for them.

I wish homes (like St. Luke's for instance) could be provided by the generous citizens of New York, where the blind would, also, be allowed to earn what they can, and yet not have to depend upon their earnings, after they have graduated from just such a school as the Institution for the Blind, 412 Ninth Avenue.

The pupils are here taught as in other schools, and with a very high standard, and are also taught type writing, sewing, basketmaking, &c.

The Custom of Squeezing Hands.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would like to give a word of caution to many young men who on shaking hands consider it necessary to squeeze the hand. Some do it thoughtlessly, or to evince the warmth of their feeling sincerely. Some do it because they are strong and wish to show it, often to a smaller, weaker man. In some cases great injury is done. The anatomy of the hand is very delicate, and it is a terrible shame to have that fine piece of adjustment injured. Squeezing sets up in some cases an inflammation near the joint where the little finger is attached. Well-bred foreigners take the fingers only in shaking hands. Much expression can be given in such a handshake pressure to a fair extent harmlessly made. It is when the whole hand is grasped by a large, muscular hand and the pressure given on the finger joints, from the little finger to the forefinger, that danger comes. A surgeon or an artist or a pianist, I have no doubt, often has reason to be indignant at such treatment. I know a surgeon who says he felt like knocking down a young man who squeezed and injured, for the while, his right hand, which was engaged daily in important work. I trust that this letter will do something toward lessening the practice.

A VICTIM.

THE WAGE COST.

The Existing Tariff Far Exceeds the Difference Here and Abroad.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Gordon's letter in THE TIMES of today on the subject of the wages in the iron and steel industry seems to me to overlook entirely the question under consideration. This does not relate to the "wage fund" nor the "net wealth production."

The question is whether the Republican Party will keep its pledge to revise the tariff so that the duties "will equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, together with a reasonable profit to American industries." The discussion as to percentage of wages is of value in this way. If the total wage cost of the production in America of any particular product is less than the duties imposed upon similar articles produced abroad it is obvious that the duty is greater than the difference in the cost of production. Foreign manufacturers have to buy their materials. They have to build factories, and in some form or another pay interest on the capital invested. The rate of interest in this country is not in general any higher now than it is in England, France, or Germany. The whole question comes back to the difference in wage cost. There is no doubt that in many lines of industry the wage cost per unit of production is no greater in this country than it is in foreign countries, although the wages per day may be higher. But inasmuch as the existing tariff is so far in excess of the difference in cost of production, tariff reformers are willing to put the present argument, not on an inquiry as to the difference in the wage cost, but as to the entire wage cost.

The figures Mr. Gordon gives are from Page 25 of the "Census Bulletin of Manufactures for 1905," and include the cost of mining iron and making it into pig, as well as the manufactures therefrom. My figures related only to the manufactures of iron and steel, and were taken from Page 678 of "The United States Statistical Abstract for 1905." The totals differ, but the percentages do not vary essentially. I did not include the salaries, as Mr. Gordon does. I spoke only of wages. He maintains that the salaries should be added to the wages. Probably he would not go before the American people, and insist that the tariff on structural iron should be kept at $10 per net ton in order to enable the payment of salaries of $50,000 or $100,000 per year to some of the officials of the great steel corporations. No doubt the excessive tariff and the consequent excessive price which the tariff enables American producers to obtain from American buyers do tend to increase these great salaries, but nobody pretends to justify the existing tariff on that ground.

However, let us assume for the sake of the argument that the salaries paid should be included. The report of the United States Steel Corporation for the year covered by the last Government census of manufactures gives the total of salaries and wages at 22½ per cent. of the entire value of the product of the company. This is about the percentage given by the census of 1905 as the percentage of wages and salaries paid in producing the entire product of the iron and steel industry of the country. How can a duty on iron and steel products in excess of 25 per cent. be justified?

Mr. Gordon's epithet of "free trader" does not make me unhappy. I am a freeman. My radical objection to the present tariff and to that embodied in the Senate Tariff bill is that it covertly taxes the poor by increasing the price of almost all the necessaries of life, and turns the proceeds into the coffers of those who are already rich. This is industrial servitude. The American people are beginning to see how those who profit by these exactions combine to increase each other's gain. They are in a minority, and in the end will be obliged to yield to the will of the people. "We raise a standard to which the wise and honest will repair. The event is in the hand of God."

A TORY'S REJOINDER.

Blames Americans for Opening Sores of the Revolution.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Most Canadians on this side of the line will agree in the main with the sentiments expressed in your editorial entitled, "The Ultra British Canadians." It is indeed a pity that the old sores should be kept open; but it doesn't seem to occur to you that it is the American attitude that is doing the most to keep them open. One phrase in the editorial expresses it perfectly: "Such is the frame of mind of Canadian officials," you say, "whose blood still boils as they think of the defeats of 1776 and 1812." Now no Canadian's blood boils at the defeats of these epochs, for the simple reason that they are well offset by a preponderance of victories on our side, particularly during the war of 1812; but our blood does boil at the fatuous ignorance of those Americans who think that the two wars with Great Britain were an uninterrupted procession of American victories. The Bunker Hill monument typifies this spirit. Erected on the scene of a British victory, this insolent shaft proclaims an American triumph.

The war of 1812 was a rather sorry affair at best; but the greater part of such martial glories as it offers belongs to the British. Many brilliant actions, of course, redound to the credit of the Americans, but it takes a great deal of glory to offset the downright ignominy of Detroit and Bladensburg. In estimating Canadian opinion, Americans are apt to forget that a great many of us "ultra British Canadians" are the descendents of American Tories. It would be foolish to harp on the outrages perpetrated during and after the war upon our ancestors, who believed as strongly in their cause as did any of the so-called "patriots" of that day. But the influence of the "Loyalist" element is still strong, and helps to account for some of the feelings that THE TIMES seems to think so unworthy.

A Canadian celebration of the war of 1812 is now planned. If carried out, it will be the greatest lesson in history ever administered to the American people. A frank acceptance of that lesson and an abatement of your ignorant vaunting of your military prowess will invite a friendly response from Canada. England seems to care very little one way or the other, for all the skirmishes of the rebellion and the war of 1812 put together would hardly have made a man's-size battle.

EXPRESS OVERCHARGES.

Individuals Are Constantly Victimized, but Fail to Complain.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of "J. P. D." in regard to express frauds stirs up a matter that has been rankling in my breast for many years. For eighteen years I have been selling goods which are sent by express almost exclusively, and number thousands of packages per year. I regret to be forced to hold of any class of business men in this country the opinion I do of the express company employes. In speaking thus generally I do not, of course, mean everybody, but more particularly of those who deliver packages. Overcharge seems to be very common, and during the holidays it is quite the rule. I have had several men discharged for this. Agents tell me it is hard to get good men for the small wages paid. Drivers tell me faithful service brings little or no encouragement from the companies.

The goods I sell go to individuals and not to business firms. The way they are victimized is startling. Complaints frequently bring redress, but it makes a lot of trouble and correspondence, and seriously affects re-orders.

Friends frequently send me fruit from the country. It is the exception when the packages are not broken open and a large part of the contents abstracted. Repeatedly I have ordered fruit, charges prepaid, and have had to pay the charges over again, no "paid" mark appearing on package. A complaint brought a refund, but why such a seeming system of graft?

If no one complains how will agents and officers know? These charges are mostly collected from the people who only occasionally receive packages by express, and are ignorant of what they should pay, if at all. Many do not complain; then the driver is just that much ahead. If complaint is made all he has to do is to call it a mistake and disgorge.

MUST MAKE LESS NOISE.

Aldermen Pass Ordinance Against Street Hucksters and Peddlers.

The anti-noise ordinance aimed at street hawkers and peddlers which has been before the Aldermen for over a year was finally passed by them yesterday. The ordinance provides that no peddler, vendor, or huckster who plies a trade or calling of whatsoever nature on the streets and thoroughfares of the city shall blow or use any horn or other instrument, nor make any improper noise tending to disturb the peace or quiet of a neighborhood, for the purpose of directing attention to his wares.

A penalty of $5 is fixed for violation of the ordinance. The only reservation made is that the measure shall not apply to what is commonly known as "Paddy's Market," on Ninth Avenue, between Thirty-eighth and Forty-second Streets. The exception of this territory was one of the reasons on account of which the ordinance was held up for so long. It was introduced by Alderman Schloss in March, 1908.

A request for $50,000, presented by Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards, $20,000 to be used for repairs on the steam-dumping machines at Riker's Island, which have been condemned by the Government Steamboat Inspection Service, and $30,000 to increase the dumping facilities at the North River and 158th, 134th, and Ninety-seventh Streets, and Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, was refused by the board.

Alderman Brown, the Republican leader, opposed the appropriation strenuously, declaring that the keeping of the boats in comission longer would simply afford an opportunity for the employes to loaf at the city's expense.

Resolutions of regret on the deaths of "Florrie" Sullivan and "Marty" Keese were adopted by a rising vote.

Park Commissioner Smith was voted $14,658 to defray the expense of allowing vacations during the Summer to his per diem employes, authorized by the last Legislature.

Off to the Budapest Medical Congress.

Dr. W. H. Tolman, director of the Museum of Safety and Sanitation, sailed yesterday on the Rotterdam for Europe to attend the International Medical Congress in Budapest. He will also represent Brown University at the celebration of the 500th anniversary of the founding of the University of Leipsic.

Business in Texas.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For the enlightenment of those accustomed to the conventionalism of Old World business intercourse, or even to the comparative formalities observable in these parts of the New World, I quote the following circular, received to-day from a thriving town in Texas:

> Gentlemen: Should you receive advice that I am figuring on becoming connected with —— & Co., or purchasing their business, which they have offered me, just consider the advice incorrect.
> In explanation, —— having highly recommended my becoming interested with —— & Co., who seem to be closely connected with the —— Company, my attention was attracted enough to investigate, as he claimed them to be such fine fellows and that he had known them for about three years, but that they had been robbed lately by some firm and needed some help in the way of capital. However, after working with them a short time I decided better "hands off."
> I also found that Mr. —— had only known these people a short time, and, further, that —— as well as —— and —— are the kind of people that do not live very long in one place. I understand Mr. —— has a weakness for working firms for expense money on pretense of taking a situation. I also found that —— had not been robbed by any one, but from what I can learn, "the other fellow."

Is it a wonder that when one needs a pistol in Texas he needs it badly?

Increasing Profanity Among Boys.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Of late we see accounts both in the United States and Canada calling attention to how profane and bad language is increasing among the boys. The truth of this cannot be denied by any one who happens to come in contact with the groups of boys who congregate in public places and on the streets. This is really a sad state of affairs, as if such a low and demoralizing habit is to be allowed to continue and become a fixed one among the coming youths, it cannot do otherwise than eventually lead us to become a very irreverent and disrespectful race. Blasphemous and other degrading language has become very common, not only among the lower classes, but also among those in the higher walks of life. It has been stated that the schools might assist greatly in checking this evil among the children. But I do not think they can accomplish very much without profanity being discontinued by the older people and by their parents in their homes.

GEORGE WRIGHT.

Halifax, N. S., June 26, 1909.

THE ADVOCATE.

He was a freckled, barefoot lad, with bright and twinkling eye,
Who doffed his cap and halted me as I was passing by;
The ball park was across the street, and from within there came
The shouts and cries that told the tale of an exciting game;
Quite breathlessly he spoke and said:
  "Please, Mister, there's a lad Lives right across the street from there who hardly ever had A chance to see a game like this, and he's got fifteen cents
And only needs another dime to get inside the fence."

"Dear lad is this," methought, "to think of his unhappy chum;
He would not go to see the game unless his friend could come."
And then the youngster spoke again, with childish eloquence:
He never saw a game except through knotholes in the fence.
His parents are quite needy folks, and,
  oh! if he could get Inside he'd be the happiest he ever has been yet.
You see, a knothole is all right, but in some splendid play
You cannot see it all because the knothole's in the way!"

"Poor lad! his is a sorry life," with feeling I agreed;
"One long denial of delight!" and he said: "Yes, indeed!
I guess nobody ever knows how often he has cried
And hurried up and wiped his eyes because he's not inside.
You see, the other boys all need their money—every cent—
To get inside, and just a little while ago they went To see the game, and oh! he felt his heart was broken then,
I hardly think the chances are he'll ever smile again!"

Who could resist such eloquence? I found the coin and said:
"Now hurry up and find the lad, and blessings on his head.
Tell him I hope the game will be the best
  one ever played,
All full of hits and steals and slides and double plays well made.
And blessings on you, too, my boy, for thus to aid your chum Proves you a loyal friend indeed—who is the youngster? Come, Tell me his name." And then he rubbed his half-red eyes. "You see,"
He said, and started for the gate—"the little boy was me!"

HAMMERSTEIN BACK; TELLS PLANS TO-DAY

Impresario Receives Hosts of Callers at the Victoria Theatre.

STARTS RIGHT TO WORK

Preparing for His Season of Educational Opera—Now Wears Gray Fedora Hat.

Although, while performances are being given in the Roof Garden, Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre is closed, quite as many people went into the theatre last night as took the elevator to the roof. Finally a crowd at the ticket window asked what the attraction was downstairs.

"If there's a good show in there we might as well go in; it's cool enough to-night," said some one.

"There's a good show in there all right," answered the man at the window, "but tickets are not on sale. Mr. Hammerstein's returned."

And so he had. The impresario arrived on the Kronprinz Wilhelm earlier in the day and went at once to his old rooms in the Victoria Theatre. Now everybody who knows Mr. Hammerstein knows also where to find him when his Opera House is not open.

The visitors found the opera producer in his cheeriest mood sitting in his workroom, with his desk and piano. Sometimes he played on the piano and sometimes he ate one of the gingersnaps on his desk, but throughout the day and evening he remained probably the most enthusiastic man in New York.

"Just wait," he said in his most mysterious manner; "just wait until to-morrow and I'll tell you what I've got for next season."

Mr. Hammerstein confirmed the report that he intended to do "Salome" at the Chatelet in Paris next Spring, and added that he was going to produce "Elektra" there, too.

"I have been very busy on my trip abroad," he said. "I left America on April 12, and since that time I have visited most of the capitals and principal cities of Europe. I went even as far as Constantinople, where the opera season was in full blast."

Mr. Hammerstein will get to work at once on his "Educational Opera," with which he will open his season at the Manhattan on Aug. 30.

He returned to New York in a gray Fedora, which gave him a strange appearance. He explained that his daughter's report that he had lost his silk hat in Paris was only too true.

"I stopped over after that to get another hat, and bought a Panama of such wonderful texture that I would willingly have lost three more ships to have acquired it," he said.

As it was, Mr. Hammerstein was an added passenger on the Kronprinz, which he boarded at Cherbourg.

NO CHANGE IN OPERA HEAD.

Report of Gatti-Casazza's Resignation Absolutely Without Foundation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 29.—As the result of further inquiries to-day, I learn conclusively that there is not a word of truth in the report of Giulio Gatti-Casazza's resignation as Director of the Metropolitan Opera. There has been no meeting between him and W. K. Vanderbilt or Otto H. Kahn of the Metropolitan Board of Directors.

His contract has two years yet to run, and the difficulties between him and Andreas Dippel were fully arranged. Everything is working smoothly, and both Dippel and Gatti-Casazza understand that the Directors will not tolerate an effort by either to embarrass the other.

EDUCATIONAL THEATRE FAILS.

Directors Petition to Dissolve Corporation Owing to Lack of Funds.

Supreme Court Justice Giegerich issued an order yesterday directing Attorney General O'Malley and Miss A. M. Herz to show cause on Aug. 9 why the Educational Theatre, at 217 East Eighteenth Street, should not be dissolved as a corporation.

The petitioners, who are also members of the Board of Directors, include Samuel L. Clemens, (Mark Twain,) Robert J. Collier, Charles S. Miner, and Otto H. Kahn, say the theatre, which was incorporated under the laws of the State of New York in October, 1908, was to be supported by voluntary contributions, and the necessary funds to carry it on successfully have not been forthcoming.

"A Gentleman from Mississippi" Moves

"A Gentleman from Mississippi," the comedy of Washington life, was transferred last night from the Bijou Theatre to the New Amsterdam Roof Garden, where it is planned to continue it throughout the Summer. The scenery and costumes of the play have been entirely changed, but the cast, headed by Thomas Wise and Douglas Fairbanks, remains the same. The roof garden has also been redecorated. The company got an enthusiastic reception last night from a crowded house.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Nora Bayes, who has been absent for a week from "The Follies of 1909" at the Jardin de Paris, returned to the cast last night.

Chester Meneely will set going on Saturday the set of cathedral chimes which have been hung 100 feet high in the steel tower in Steeplechase Park, Coney Island. The bells are a memorial of the proprietor, Mr. Tilyou, to his daughter, Gladys, who died four years ago.

William C. Carl, organist of the First Presbyterian Church, who was recently decorated by the French Government, will sail for Europe on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria July 3 to visit Alexander Guilmant, the French organist.

William Morris has engaged Frederic V. Bowers to present his sketch, "Here Comes a College Boy," at his music halls for six weeks.

George H. Brennan has engaged Hamilton Ravelle for the principal male part of "The Coast of Chance," by Eugene Presbry, which opens next season in New York.

Frank Keenan, who has been engaged by Henry B. Harris for the principal role in the new play, "The Heights," by William Anthony McGuire, will sail to-day on the Lusitania for London.

Henry B. Harris has engaged Ralph Stuart to create one of the principal roles in Channing Pollock's latest play, "Such a Little Queen," which opens the season at the Hackett Theatre on Monday, Aug. 30.

On Monday, July 12, Joseph Weber will transfer to his theatre, the Weber, his production of "The Climax," now being presented at Daly's. It is planned to continue the play throughout the Summer.

As an added feature of the bill at the Majestic Theatre this week the management has engaged Maximus the Great, a Russian strong man.

BOY AT PLAY KILLED BY CAR.

Police Reserves Called Out to Rescue the Motorman from an Angry Throng.

An excited and angry crowd of tenement dwellers in DeKalb Avenue, near Sumner, Brooklyn, who saw Harry Rosenthal, 7 years old, of 875 DeKalb Avenue, run over and killed by Car 743 of the DeKalb Avenue line shortly after 6 o'clock last night, threatened to wreak vengeance on the motorman, John O'Connor. They were prevented from doing him harm by the timely arrival of the police reserves from the Gates Avenue Station.

The boy was playng with his companions near his home when, according to the motorman, he ran off the sidewalk directly in front of the car, which was going east loaded with passengers from Manhattan. Every effort was made to reach the boy's body, but it was so tightly wedged under the forward trucks of the car that nothng could be done until the wrecking car arrived.

O'Connor was placed under arrest charged with homicide.

MRS. CARRIE B. KILGORE DEAD.

Was the First Woman to be Admitted to the Pennsylvania Bar.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—Mrs. Carrie Burnham Kilgore, the first woman to be admitted to the bar in this State, died to-day at her home in Swarthmore, near here. She enjoyed a large practice. Born in Vermont in 1838, she taught school in that State and in Wisconsin, and later studied medicine, receiving the degree of M. D. from a New York co-educational institution in 1864.

Seven years later Mrs. Kilgore decided to take up law, and had a hard time because of the hardships placed in the path of women ambitious to become members of the bar. She was finally admitted to the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania in 1881. After being graduated she was admitted to the local, State, and Federal courts in this city, and in due time was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of the United States. She was married to Damon Y. Kilgore in 1876 and was left a widow in 1888. A few years ago Mrs. Kilgore became interested in ballooning and made an ascension, remaining in the air several hours.

W. H. Hamilton Dies Suddenly.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 29.—William H. Hamilton, for eight years Postmaster at Ocean Grove, died suddenly this afternoon while lying on a bed in a tent at 59 Bethesda Block, where he and his family were summering. It is believed that heart failure, caused by acute indigestion, was the cause of death. Mr. Hamilton was taken ill yesterday. He was so much beter this morning that he went to his office. He had a relapse and was forced to return home. Even then the serious nature of the illness was not suspected, and his death was entirely unexpected. He is survived by his wife and a twelve-year-old daughter, Katherine.

AIRSHIPS A FEATURE IN PAIN'S NEW SHOW

Flying Machines and Other Air Craft Introduced at Opening Last Night.

BATTLE IN THE CLOUDS

Elaborate Ballets and Acrobatic Feats in the Arena During the Intermissions.

Henry J. Pain's latest pyrotechnic spectacle was produced last night at Brighton Beach for the first time this season. The display this year is on a more elaborate scale than has been the case in the past, and it is something more than a mere exhibition of fireworks.

The spectacle is called "The Battle in the Clouds," and the scenes are woven about a definite plot which teems with warlike interest. Flying machines, balloons, and other aircraft figure prominently. The scene represents a war between the inhabitants of the City of Science, as it is supposed to exist on the earth some fifty years hence, and an attacking party from the planet Mars. As the programme sets forth "it is the age of electricity and chemistry, of ether, radium, liquid air, and other forces," and everything is strictly up to date.

The scene opens with the city en fête to celebrate the opening of communication with Mars. A strange craft suddenly appears from the direction of the war-like planet, and the inhabitants of the earth city are thrown into confusion.

After a scene of considerable rejoicing the Martians declare war, and the remainder of the spectacle shows what a contest in the clouds will probably be like half a century hence. The battle affords an opportunity for Mr. Pain to introduce many of his most famous pyrotechnic displays.

During the intermissions several acrobats perform in the arena, and there are ballet dances on a large scale.

The spectacle is held in the large amphitheatre at Brighton Beach, and last night the place was crowded. The performance will be given nightly.

HARRIMAN HOUSE SOON READY

Workmen Expect to Finish Mountain Estate in Time for His Return.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., June 29.—The million-dollar home of E. H. Harriman on the mountain top at Arden, Orange County, is nearing completion. A large force of workmen is working at high tension to have it finished by Mr. Harriman's return from abroad, as it is understood he gave orders to that effect before leaving.

The principal approach to the house will be by the incline railway route from the main line of the Erie Railroad, and no one without proper credentials will be allowed on the cars. The plans call for the construction of a gateman's lodge at the beginning of the railway.

GAVE HIS WIFE AN ICED BATH.

Sullivan Spends a Night in a Cell for His Hot Weather Remedy.

Michael Sullivan spent last night in jail because he insisted on giving his wife a bath in ice water. He tried to explain to Magistrate Steinert, in the Essex Market Court that he was doing it for his wife's good and because he had heard that the way to keep healthy in hot weather was to take plenty of cool baths. The Magistrate gave him five days, but cut it to one when Mrs. Sullivan, who had dressed and got to court, pleaded for him.

Sullivan was prevented from giving his wife as much of a bath as he evidently desired, because her screams when he immersed her in the cold water were heard by Policeman Dawson of the Madison Street Station, who rescued Mrs. Sullivan from her husband.

The Story for the "Fourth"

A Husband by Proxy

By JAAK STEELE

A tale of love, mystery and adventure in which the services of a handsome young lawyer-detective are engaged by a beautiful girl who must be married by a certain date in order to receive a large inheritance. After entering the girl's employ as mock-husband, the lawyer is engaged by a big insurance company to investigate the death of a man who, the Coroner claimed, died from natural causes. Although the reader can put two and two together, he has by no means reached the sum total of the book. It is a "ripping" good story of the mystery class and bound to be a big seller.

Desmond FitzGerald, Inc., - Publishers, - New York

A MAN WITHOUT PRINCIPLE?

Unconventional Fascinating Intensely Human

By RETSEL TERREVE

¶ The thrilling and dramatic story of a criminal who, after conquering the prejudices of our modern society, was called upon to rule it ¶ In a wonderful series of word pictures the reader is carried from the slums to the aristocratic homes and gambling resorts of the American metropolis; then to the heart of London's great financial centre, and through the intricate mazes of English company promotion; then back to America, and across the continent to the humanizing, inspiring atmosphere of the great and virgin West. And through it all, directed by a merciless, but master hand, one runs the entire gamut of human emotions; of all the controlling passions of mankind as found in society of the present day. It is a book that will set the blood on fire; that will impress a moral on the mind of every one who reads.

The Baltimore American says: "The author has produced a work that will mark an epoch in virile character delineation and resourceful fertility of plot. Strong and blood-stirring in every chapter, it carries, by the force of its climax, the reader to the crest of the billows. It possesses interest for the man of sedate mind and the girl who has romantic fancies. It has a moral for the moralist, and a touch of human artistry for the humanist. Victor Hugo stood alone, yet this author has entered into his heritage."

¶ Although first announced on June 5th, the sale of this intensely absorbing novel has run into thousands, and the demand is steadily increasing. Price, $1.50.

8 STRAIGHT GAMES GIANTS' NEW PACE

Beat Brooklyn 4 to 2 in Duel Between Raymond and Hunter, Tempered with Slips.

EYES NOW ON SECOND PLACE

Brilliant Catches by Both Teams—Snappy Double Play Checks Victors in Lucky Round.

Eight straight—and two more chances at the Wallabout Wallopers to-day!

Johnny McGraw and his striding Giants drew on their seven league boots yesterday, waded into the enemy's country and beat Brooklyn by a score of 4 to 2. It was their fourth victory over the Superbas in succession, the series following two double-headers wrested from Bowerman's Orphans. And, though the wires told a terrible tale of what the Pirates did to the Cubs, the continued triumph of the McGrawites was like a Wright highball to the soaring hopes of the Manhattan rooters who tunneled or spanned the East River to spur their favorites. For, though the Buccaneers may not be ready to lose, every drubbing given to Chicago helps McGraw's men toward second place. Somehow, metropolitan fandom has its eye on the position of runner-up for New York just now, evidently believing that the battle for the lead of the league is likely to be fought out in August, if not in September. All the fans ask at present is that the Giants capture the place and hold it through the next few weeks.

Mistake not. Brooklyn was no bush opponent. The early stages of the game were a trifle disjointed, but the battle soon settled into a duel between Raymond, Curator of the Department of Entomology in McGraw University, and Hunter, Judge Lumley's new Southern southpaw. Hunter's work between the third and ninth rounds was excellent. He was outclassed, however, by the Harlem curler, Raymond, who, despite slackness in the second and a few flashes of wildness in other chapters, pitched an amazing game. His work in the final, after the Lumleyites perched two men with none down, yanked the fans out of their seats. For, with twists, shoots, slants, and benders that fairly trellised the plate, he fanned two batters and made the next an easy out at first. Call him Bugs, Beetles, Hummingbirds, whatever you will, he twirled in championship style in pinches.

The Coogan's Bluff crowd chalked almost at the outset. With one down in the first, they tallied on Doyle's hot hop, McCormick's saunter, and McMillan's error. That misplay by Mac was sensational. Doyle had taken too long a lead off second, and Bergen's beautiful hurl cut him off. Larry dashed for third, whereupon Mac, trying to throw him out to Lennox, sent the sphere flying over the baseman's dome. Doyle jotted on the bungle, McCormick going to second. Then McMillan flung McCormick out at third on Murray's bound, the batter perching, and another fine throw by Bergen nailed Red at second.

New York got another count in the second frame. One gone, Devlin roosted on Lennox's wide heave. Bridwell bingled, and a double steal followed, Schlei-fouling to Bergen and Raymond rambling. Hunter fumbled Tenney's wee grasser, Devlin scoring on the error, and Fred roosting, but Hummel retrieved the leather and flipped Bridwell out to Bergen.

About that time Lumley's men awoke to the fact that they had no time to spare if they expected to overtake the McGrawites. McElveen led with a stab too poignant for Bridwell to parry. Lennox jogged and Lumley sacrificed downily. McElveen came in on McMillan's out at first, and Lennox carded on Bergen's terrific dexter drive for a cushion, balancing the jots. Hunter, with a fighting chance to win his own game, struck out.

The Giants, after losing two men in the next inning, went in front again on hits by Murray and Devlin, interlarded with O'Hara's hike. Brooklyn in that round got a man to third on a hit, a wild pitch, and an out, but the Lumleyites had shot their bolt. In the fourth, with a Superba at the far turn, Murray saved a second tie by making a grand running catch of Bergen's seeming two-bagger, scooping the sphere almost off the ground. He did the same with Hunter's apparent triple in the fifth, going to the fence for it. In the seventh the Giants had men on second and first with one out, when Murray's smoking liner stuck to McMillan's clutch, and the short stop snapped the hide to McElveen for a neat double play.

New York took another for luck in the ninth on Raymond's single over short, Tenney's sacrifice, and hits by Doyle and Murray, Larry dying at the plate on the play because of Burch's splendid throw.

Dispersal Note—Brooklyn has unconditionally released James Sebring, outfielder.

"Taps" for Exposition Park.

PITTSBURG, June 29.—With nearly 6,000 persons standing with bared heads, and a bugler in centre field blowing "taps," the Stars and Stripes were slowly lowered from the flagstaff at Exposition Park to-day, and the historic ball park that has been used by the National League team representing this city for the last twenty years officially became a thing of the past as far as league baseball is concerned. Forbes Field, the new million-dollar home of the Pittsburg team, will be formally dedicated to-morrow. Score:

BASEBALL To-day, 4 P. M.—American League Park, N.Y. Americans vs. Washington. —Adv.

ONE VICTORY WAS YANKEES' PORTION

A LANDSLIDE IN SECOND

Johnson's Twirling Was Too Much for Locals in First—Heavy Hitting by Engle—Errors Mar Both Games.

The Yankees signalized their return to the American League Park yesterday by breaking even in a double-header with Washington. The Senators won the opening game of the series, not because they were generally superior to their opponents, but mainly because Johnson felt like pitching, and, therefore, made the Yankee batters look like a lot of bush leaguers. The Washingtonian carried a secret preparation which he used to advantage, but as the occasion for its use was only at rare intervals he was able to store up a sufficient quantity, which he contemplates using before getaway day comes around. Warhop, who was checkmated by Johnson, made a praiseworthy effort to register himself on the credit side of the ledger, but his team-mates were very remiss in lending him assistance. The scores were 3—1 and 11—3.

Washington made a mistake in putting Groom in to pitch the second game, as he was sent to the bench before a Yankee was put out in the initial inning. He was relieved by Mr. Gray, whose efforts to head off the locals were laughable in the extreme.

There were many old friends on the Washington team, but George Browne, formerly a star on the Giants, was the only one of the erstwhile favorites to do anything out of common. He played throughout the first and half of the second, during which time he managed to corral three singles, and incidentally pull off a few creditable stunts in the left field. The bright local star was the blond-haired recruit Engle, who fattened his batting averages with four hits in the second game, when the real assault came.

During both games a spasm of woe overwhelmed the faithful, owing to the poor field work of their favorites. Seven separate times did the Yankees bungle plays, and several of these were inexcusable, but, fortunately for them, the errors were made at periods when they did not seriously operate against them.

The first contest was by far the better of the two. The Senators outplayed their opponents throughout. The first tally was scored by Lelivelt of Washington, and nothing further was doing up to the seventh, when Demmitt got busy and tied the score with a home run. The enthusiasm was short lived, as a couple of opportune bingles, a sacrifice, and an error by Austin were responsible for two runs for Washington, which settled the game.

Groom essayed the pitching rôle for the visiting team in the second game, but two bases on balls and a hit convinced the Senatorial management that he would not do, and Gray was substituted. It was, however, too late, as the runs came in bunches, four in the first, three in the second, and after a breathing spell four in the lucky seventh. The scores:

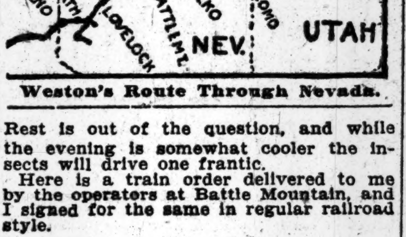
BATTLE MOUNTAIN, Nev., June 29.—I arrived here very late last night and was completely exhausted by my insane endeavor to kill mosquitos. Fancy one being on a broad, almost uninhabited, prairie, not a tree to be seen, nothing but sage brush and black clouds of mosquitos, whose activity would shame the New Jersey variety. The heat is so intense that the natives complain. It was 90 degrees in the shade this morning and about 5 degrees warmer in the hotels.



Weston's Route Through Nevada.

Rest is out of the question, and while the evening is somewhat cooler the insects will drive one frantic.

Here is a train order delivered to me by the operators at Battle Mountain, and I signed for the same in regular railroad style.

C. and E.

Mr. Edward Payson Weston:

Edward Payson Weston will walk track Battle Mountain to San Francisco. Each and every operator will assist this pedestrian by giving him a clear board and anything he desires. (Signed) E. C. M.

The same was delivered to me by Operator Bernard J. Harley of New York, and I was glad to meet him, as he assisted me in every possible way. Every official and employe of this road is doing his best. I receive many telegrams every day from Division Superintendents, Assistant Superintendents, and dispatchers, and letters thrown off passenger trains from conductors, &c.

I will leave here at 6 P. M., and hope to have a good night on the road.

YALE SHUTS OUT HARVARD.

Deciding Game Will Be Played on Polo Grounds Next Saturday.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 29.—Joy is unrestrained at Yale to-night over the great victory of the 'Varsity nine in the game with its old-time rival, Harvard, the event coming as the crowning feature of a day full of excitement and merry-making for the thousands of Yale men back for commencement and class reunions. The game from the Yale viewpoint was full of good playing by its nine. There were words of praise also for the Crimson, which fought in the later innings with a stubbornness that did not make the thousands of Yale supporters easy of mind until the last Harvard man was retired. The final score stood, Yale, 4; Harvard, 0.

Van Vleck pitched his last home game for Yale, and did excellent work as long as he was in the box, and when he retired in the sixth in favor of Merritt he went to right field and continued his good work. Not naturally a good fielder, Van Vleck made one hard catch, and in the ninth his quick work prevented what seemed sure would ultimately result in a score. Simons had reached first on Cushman's error and started for second on Aronson's single to right. Van Vleck made a quick recovery of a difficult ball and snapped it to second, catching Simons before he reached the bag.

The graduates were enthusiastic all the way along, but it was not until the fifth inning that they broke loose in full force. Van Vleck had pulled out of one bad hole and Harvard had never been dangerously near scoring. With Mallory out, Corey singled. Cushman then singled, as did Van Vleck, scoring Corey. Philbin followed with a two-bagger, bringing Cushman and Van Vleck home. It was a task to keep the graduates off the field at this point. The other score was made in the seventh. With Merritt out, Cushman walked, stole second, went to third on Briggs's error, and came home on Philbin's single. Harvard was unable to do anything in the ninth.

Hicks pitched a good game for Harvard and allowed one less hit than the Yale pitchers. In the fourth inning Hicks struck out the first three men up—Murphy, Jefferson, and Logan—three of Yale's best batters. In the eighth Harvard had the best chance to score in the entire game. After McLaughlin had struck out, Hicks got a base on balls and Lanigan singled. Harvey singled, but Fels gathered in the ball and put Lanigan out as he came to second. With Hicks on third, Currier was unable to get a hit and was put out, Cushman to Jefferson.

The outcome of the game makes it necessary to play off the tie for the championship at New York on Saturday afternoon. The score:

NEW LONDON HARBOR FILLING WITH CRAFT

GRADUATES TO ROW TO-DAY

Four Revenue Cutters Arrive to Police Thames During Races—Cooler Weather Pleases the Oarsmen.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 29.—Cool weather favored Yale and Harvard oarsmen on the Thames to-day, but Coach Kennedy followed his usual tactics by keeping all of the Eli oarsmen about training quarters until late this afternoon, when the 'Varsity eight and four oar were the first to put their shells overboard. After nearly an hour's practice in the vicinity of Allyn's Point, above Broad View, the freshman eight and four were also tried out in stretches north of the camp, and the 1912 eight rowed surprisingly well for a crew that had undergone so many changes recently.

The Yale freshmen are trying their very best to get together, and Capt. Baker says the crew realize they are going to row against a fast Crimson eight, but are going in to do their best to win on Thursday.

Harvard's crews were all on the water at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, Coach Wray selecting the smooth water near the naval station for his final coaching. The 'Varsity eight had two half-mile scraps with the freshmen, honors being even.

Both camps were nearly deserted to-day on account of the Yale-Harvard baseball game at New Haven.

The "gentleman's eights," composed of Yale and Harvard graduate oarsmen, will row a race to-morrow afternoon for the "Andy" Graves Trophy. The distance is one-half mile, and the definite rowing order of the crews will not be determined until a short time before the hour scheduled for the struggle.

Both the upper and lower harbor are fast filling with pleasure craft of various types, awaiting the races Thursday. Among the fleet at anchor here are the steam yachts Aquilo, William P. Eno, which has been selected as judges' boat on race day; the Gretchen, John Reyburn; the Cynthia, Merrill B. Mills; the Parthenia, Harry Converse; the Bellemere, Mrs. Horatio N. Slater; the Narwhal, C. H. Osgood; the Rosalio, chartered by Robert Bacon; the Pawnee, Gordon Dexter; the Vega, Mrs. Martha F. Ferguson, and the auxiliary schooner yachts Undercliff, Upton King; the Visitor II., W. Harry Brown, with a half dozen young ladies from Pittsburg among her passenger list; the Arabella, Commodore W. B. Thomas, Eastern Yacht Club; the Vencedor, M. A. V. De Goicouria; the Savarona, C. Howard Clark, Jr.; the Iris, Vernon C. Brown; the Monimia, George McK. Brown; the schooner yacht Irolita, Commodore E. W. Clark, Jr.; the Water Witch, David Banks; the Taormina, William S. Eaton; the Beatrice, J. C. Hamlen; the power yachts Faalua, George Peters; the Naoma; the Tarolinta, Chester W. Bliss; the Cristina, Frederick C. Fletcher; the cutter Eelin, Lindsley Loring; the sloops Altruria, Frederick A. Haight; the Weetamoe, Charles Lane Poor; the Adventuress, C. C. Rumrill; the Winsome, Henry F. Lippitt; the yawls Calque, Lawrence H. Armour, and the Escape.

The revenue cutters Gresham, Roscoggin, Mohawk, and Acushnet have arrived and are anchored in the upper harbor. These Government vessels will send out their small boats to patrol the course on race day.

Capts. Cutler and Howe, with F. Valentine Chappell, Chairman of the local Regatta Committee, accompanied by William Meikleham, referee chosen by both Yale and Harvard, had a conference this afternoon, and after agreeing that the course was laid out satisfactorily, Referee Meikleham impressed upon the Captains that the races should be rowed as near on scheduled time, 6 o'clock, as possible, and unnecessary delays would not be tolerated. One of the changes in the racing rules this year is the stipulation that in case of accident during the first half mile a race may be called off and the contest started again.

The Secretary of War, Gen. Leonard Wood, and Department Commander Col. Adelbert Cronkhite, U. S. A., are expected to arrive to-morrow and will view the races from the deck of the mine planter General Frank.

CERUSSI GIVES UP ROWING.

Columbia's Captain Yields to Advice of Physician—Rice's Tribute.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 29.—Through choppy water all the college crews ventured out late this afternoon for practice rows. No time was taken, on account of the unfavorable conditions.

The Cornell 'Varsity started in at the head of the course and rowed three miles against the tide. Pennsylvania also rowed down the river as far as their boathouse. Wisconsin did six miles from their quarters to the starting line and back to the bridge.

Both Columbia crews went over the course, turning back at the finish line and returning to their boathouse without a stop.

The Syracusans kept up their reputation for hard work by rowing four miles south from their boathouse and back again. The Cornell freshmen and four-oar took short sprints in the open water south of their boathouse.

There was no illness reported to-day, and no changes in any of the boats.

From the Columbia quarters to-day comes the news that Capt. Cerussi has ended his career as an oarsman. Cerussi returned from New York this morning, where he had consulted a physician. He is on the verge of a nervous breakdown, and he was advised to give up rowing. Coach Rice paid a high tribute to Cerussi. "There never was a better stroke developed in this country," said Rice. "He was the best oarsman that I have ever seen, and that is saying a good deal when Cerussi is compared to Jack Wright, who is also considered the premier oarsman of the world. Cerussi, when he was at his best last year and in 1907, had the stroke, the finish, and the level head that marked him as the finest stroke that ever sat in a collegiate shell in this or any other country."

Burns and Wagner in Slow Bout.

Frankie Burns and Young Wagner, two aspiring bantam weights, fought a rather unsatisfactory ten rounds at Brown's Athletic Association last night. It would be straining a point ot give Burns a decision, but what little real fighting was done, he did it. The bout was painfully slow during most of the rounds. Burns's left eye was cut in the fourth, and Wagner showed blood in the sixth.

No National League Games To-morrow.

Out of respect to the memory of Israel Durham, President of the Philadelphia National League Club, who died Monday at Atlantic City, no games will be played in the National League to-morrow. This announcement was made by President Harry C. Pulliam of the National League last night before he started for Pittsburg to attend the opening of Forbes Field to-day. The flags at the National League parks will be kept at half mast until July 28.

BIG ENTRY FOR AUTO TOUR.

Nineteen Cars Named for Run to Atlantic City and Return.

Indications are that twenty-five cars will start in the three-day Jersey Jubilee Tour, which will start from the Touring Club of America headquarters, 239 West Fifty-fourth Street, to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock. There has been some opposition to the tour on the part of the New Jersey Automobile Club, but this was due to a misunderstanding as to the purpose of the run. The difference, which might have interfered with the success of the tour, has been satisfactorily explained.

As an evidence of the interest New York automobilists are taking in the tour nineteen owners of cars yesterday signified their intention of starting. William C. Poertner of the Poertner Motor Car Company will start three National cars, one of which will be the official car. There will be two Buicks, two Chalmers-Detroits, a Mitchell, a Pullman, a White Steamer, a Kissel Kar, a Maxwell, a Cadillac, a Mora, an Overland, a Welch, a Mercer, a Yellow Taxicab, and a Moon.

The fact that A. L. Westgard, head of the Touring Club of America, will act as pacemaker throughout the three days' journey to the seaside resort and return is assurance that there will be no speeding. The Warner Instrument Company sent a route car over the course yesterday to measure the exact distance of the run, which is something over 300 miles. Reports from the route car crew are to the effect that the New Jersey roads are in splendid condition.

A new plan in the way of taking care of tourists will be adopted on the trip. A coupon ticket, covering meals, lodging, swimming, concerts, races, and all of the other features on the programme, has been printed, and each entrant will receive one of these. This will eliminate the bother of finding hotel accommodations, &c.

The idea of the run is to give a sort of testimonial to the New Jersey legislators and State officials who have been active in securing a modification of the automobile laws and the improvement of highways. Gov. John Franklin Fort has expressed himself as being in favor of the tour and will personally welcome the tourists at the Summer capital in Sea Girt. Silver medallions bearing a portrait of Gov. Fort will be presented to each of the tourists.

HAMMERLESS WINS IN DISTANCE RACE

Trigger Filly Runs Over Bonnie Kelso at Finish in Mile and Three-Sixteenths.

SIR JOHN JOHNSON'S STAKES

Saratoga Horse Romps in Front All the Way for the Sheepshead Bay, and Is First in Fast Time.

Sprinters and stayers mixed their form up in a style to justify revision of estimates by race goers at the Sheepshead Bay course yesterday. The most marked of the several twists that the horses made in their records was when the three-year-old filly Hammerless, in the biggest field of the day, simply ran over Bonnie Kelso at the finish of the distance event, the mile and three-sixteenths on the turf course, and won in a canter, leaving her field at every stride. Hammerless has showed speed in all her races, but somehow she was set down as a sprinter, while Bonnie Kelso, in the same event, was rated on all his running as a stayer.

They reversed things in yesterday's contest, for Bonnie Kelso snapped away to the front at the raising of the barrier and romped under a pull to the head of the stretch, Hammerless laying in behind him, these being the only two horses of the fourteen runners that figured in the race. From the head of the stretch home Bonnie Kelso failed flatly as to staying, while Hammerless came on as if she might be willing to run indefinitely and galloped over the colt, Hammerless winning easily by three lengths, while Bonnie Kelso was a similar distance in front of Rio Grande third.

For the Sheepshead Bay Stakes, one mile selling, race goers looked everywhere but the right place for the winner, and let the Saratoga bred and owned horse, Sir John Johnson, run absolutely unconsidered. Sir John Johnson, one of the highly tried two-year-olds of the Sanford Stable from Hurricana Farm in 1907, was rated as a sprinter, too, and accordingly started as the last chance outsider in a field of seven, with Dreamer, Nimbus, and Cohort the choices. In a sharp brush for the track, between Sir John Johnson, Nimbus, Cohort, and Dreamer, as the horses left the post, Sir John Johnson drew out in front, clear of his field, while Dreamer was crowded back, Sir John from that moment galloping out in front well in hand all the way and winning cleverly by two lengths in fast time, on a track dull from recent rain. Cohort and Dreamer fought out in a smart finish for the place, which Cohort secured by a head. The summaries:

Some changes have been made in the British team for the second game. F. M. Freake and F. W. Nickalls will play as before. Harry Rich will play No. 1 instead of Capt. Herbert Wilson, and Capt. CLAIMS FOR FALL DATES.

Three Tracks Closed in Spring Want to Re-enter Racing.

The division of the racing dates for the Fall, to cover the two months and a half open to racing in New York after the close of the Saratoga Summer meeting on Aug. 28, has begun to be a problem for the managers of the New York tracks, who have been trying to reach an agreement satisfactory to all of the eight tracks that last season made up the "metropolitan" circuit. The owners and managers of three of these tracks more or less willingly stood aside when the dates for the Spring and Summer racing were arranged and permitted the other four tracks to assume the responsibility of announcing race meetings and making the experiment of racing under the changed law. These associations were in part insured against loss by the fund raised by the Association of Owners and Breeders, which guaranteed the tracks against loss on certain of their stakes, amounting to $20,000 for each meeting. The experiment that the race tracks have conducted has been so successful that so far there has been but one occasion to draw on the guarantee fund, and then only for a small sum, for the first meeting of the year, when racing was conducted only three days a week, in the face of adverse weather conditions.

The managers of the tracks that took dates for the Spring and Summer were so well satisfied with their experiment that several weeks ago it was announced authoritatively that the same associations in the vicinity of New York would conduct Fall meetings. There was perfect harmony among the managers of these, but the managers of the three tracks that were closed in the Spring and Summer now want their share of the dates for the Fall and the division of the two months and a half of time left open between the close of the Saratoga meeting at the end of August and Nov. 15, when racing ends under the law. The tracks which did not take dates for the Spring and Summer are Aqueduct, Jamaica, and Brighton Beach. All have been represented at the recent conferences of the track owners.

There has been no agreement on dates yet, but it is likely that a schedule will be prepared for submission to the Stewards of The Jockey Club within a short time.

Bat's Delight Wins for Vanderbilt.

PARIS, June 29.—Six American horses ran at Maisons-Laffitte to-day, but only two obtained honors. The Prix Dessai des Pouliches was won by W. K. Vanderbilt's Bat's Delight.

HORSES AND HORSEMEN.

Steeplechase Jockey Harry Stone, rider of Touchwood in the 'chase at Sheepshead Bay yesterday, had his right arm broken at the wrist when Touchwood fell with him early in the race.

James Gaffney's colors were introduced to the turf in the first race at Sheepshead Bay on Julia Powell. She won her first race for Mr. Gaffney, but with borrowed colors up. Mr. Gaffney will buy other horses, and already has added Alfred Noble, second in the Suburban Handicap, to his stable.

The most successful stable of the turf in the matter of proportion scored at Sheepshead Bay yesterday with the only non-winner in the stable at that time, with Charles L. Harrison's Democrat. Mr. Harrison this Spring has won with each horse of the three that he had in training, the number including Waldo, several times a stake winner, and rival to Sweep for first place among the two-year-olds, and Alfred Noble, recently sold.

S. C. Hildreth's three-year-old Joe Madden, which was struck about the near fore pastern in the race for the Tidal Stakes, is so lame from the injury that the owner states he will have to be shelved for a time. Joe Madden is in the Lawrence Realization, the biggest three-year-old stake left for the season, but it is not likely that he will be ready to start for it.

The weights for the Independence Steeplechase Handicap, two and a half miles, to be run July 4, were announced yesterday, with Sanctus as the top weight, with 165 pounds; King Castle, 160; California King, 159; Jimmy Lane, 156, and Waterspeed, 154, being the other high weights of the fifteen horses handicapped.

FORD CAR NO. 2 GETS PRIZE.

New York to Seattle Racer Shawmut's Protest Disallowed.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 29.—The protest of the Shawmut car against the award of the first prize in the New York to Seattle automobile race to Ford Car No. 2 was disallowed to-day by Referee Robert Guggenheim, who found that the evidence did not sustain any of the charges that the Ford car had violated the rules. The trophy cup and $2,000 go to Ford Car No. 2, and the second prize of $1,500 to the Shawmut car.

The Acme car reached Seattle at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. It had continued in the contest in spite of much delay.

Ahearne's Record Not Allowed.

At a conference yesterday between James E. Sullivan, President, and Frederick W. Rubien, Chairman of the Record Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union, it was decided to notify each association of the Amateur Athletic Union that in future no records wherein the tape plays an important part, such as high jumping, pole vaulting, broad jumping, hop, step, and jump, hammer throwing, weight throwing, will be accepted unless the performance is measured with a tested steel tape. The Record Committee will also recommend to each association that unless the managers of athletic meetings furnish steel tapes to the officials sanction for the above-named events be refused.

The record claimed by Daniel Ahearne in the hop, step, and jump event at the games on June 27 at Celtic Park has been disallowed, as Chairman Rubien, on examining the cloth tape used, which was sent to him by W. L. Jones, who acted as referee of the games, found that the same would stretch from six to ten inches in every fifty feet.

Cyclist MacFarland Injured.

Floyd A. MacFarland of San Jose, Cal., known throughout this country and Europe as a professional cyclist and six-day racer, had a narrow escape from death at the Velodrome cycling track in Newark yesterday, while training for races to be held to-day. The rear tire of the motor pacing machine which he was following burst and threw him from his wheel. He broke his left arm at the wrist and elbow and received many cuts about the face.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Trout and Bass Flies Dutiable at 45 Per Cent. as Metal.

It has been decided by the Board of United States General Appraisers that so-called trout flies, bass flies, &c., are to be allowed to enter this country at the rate of 45 per cent. under the provision in the tariff for "manufactures in part of metal." This action by the board has the effect of sustaining a protest filed by Wakem & McLaughlin, the importers.

The customs authorities classified the articles as "manufactured feathers," with duty at 50 per cent. After discussing the appropriate paragraphs under which the articles might be dutiable, General Appraiser Fischer, in his decision for the board, says that it is evident that metal is a substantial part of the manufactured articles, and is of greater value than the feathers. On this account the board is constrained to lower the duty 5 per cent., as requested.

The board, in a decision written by General Appraiser Fischer, has partially sustained protests filed by Abbey & Imbrie regarding the classification of fish hooks from round iron or steel wire. Certain protests are sustained, while others are overruled.

The board has sustained protests filed by A. & H. Veith and Knauth, Nachod & Kühne, asking for lower duty on steel stampings and steel cylinders for [illegible] gas.

Judge Hand appointed Irving L. Ernst receiver, and authorized him to continue business ten days. Liabilities are $44,000, and assets $20,000. The business was started in 1895, and was absorbed by the present company, which was incorporated April 8, 1897, with a capital stock of $100,000. The company formerly did a large and profitable business when the bicycle craze was on, but since then, it is said, the business has not been so good, and in the last two years the company felt the general trade depression. William P. Crary is President.

Dr. Eliot's "Best Books" In Condensed Form
For the Readers of The Sunday Times

The Former President of Harvard has made his preliminary announcement regarding the "Five Feet of Books" whose reading, accompanied by the proper mental assimilation, would, in his opinion, result in the reader's receiving a liberal education. The interest in Dr. Eliot's selections is nation-wide. The Times will print these works in its Sunday editions, in condensed form, and all the essentials of each will be retained. The work selected for presentation next Sunday is "The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin"—the first on the list of Dr. Eliot's nominations.

Orders for Next Sunday's Edition of The Times Should be Placed With Newsdealers To-Day.

STEEL NEAR RECORD PRICE

More Gold Engaged for Export—Pennsylvania Railroad Announces Important Improvement Work.

Transactions on the Stock Exchange yesterday were nearly twice as large as those of Monday, but in the main the trading was little, if any, more interesting. The net changes for the day were somewhat more important, but the character of the trading for the most part did not appear to be much different from that of Monday, when professional operations were fruitful of very little net change in the market. Yesterday United States Steel resumed leadership of the market, showing a net gain at the end of the day in excess of two points in both the common and the preferred. Coincidentally, Amalgamated Copper displayed strength which was noteworthy in comparison with its course on Monday, and at the close of the day showed a net advance of 1¾ points. The gains in these leading industrials were considerably in excess of the average advance in the active railroad stocks, which included, however, such substantial gains as 1⅜ in Southern Pacific and a similar gain in Rock Island. Reading's showing was a fractional net loss. Smelting and Sugar were both strong, while Interborough-Metropolitan preferred suffered a net loss of 1⅜ points. These were the main results, so far as they were reflected in net changes, of of the day's operations on the Exchange, the most interesting incident of which, doubtless, was the noteworthy strength of the United States Steel shares, which approacred close to the record prices for these issues, the common closing within a fraction of the best price at which it has ever sold.

An interesting development of the day was the announcement of the letting of an important construction contract by the Pennsylvania Railroad. This incident carries with it an indication of a disposition on the part of the management of the country's leading railways to increase materially their expenditures for improvements, and in this way add substantially to the recovery in business. More gold was engaged yesterday for shipment to South America, the chances being that at least $1,500,000 will be forwarded to Argentina by Saturday's steamer in addition to any further engagements which may be made for export to Europe. A further advance in exchange yesterday suggested the probability that the Continent may again draw on this market for gold before the end of the current week. The banks in their operation with the Sub-Treasury showed yesterday a loss of $225,000, and since Friday a loss of $881,000. These figures do not include the gold coin, amounting to $2,000,000, withdrawn from the Sub-Treasury on Monday for export to Argentina.

No Bid of $95,000 for Exchange Seat.

It was rumored in Wall Street yesterday that $95,000 had been bid for a Stock Exchange seat. This was the high-record price reached in 1906. The last sale was at $87,000, about ten days ago. In 1906 the bid went as high as $100,000 without any takers. After the panic seats sold as low as $51,500. The report of a bid of $95,000 having been received was denied at the Stock Exchange.

Leadership Resumed By Steel.

United States Steel common was credited by traders yesterday with having rescued the market from another period of doldrums. On heavy transactions, frequently including blocks of a thousand shares at a time, that stock advanced more than 2 points, to 69⅝, or within ⅝ per cent. of its top record, made a fortnight ago. From this demonstration of strength in Steel, the traders were inclined to try their hand on the long side of the market elsewhere, as well. The assumption of leadership by United States Steel, they seemed to think, had more significance than the advance of a couple of points recorded in the shares. In any event, they were willing to gamble on the chance that it had. In connection with the rise in Steel, rumors were current that a decision would be reached at the monthly meeting, following the close of business, by which the United Steel Corporation itself would formally make application for the listing of the stock on the Paris Bourse. According to official announcement made subsequent to the meeting, however, no action with that purpose in view was taken.

Alleged Scarcity of Stocks.

There was again a good deal of talk going the rounds of brokerage houses concerning the alleged scarcity of stocks. Floor members sent word to their offices that there seemed to be little stock in sight and if any one wanted to buy, he would have to do some climbing to get securities. This idea did not exactly coincide with the impression, widely held a few days ago, that the short interest in the market had been pretty well eliminated by last week's recovery, and that the strength of the technical position had again been impaired by the accumulation of a substantial following by light-waisted bulls. Those who were not so cocksure about stocks beinp really scarce, however, asserted that the market was not broad enough to permit extensive liquidation; consequently, the big holders of securities would have better sense than to try to sell. On the other hand, it is characteristic of a large percentage of the small speculators to hang on tight when they see the market developing some strength, a good share of them being unwilling to sell unless forced, or frightened into doing so, until they have bagged the last eighth on the long side.

Weakness of Tractions.

There was a reversal in form of the Interborough-Metropolitan issues, which for several days had been conspicuously strong. The preferred dropped 1½ per cent., and the common was fractionally lower. In some quarters the decline was explained on the ground that profit taking was going on in considerable volume in the preferred stock and that the decline caused a sympathetic fall in the common. Some of the traders were selling both issues on garbled stories of a bond flotation by the company. Early rumors had it that the Interborough-Metropolitan had sold $10,000,000 bonds, though where that company was going to find that amount of bonds to sell was something which the traders did not stop to consider. Subsequent announcements of the sale of $10,000,000 first mortgage 5s by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company did not seem to help matters any, from the market point of view. Incidentally some thought that the selling of Interborough-Metropolitan on rumors of the bond issue signified a change in sentiment. In bull markets, bond issue announcements frequently have a favorable influence on stocks, but an impression is gaining ground that the bond market is becoming somewhat congested. Bankers, however, do not seem to be worrying over that phase of the situation.

Recovery in Sugar.

With yesterday's rise of more than 3 points in American Sugar stock, the price got back to within a few points of where it stood prior to the decline immediately after the threatened investigation by the Federal authorities in connection with the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company episode. Doubts now being thrown upon the ability of the Government to make prosecutions because of the statute of limitations were presumably accountable for yesterday's sharp upward movement in the shares. There has always been so much mystery about the affairs and actual earning capacity of the company that many stockholders would welcome an investigation which would reveal to them just what the financial position of the company was. But court investigations of the accounts or practices of any corporation are unpopular, from the market point of view.

Advance in Rock Island.

Activity and strength in Rock Island common brought forth conflicting rumors, one being that two individuals, most prominently identified with the property in the public mind, were carrying on a vigorous bull campaign in the stock, while another story had it that both of them had departed from Wall Street to be gone some weeks. The latter report, which carried with it the assumption that they were doing nothing in the market, failed to take into consideration the excellent long-distance telephone and telegraphic facilities from all parts of the country. A good deal of buying of the issues, it was thought, was based on the excellent crop outlook in the Rock Island territory. Something was said also about a big improvement in earnings, and, the information coming from good sources, was that the May statement of the company would show returns nearly equaling or possibly exceeding any ever before recorded for May in the company's history.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—Active support of late deliveries at Chicago was resumed yesterday after Monday's selling movement, and in face of continued favorable weather and crop news the market had a strong advance. Export business of about 50 loads was talked of at the close, while the cash sales were reported to be around 250,000 bushels. Crop reports from nearly all parts of the belt were brilliant, especially from Winter wheat sections, where clear weather gave a decided impetus to harvest operations. An advance of 1⅛d in July was reported at Liverpool, other months there being about ⅛d higher, while Berlin closed 1¼c lower. The movement at interior markets consisted of 336,000 bushels, compared with 265,000 bushels a year ago. Cash wheat in New York closed firm; No. 2 red, $1.47, nominal, for old, free on board afloat; No. 2 red, new, $1.22⅝, free on board afloat, end August; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.38, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.36, free on board afloat, both nominal.

CORN—Owing to favorable crop and weather news the tendency of prices was lower yesterday. Only 159 cars were expected at Chicago on Wednesday, and this firmed the late market somewhat. Liverpool cables were dull and unchanged. Cash corn was steady, 81½c, elevator, and 80c, freen on board afloat, for old No. 2, and 66c for new No. 2, Winter shipment.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee was easier yesterday, with the close barely steady net unchanged to 10 points lower. Sales were reported of 16,500 bags. The opening was steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points in response to rapidly increasing primary receipts. Both the German and French markets reported a decline of ¼ to ½, but in Brazil the only decline was 50 reis at Rio. Spot coffee was quiet, 7⅜c for Rio No. 7. Contract prices were as follows:

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Americans Close Steady Near the Best in London.

LONDON, June 29.—Money was wanted on the market to-day for month-end requirements. Discounts were easy.

The volume of business on the Stock Exchange was small, and the movement was still irregular. British and foreign rails and Kaffirs yielded to selling pressure, but the latter, as well as foreigners, closed firmer on continental support. Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific benefited on the May statements.

American securities opened unchanged to ¼ higher, with business rather light. Price movements ruled irregular and at noon the market was dull with prices ¼ lower to ½ higher than yesterday's New York closing. In the afternoon Union Pacific, United States Steel, and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe received the most attention. Then the New York opening cheered the market and prices hardened, especially in steel, and closed steady near the best.

Bar silver quiet, 23 15-16d per ounce.

Money 1½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1 9-16@1⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills, 1 9-16@1⅝ per cent.

PARIS, June 29.—There was a better tone on the Bourse to-day. The private rate of discount is 1⅜, and advance of ⅛ per cent.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 22½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 19c for checks.

BERLIN, June 29.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was inactive with the tendency of prices firmer. American securities were strong.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, June 29.—An unexpected and active demand for United Railways shares and income bonds advanced the price of the stock from 11½ to 12¼ and of the bonds from 56 to 57½. The strength is attributed to a decision of the Court of Appeals against further taxation of the easements of the United Railways as proposed by the Baltimore Appeal Tax Court.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Unsettled but Active Trade—Closes 5 to 12 Points Net Lower.

Cotton was nervous and irregular yesterday, and while large bull interests were good buyers the close was barely steady at a net decline of 5@12 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 5@10 points and the active months sold about 10@13 points net lower during the first few minutes, owing to better weather in the South and talk of increased offerings from the South for new crop shipment. Following a report from Washington that storm warnings had been posted for Florida and the South Atlantic Coast, the market became much firmer. The advance was not sustained, however. A canvass of the trade revealed that on the average a Government report of about 77.6 per cent. is expected next Friday.

Contract prices were as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Mon. Close.
June	....	....	11.55@11.58	11.60

The local market for spot cotton was quiet and unchanged at 12c for middling upland and 12.25c for middling Gulf. Sales, 351 bales.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Galveston steady, unchanged at 11¼c; sales, 200 bales. Savannah steady, ⅛c higher, at 11⅝c; sales, 848 bales. Augusta steady, 1-16c lower, at 11⅝c; sales, 664 bales. New Orleans steady, unchanged at 11⅜c; sales, 675 bales. Memphis firm, unchanged at 11⅝c; sales, 100 bales.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—Aside from the activity and strength in United States Steel and a fair volume of dealings in Reading, the local market was devoid of interest from the features to-day until the last hour when Cambria Steel was taken in hand and bid up sharply to 41¾. No news accompanied the movement, which was doubtless in sympathy with the extreme extraordinary strength of "Little Steel." Tonopah Mining continued to be liquidated in small lots, and Lake Superior was still in a reactionary mood. Elsewhere the tone was firm, but the dealings few and far between. Lehigh Valley, Asphalt preferred, and others all showed small advances. United Gas was firm. The market closed strong.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the City of Albany or New York, issued by a National or State bank in good credit within the State and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The amount of bond required for faithful performance will be ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be indorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

F. C. STEVENS,
Superintendent of Public Works.

THE LYNCHBURG TRUST & SAVINGS BANK, Trustee.

CALL FOR $25,000,000 FROM THE TREASURY

Reduction in Bank Holdings to Strengthen Government Position.

TAKES NEARLY ALL DEPOSITS

Issue of Panama Bonds or of More Treasury Receipts Expected Before December.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—A call on National depositary banks for a return to the Treasury of Government funds aggregating approximately $25,000,000 was made to-day by Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh. Of this amount, $9,000,000 has been called for July 15 and $16,000,000 for Aug. 15.

Balances in all active depositaries are uniformly reduced to the lowest amount which the daily needs of the Government will permit.

This call will practically wipe out all of the deposits of Government funds in National banks subject to check by the Treasury of the United States, except about $37,000,000 which is held in active account and necessary to meet checks of Government disbursing officers, and $1,000,000 which will be allowed to remain in $1,000 lots in such of the 1,000 smaller National banks as desire to retain their designation as National bank depositaries.

The working balance to-day is more than $43,000,000, which will be increased by the call to approximately $68,000,000. The low state of the Government working balance made its strengthening a necessity, and, thus augmented, the Treasury Department will have ample funds for some months.

It is confidently expected, however, that before the coming December an additional issue of Panama bonds or the further issue of Treasury receipts of indebtedness will be found necessary. No decision, however, has yet been reached on this point.

MUTUAL LIFE'S PLUM.

3,000 Shares of New Central Trust Stock Sold Under Insurance Law.

A block of nearly 3,000 shares of the new stock of the Central Trust Company, representing for the greater part the pro rata share of the Mutual Life Insurance Company in the recent $2,000,000 extra dividend declared by the trust company, was taken over yesterday at private sale. The Mutual Life's holdings of the trust company stock would have entitled it to more than 2,000 shares of the new stock, but in view of the fact that the insurance laws require that the companies shall have rid themselves of their stockholdings within two years more it was not expected that the Mutual Life would take up its share of the new stock.

The purchasers are said to have paid in the neighborhood of $1,000 a share. While the buyers are not named, it is said that the block has been divided among the Trustees of the trust company and their friends. The balance of the stock purchased came from another insurance company which, like the Mutual Life, was unable to avail itself of the subscription privilege.

AUERBACH & CO. SUSPEND.

Slump in Cottonseed Oil Causes Failure of Produce Exchange Firm.

The suspension of Auerbach & Co., with offices in the Produce Exchange Building, was announced on the floor of the Produce Exchange yesterday. The firm was active in the cottonseed oil market on the Exchange, and the suspension was the result of its inability to meet contracts.

During the last few days there has been a big drop in July cottonseed oil contracts. The failure was a small one, and did not affect the market on the Exchange. E. F. Auerbach, the head of the firm, said yesterday afternoon that no assignment had yet been made, and that a conference would be held with their attorneys and creditors to see if arrangements could not be made to tide over their difficulties.

TAKES OVER B. & M. STOCK.

Boston Railroad Holding Company Purchases J. L. Billard's Shares.

BOSTON, June 29.—At the first meeting of the Boston Railroad Holding Company, incorporated by the last Legislature to settle the railroad situation in this State, it was voted to purchase the 110,000 shares of the Boston & Maine stock now held by John L. Billard of Meriden, Conn.

The incorporators also admitted Theodore C. Vail, President of the American Bell Telephone Company, and Philip Dexter, both of Boston, as members of the company.

The incorporators adopted by-laws and elected the following officers: President—Frederic C. Dumain of Concord, Mass.; Vice President—Walter C. Baylies of Boston; Secretary—Robert M. Burnett of Southboro; Clerk—Charles F. Choate, Jr., of Southboro.

GERMAN TEACHERS MEET.

President McGowan Welcomes Them, but in English for Obvious Reasons.

Der Nationaler Deutschamerikanischer Lehrbund, otherwise the German-American Teachers' Association, began its thirty-seventh annual convention at the Deutsche Liederkranz Hall, 111 East Fifty-eighth Street, last night, with several hundred of the 1,000 or more members in attendance. Many of the teachers of German in colleges and universities throughout the country as well as in the universities and public schools of this city were present, some coming from as far West as St. Louis for the convention.

Last night's session of the convention was given over entirely to addresses of welcome, with music by the Liederkranz Singing Society. Among the speakers were Herbert Cillis, President of the Liederkranz Society; Dr. Rudolf Tombo, formerly of Columbia University; President Patrick F. McGowan of the Board of Aldermen, Controller Metz, Dr. Louis Haupt of the Board of Education, and Miss Henni Hubel. All spoke in German except Mr. McGowan, who stuck to English for obvious reasons. But the President of the Aldermen made one of the hits of the evening, even if his Celtic tongue did refuse to roll the big German words. He also vigorously applauded Dr. Haupt, though he said he wasn't sure what the School Commissioner said.

The association being made up largely of men and women teachers in colleges, some wry faces were made behind programmes when in excess of enthusiasm President McGowan told them they "looked like New England school teachers," but he hastened to say that he was native of New England, and regarded the New England school teacher as one of the choicest of the flowers of earth. He said that New York paid its teachers better than any city in the United States, but still did not pay them enough.

The association will reconvene at 10 A. M. to-day.

NEW TREASURY STATEMENT.

Changed Form Will Show the Real Condition of Finances.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Important changes in the daily cash statement of the Treasury Department, especially to correct discrepancies in publication of balances, were announced to-day to take effect July 1. The published records of receipts and disbursements issued by the bookkeeping and warrant divisions have never balanced with the daily cash statement of the Treasurer. As a result, in any given day the cash might show an increase of a million or more dollars despite the fact that disbursements might show $500,000 in excess of receipts.

The Treasury Department in to-day's announcement says:

> The discrepancy was due to the fact that the Bookkeeping and Warrant Office recorded on the daily statement transactions not yet completed, while the Treasurer's Office considered only transactions which were actually completed by payments in cash. This discrepancy has been corrected. The data will hereafter come from one source, and the daily statement of cash in the Treasury will exactly tally with the cash receipts and cash disbursements.
> Another important change in the daily statement of the Treasury is the division of receipts and disbursements into three classes—(1) ordinary, (2) Panama Canal, and (3) public debt.
> During the fiscal year just ending the excess of ordinary disbursements over ordinary receipts will approximate $60,000,000. The expenditure on account of Panama Canal (about $31,000,000) will approximately equal the proceeds from sales of bonds. The payment of public debt has been a heavy drain. Fifteen million dollars' worth of bonds were retired, and disbursements by the Treasury on account of bank note retirements exceeded receipts by $44,000,000. As a result the total disbursements on all accounts for the year just ending exceed the total revenues by about $119,000,000.

The new daily cash statement will be issued July 1, by which date the bureaus concerned will have changed their methods to meet the new conditions.

NEW PENNSYLVANIA YARD.

Company to Spend Over $2,000,000 in Improvement at Northumberland.

The Pennsylvania Railroad awarded yesterday a contract for the construction of a new classification yard at Northumberland to cost between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. The work is to begin at once and will be done by the contracting firm of Eyre & Shoemaker of Philadelphia. The awarding of this contract was taken in railroad circles yesterday as an indication of a disposition on the part of the Pennsylvania management to resume important improvement work after two years of partial suspension of this kind of new undertaking.

Figures compiled by the Pennsylvania and made public yesterday showed that in 1908 the Pennsylvania lines East and West of Pittsburg paid out in wages $125,543,947, a reduction of $29,471,951 from the amount spent in wages in 1907. The system employed 199,000 men in 1907 and 175,000 in 1908. The figures show that 46 per cent. of the total gross earnings of the system were paid out in wages in 1908 compared with 48 per cent. in 1907. Compared with the returns of the principal industrial companies of the country the figures show that the Pennsylvania effected a much smaller curtailment of its expenditures for wages last year than was the case with the principal industrial companies. This fact was largely due to the inability of railroads to economize in periods of business depression to the extent which is possible with a manufacturing company.

REFUND INTERBOROUGH NOTES

Morgan & Co. Takes $10,000,000 Traction Bonds for Notes.

J. P. Morgan & Co., it is understood, are the purchasers of the $10,000,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company authorized for the purpose of retiring an equal amount of short-term notes which mature in 1910.

The banking house handled the flotations of notes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, and its participation in the new financing was looked upon in Wall Street as in natural sequence. This fact tempered the rumors which arose when its purchase of the new bonds became public, that Morgan & Co. would have an important part in the reorganization of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, controlled by the Interborough-Metropolitan Company.

The Public Service Commission denied yesterday the application of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to issue $10,000,000 bonds under its $55,000,000 mortgage to refund outstanding issues of short-time notes. The commission gave as its reason the fact that the Interborough already has power under the mortgage, which the commission approved last year, to issue the bonds in question when required for the purpose stated. Therefore no occasion was found for the application at this time.

WANT NO NEGRO FIREMEN.

Georgia Trainmen to Ask Legislature to Exclude Them.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 29.—The preparation of a bill to exclude negroes from employment as firemen and trainmen in this State was begun to-day by a committee representing the firemen and trainmen of the Georgia Railroad.

The bill will be presented to the Georgia Legislature, now in session. Already a bill has been introduced into the House requiring an educational test for negro firemen.

New Gas and Electric Railway Co.

TRENTON, June 29.—The Union Railroad, Gas and Electric Company was incorporated here to-day with an authorized capital of $18,000,000. The object of the company is to operate electric railroads and to build and operate electric and gas plants. The stock is divided into $6,000,000 common and $12,000,000 preferred.

Outflow of Gold Continues.

The export of gold this week will probably be increased by the shipment next Saturday of at least $1,500,000 to Argentina. This amount will be sent, it is expected, in three shipments to be made by the National City Bank, Speyer & Co., and Goldman, Sachs & Co. Foreign exchange rates were maintained at a high level yesterday, demand sterling advancing to 4.8815. Additional exports of gold to Europe are likely unless there should be a reaction before the week's close in foreign exchange rates.

$800,000 Railway Loan to Haiti.

Speyer & Co. and the National City Bank, it was learned yesterday, have taken an issue of $800,000 of ten-year collateral trust 6 per cent. bonds of the Central Railroad of Haiti. The bonds, besides being a lien on the railroad company's property, are secured by the pledge of important public revenues.

Reading Iron Co. Restores Wages.

READING, Penn., June 29.—The Reading Iron Company posted notices to-day that part of the last reduction in wages made last February would be restored beginning July 5. It is understood that puddlers will be advanced from $3.75 to $4 a ton and all others in proportion.

HOT WAVE BROKEN.

Cooler Yesterday, and To-day is to be Still More Comfortable.

The temperature was still over 80 last night, but the humidity had decreased from 75 per cent. at 8 o'clock yesterday morning to 41 per cent. at the same hour at night. And the Weather Man in announcing his forecast for to-day and to-morrow said that the heat wave, for the time being at least, is no more. To-day is to be generally fair and cooler, and Thursday fair, with light north to northeast winds.

The maximum reached yesterday was at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when the thermometer registered 88 in the shade; the minimum was 74, just after noon. The average for the day was 81, as against 78 for the corresponding day last year.

The only fatalities yesterday which can be directly ascribed to the heat were the deaths of Mrs. Julia Gartland, an elderly woman, living at 167 West 100th Street, and Mary Carney, 5 years old, who died at her home, 2,082 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn. For years Mrs. Gartland has earned a livelihood by selling religious articles on the west side. While visiting a building at Seventy-third Street and Columbus Avenue yesterday about noon, she collapsed in the hallway, and died before medical aid reached her. Dr. Collender of the J. Hood Wright Hospital said heat was the cause of death.

Charles Anderson of 66 East 133d Street was so affected by the humidity that he stopped every person he met, at 120th Street and Lenox Avenue, and proceeded to fan them vigorously. Policeman Meyer was so overcome by the man's unselfishness that he sent him to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue for observation.

The prostrations reported were notably fewer than on any other day during the heat wave.

The Senate referred the budget to the Finance Committee, and it is expected that it will be favorably reported in time for its adoption and the President's signature before the adjournment of the present session of Congress to-morrow.

THE ABUSE OF ADVERTISING.

The special commission appointed by Governor Hughes to investigate Wall Street included in its report several weeks ago the following:

> A large part of the discredit in the public mind attaching to "Wall Street" is due to frauds perpetrated on the small investor throughout the country in the sale of worthless securities by means of alluring circulars and advertisements in the newspapers. To the success of such swindling enterprises a portion of the press contributes.
> Papers which honestly try to distinguish between swindling advertisements and others may not in every instance succeed in doing so; but readiness to accept advertisements which are obviously traps for the unwary is evidence of a moral delinquency which should draw out the severest public condemnation.

The New York Times aims to exclude from its columns all fraudulent advertisements, but is not always able to distinguish between swindling advertisements and those representing legitimate propositions. However, The New York Times is doing its best to eliminate decoy advertisements, and welcomes information from its readers.

Opportunity.

Don't, like Micawber, trust to "something to turn up." Go ahead and turn up something.

Opportunities turn up each day in The New York Times's Want columns. It remains for you to turn them into practical value.

If you're a boy or a man and out of a job, watch the "Help Wanted Male" column. If you're a girl or a woman and desire employment, read the "Help Wanted Female" announcements.

Or, better still, go after that opportunity hot-foot by inserting a little Want advertisement setting forth your own qualifications—your experience, your training, your natural ability—for the position you want.

You'll "turn up something"—that's certain—if you PUT IT IN THE TIMES.

SISTER FIGHTS WILL OF OLD ACTOR PAUL

He Left Two, One Disposing of English Estate, the Other of Fund in Bank Here.

HAD LIVED LONG ABROAD

Made His Debut in England in 1854 and Played Two Engagements Here at Irving Place Theatre.

A contest over the American estate of Howard Paul, the old-time actor and dramatist, who in private life was Henry Howard Paul, and who died at Bournemouth, England, Dec. 9, 1905, was disclosed yesterday when an application was made to Supreme Court Justice Blanchard for the appointment of a commission to take the testimony of two London lawyers, Charles Church and James Rolt, in connection with the action. Decision was reserved.

The suit is brought by Mrs. Isabella M. Manley of Brooklyn, sister of the actor, against Harrison Grey Fiske and Henry Tyrell, as executors of Mr. Paul's American will; Albert A. Gilmer and Francis B. Newton, both of London, as executors of Mr. Paul's English will; Maria Louisa Overman of Philadelphia, a sister; Louis B. Gore, a nephew, and the Attorney General of this State.

The complaint sets forth that Paul was an American citizen. At his death he left a large amount in stocks, bonds, and cash in the London and Westminster Bank, which comprised his English estate. He also left $36,514 on deposit with the Union Trust Company in this city, comprising his American estate.

Paul also left two wills—one disposing of his English property; the other dealing with his estate in this country. The English will is dated Feb. 18, 1901, and has a codicil of Oct. 20, 1905. The American will bears date Oct. 30, 1905, and it is this that is sought to be declared void as to the clause dealing with the residuary estate, on the ground that it is too indefinite and uncertain to be carried into effect, and is illegal both here and in England. The litigated clause reads:

> The sum remaining I devise to my executors to devote the surplus amount to such American charities as they think well of, and I would like these sums given to any charities that assist poor needlewomen (seamstresses) whose toil is so poorly requited. If no such organization exists the money is to be divided for the benefit of incapacitated sailors and their families.

It is contended that this bequest is not competent, and that, therefore, Paul be deemed to have died intestate as to the residue of his American estate. Mrs. Manley asks that the money be divided between herself, Maria Louisa Overman, and Louis B. Gore. It is alleged also that the American will was not executed on the day it purports to have been, but several days prior, probably on Oct. 20, 1905, the date of the codicil to the English will was executed. Another allegation is that one of the witnesses to the will, Gertrude L. Christy, is a beneficiary under the English will, which is contrary to the statutes.

Under his English will, Mr. Paul left to Mrs. Christy, whom he describes as "my friend and amanuensis," £500 and certain jewelry. Then follows this clause:

> I give to my natural son, (his mother is Letty Lind, the actress, of 4 Stanhope Street, Hyde Park Gardens, London,) Horace Howard, or whatever name he chooses to go by, £2,500 in bonds of the London & North Western Railroad, and one bond of the Argentine Republic, valued at £850.

The only bequests to relatives under both wills are those contained in the American instrument, and are $500 each to Mrs. Overman and Mrs. Manley, his sisters, and a like sum to Miss Helen Manley, a niece. The executors get $500 apiece also.

The application for a commission yesterday was made by J. M. Beck, counsel for the English executors. J. Hampden Dougherty, for Mrs. Manley, asked that an open commission be appointed, but this was opposed by Mr. Beck.

Howard Paul was born in Philadelphia, and belonged to the well-known family of that name there. He went to London in the late forties, where he made his début as a comic writer in 1852 on the weekly paper Diogenes, which at that time was a rival to Punch. He produced, in conjunction with John Leech, who furnished the engravings, a serial work, "Dashes of American Humor," which won him considerable notice. He followed this with various pieces of a light character, which were produced, and then came his drama, "Thrice Married."

Paul made his début as an actor at Bath, England, in 1854, in a play written by himself, "My Neighbor Opposite." He was an actor and mimic of considerable ability. With his wife he made two visits to America, one in 1866 and again three years later, under the management of Harry Palmer, appearing at the Irving Place Theatre.

Mrs. Paul was formerly Miss Featherstone of London. She was an actress of considerable reputation, with a pure contralto voice. Her first American appearance was at Wallack's Theatre on Sept. 10, 1855.

Letty Lind was one of the most popular English actresses of her time. She was a member of the famous old Gaiety Burlesque Company, appearing with such performers as Fred Leslie, Nellie Farren, and Arthur Roberts.

E. E. BLACK'S WIDOW GETS ALL

Will of the Late Banker Filed for Probate—Left Large Estate.

The will of Elmer Ellsworth Black, for many years a partner in the Stock Exchange firm of N. W. Harris & Co., 56 William Street, who died in Roosevelt Hospital on May 30 last, leaving a large estate, was filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogates' office.

Mr. Black left everything to his widow, Mrs. Ida Madeline Black. He provided, however, that had she died before him the whole estate was to go to his daughter, Dorothy Powell Black. The value of the estate is given as "over $10,000."

Mr. Black died while the employes of his firm were at a reunion dinner at the Plaza. The dinner waited while Mr. Harris offered a prayer for his sick partner's recovery. The will provided that in case the testator's wife and daughter should die with him in an accident his mother should receive his estate.

Thomas C. Dunham's Will.

The will of Thomas C. Dunham, paint manufacturer at 68 Murray Street and 53 West Fifty-fifth Street, leaves to his brother, Clarkson Dunham, and sisters, Isabel Dorsey and Rebecca Meredith, all of Perth Amboy, $1,000 each. The widow, Adeline M. Dunham, receives two-sixths of the residue in trust, which at her death is to go to Thomas C. Dunham, Jr. The remaining four-sixths go to another son, William H. Dunham, and a daughter, Isabelle Dunham. Mrs. Dunham has the use for life of the house at 53 West Fifty-fifth Street.

$25,000 TO NEEDY WOMEN.

Caleb J. Camp's Will Provides for Winsted's Widows and Spinsters.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., June 29.—Although his will will not be admitted to probate until the latter part of the week, it became known to-day that Caleb J. Camp, former President of the Connecticut Western Railroad, now the Central New England Railway, and the property of the New York and New Haven Company, left to Trustees $25,000 for poor Winsted widows and unmarried women who have been in better circumstances, but are now too proud to ask for assistance. The income of the fund will not become available until the fund has $50,000. The Trustees will determine to whom assistance will be given.

The document, containing twenty pages, written in ink, was drawn in 1898. Mr. Camp died on June 19, in his ninety-fifth year. He was wealthy and is supposed to have made a number of other public bequests.

HENRY ESTATE TO HOSPITALS

But Not Until Widow and His Sisters Die—Worth $1,500,000.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—The entire estate, amounting to about $1,500,000 of Harry S. Henry, retired manufacturer, horseman, and art collector, who died recently, under his will, which was admitted to probate to-day, will revert, upon the death of the widow and two of his sisters, to five local hospitals for the establishment of beds for the treatment of white children.

Mr. Henry surprised the art world last April by purchasing for $50,000 one of Millet's masterpieces "Going to Work—Dawn of Morning." Mr. Henry in the will directs that all of his paintings be disposed of in New York as soon as may be advisable.

ALDEN FREEMAN AGAIN.

Pamphlet Attacking the Police Puts Free-Speech Queries to the Mayor.

Copies of Alden Freeman's free-speech pamphlet, which he says he will sell to-night at Cooper Union at the "monster mass meeting to protest against the police suppression of free speech," appeared in East Orange yesterday.

The pamphlet, consisting of twenty-eight pages, contains pictures of the carriage house in which Emma Goldman lectured on June 8, after having been barred from English's Hall by the police.

These self-same police are pictured as a frontispiece, lined up in front of the City Hall, with Chief Bell of East Orange in the centre. Mr. Freeman said yesterday that he was going to sell the pamphlet at the meeting to-night to see how much money he could make for the "cause."

The first cover page of the pamphlet is adorned with black lines set between three panels, and quotes from the Constitutions of New York State, the United States, and New Jersey, all making the suppression of free speech unlawful. The pamphlet says the descendants of the early Pilgrims who felt the heavy hand of the police at these meetings will not give up the fight for free speech, and adds:

> It has been suggested that these police tactics are being employed by the Democratic Tammany machine in New York and by the Republican Tammany machine in New Jersey merely by way of warning to independent citizens that they had better vote to keep their present masters in office if they wish to escape contact with the policeman's billy on election day.

Concluding with a word to Mayor McClellan, Mr. Freeman says:

> Mr. Mayor, the citizens thrown out of Lexington Hall by the police on May 23, 1909, wish to know what YOU are going to do about this matter. WE are not going to be satisfied with Boss Tweed's famous answer when he tossed the question back to the inquirer: WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

Mr. Freeman's pamphlet also attacks East Orange government as being controlled by the Lackawanna Railway, by the "Methodist party," and the "Prudential-Fidelity Trust-Public Service combine, protected by the "Presbyterian Party."

FORT LEE TROLLEY CRASH.

Several Persons Seriously Hurt—Motorman Charged with Ignoring Signal.

Two crowded open cars of the Hudson River Trolley line, going at high speed in Palisade Avenue, met in a head-on collision shortly after 6 o'clock last night near the amusement park in Fort Lee, throwing the passengers in both cars out of their seats and injuring several seriously. The cars were badly shattered in front and the power temporarily suspended, causing a block in traffic of three hours.

The cars met with terrific impact, crushing the steel fenders and shattering woodwork and glass. In addition to the more serious injuries sustained in the collision, a number of persons were bruised in the rush that followed. John Kay of 1,721 Bathgate Avenue, the Bronx, motorman of the west-bound car, who stood at his post in an effort to stop his car, was crushed between the front seat and the controller. He was attended by Dr. Frederick J. Quigley, who said that his injuries were concussion of the brain, internal injuries, and a possible fracture of the ankle.

An Italian workman on the road, who is known only as "Jimmy," was thrown forward out of the second seat with such force that three of his ribs were fractured. Frank Gerth, proprietor of the Belvidere Inn, at Fort Lee, suffered a fracture of the left arm and injuries about the body.

Mrs. A. Hartman of 163 Himrod Avenue, Brooklyn, was thrown against one of the uprights, injuring her back, and Mrs. B. A. Johnson of Fort Lee suffered bruises and shock. These women and several others fainted from pain and fright. They were attended in a special car, which was run down to the scene for the purpose.

According to several persons who saw the accident and an Inspector who came up immediately afterward, the blame lay largely with William Fuchs, motorman of the westbound car, who either neglected or did not observe the signal flashed by the eastbound crew. The line at this point is single tracked, and the custom is for the crew of the eastbound car to adjust a switch, which flashes a red light about half a mile along the track as a signal for the car coming west to side track. According to witnesses this was done properly by Joseph Jones, conductor on Kay's car, but Fuchs went right on. Fuchs saved himself by jumping.

Immediately after the accident Recorder H. Burton Opitz ordered the arrest of both motormen and conductors, but afterward released them on parole. Kay was taken to the Englewood Hospital. It was said he will recover.

WOMAN FERRYBOAT SUICIDE.

Leaves a Waist, Apron, and Hat in a Paper Package—Unidentified.

A woman about 40 years old committed suicide by jumping from the ferryboat Newark of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's line on the 9:40 o'clock trip from Cortlandt Street yesterday morning. She had attracted the notice of John Anderson of 131 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, and a Miss Monahan of 514 Tenth Avenue, Manhattan, in the woman's cabin. Both said afterward that the woman appeared to be trembling from suppressed excitement, and that she got up from her seat and glanced out of the open window and then sat down again. When the boat was about in midstream she sprang up, and, before any one could stop her, climbed through the window and dropped into the river.

Anderson hurried from the cabin and shouted to James Gilmore that a woman had jumped overboard. Gilmore notified the pilot. The boat was stopped and then it circled slowly about the spot where the woman had disappeared. This was kept up for about fifteen minutes, but she did not come to the surface.

In the cabin was found a brown paper package which the suicide had left there. In it were a black and white gingham apron, a dark waist, a white underwaist, and a black lace hat. Nothing was found that would give a clue to the woman's identity. The package was taken to the Jersey City Police Headquarters.

Heins & La Farge, architects of the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine, have filed plans with Building Superintendent Murphy for the Cathedral Training School and Home for Deaconesses, to be built just west of the cathedral on the Parkway east of Amsterdam Avenue. The drawings provide for a handsome edifice in the Gothic style, harmonizing with the imposing design of the cathedral edifice. It will cost $150,000.

COLER SAYS METZ LIED ABOUT HIM

Denies Controller's Statement That He Got Extra Appropriations for Brooklyn Borough.

QUIZZED ABOUT HIS AIDS

Ex-Manager of the Kickapoo Indian Medicine Show Is Superintendent of Public Buildings.

The investigation of the office of Borough President Coler of Brooklyn began before the Commissioners of Accounts yesterday, Mr. Coler being the sole witness of the day. He called Controller Metz a liar only once, and although his lapses of memory were frequent, they had to do only with minor matters. After asking Mr. Coler to set forth the general duties of his office, which the Borough President did in a few words, Commissioner Mitchel turned to his subordinates. In this connection it developed that Mr. Lawrence, Superintendent of Public Buildings and Offices in Brooklyn, was formerly manager of the Kickapoo Indian Medicine shows.

Mr. Coler said in reply to questions that he had investigated the cost of cleaning public buildings and that the expense in his borough is less than that in any other borough in the city. It was in this connection that the witness paid his respects to the Controller.

"You had an extra appropriation for cleaning in 1908, didn't you?" he was asked.

"No, I didn't," replied Mr. Coler quietly. "The Controller lied to me, that was all. The Board of Estimate wanted to cut my budget appropriation down to a certain figure and when I objected he told me in open meeting that I could go to the Board of Aldermen and get special revenue bonds for this purpose. Then every time I put the thing through it was put down as an extra appropriation, and it was made to look as if I was overdrawing my budget."

The automobiles in use in Mr. Coler's department were referred to. He declared he believed there were ten of them, and that while their original cost had been low, the cost of maintenance was high.

Mr. Coler said that he required the chauffeurs to submit written reports concerning the use of the machines to prevent their unnecessary use, but that the best way to take care of this matter would be to have all city automobiles painted a distinctive color.

Mr. Coler was asked to define the exact duties of his Superintendent of Sewers. He replied that they were technical and out of his personal observation. On being pressed he finally said:

"I might just as well be frank with you, Mr. Mitchel, and I intend to be all along. It is necessary to have men in these positions who are friendly to the administration."

One James Dunne, who has been prominent in Brooklyn politics for a long time, is the present incumbent of the office.

The investigation will be continued today with Mr. Coler again on the stand.

SAYS POLICE HOUND HIM.

M. J. Ryan Interests Judge Rosalsky, Who Orders Investigation.

Judge Rosalsky ordered a thorough investigation into the case of Michael J. Ryan of 101 Eighth Street, Brooklyn, who when arraigned yesterday in General Sessions to plead to a charge of grand larceny in the second degree, told the court that he was a victim of police hounding as a result of the testimony given by him which convicted Policeman Dawkins of a burglary charge in Brooklyn.

"Judge," said the prisoner, "I am as innocent of this charge as you are, but I've got to take my dose, I guess."

Ryan was indicted for grand larceny in the first degree on the complaint of William Bugler of 549 Lenox Avenue, who caused his arrest June 6 on a Chambers Street car on a charge of stealing his pocketbook. Policeman Judge made the arrest.

When Ryan was asked by Judge Rosalsky what he meant by saying that he was innocent and yet pleading guilty, his lawyer, speaking for him, told of Ryan's arrest in March, 1908, for burglary in Brooklyn. He had, he said, arranged with Policeman Dawkins to work on his beat and to share the spoils. When Ryan was arrested he turned State's evidence, giving testimony which resulted in Dawkins being sent to Sing Sing for a long term. He himself got off with a light sentence.

Judge Rosalsky then called the complainant, who showed him this letter, received on June 9:

> You know very well that this fellow whom you accuse of stealing your pocketbook is innocent. You are trying to convict this poor fellow simply because he gave evidence against Policeman Dawkins, but remember, my friend, as true as there is a God in heaven, if this boy is sent away by you you and Policeman Judge will be shot down like dogs. I have been in court when you were there, and when you left we took a snapshot. I am sending this letter without a stamp so you should get it personally. This is not a Black Hand letter. I am a true-born American. JOE WHITE.

Judge Rosalsky was so interested in the case that he remanded Ryan until investigation could be made.

The police produced a record, said to be Ryan's, showing that he served two terms in a Chicago prison, and has been arrested several times here.

NEW TAXICAB LAW SIGNED.

Ordinance Reduces the Rates of Fare—Goes in Effect in 90 Days.

Mayor McClellan signed yesterday the ordinance recently passed by the Aldermen providing for the regulation of taxicab fares and the inspection of taximeters by the city. The ordinance will go into effect in ninety days, during which time the necessary additions to the inspection force of the Bureau of Licenses will be made.

The ordinance provides for a substantial increase in the license fees of taxicabs and for the establishment of a legal rate of 40 cents for the first half mile and a rate of 10 cents for each quarter mile thereafter as at present. For cabs seating two people only, the initial charge is 30 cents.

The taxicab people have fought the legislation strenuously, contending that the cut of 10 cents is sufficient to drive them out of business, changing their nominal profit at the present time to a loss. They also asked to have inserted in the ordinance a provision allowing them to charge a return fare on long rides.

May Widen Thirty-second Street.

A public hearing will be held in the Controller's office to-morrow afternoon on the proposal to widen Thirty-second Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, for a more suitable approach to the entrance to the New Pennsylvania Station. A plan, which has the approval of the Controller and several members of the special committee of the Board of Estimate, which is considering the proposal, has been submitted by Joseph Caccavejo, the engineer, which involves the cutting off of the sidewalks, running the street flush to the building line, and arcading the abutting buildings.

THE ANDREW J. McCOSH SAILS.

Auxiliary Yawl, Manned by Princeton Men, to Aid Grenfell's Labrador Work.

The auxiliary yawl Andrew J. McCosh, a memorial by Princeton men to the late Dr. Andrew J. McCosh, was brought yesterday from City Island, where she has been under repair, to Larchmont, in perfect trim for her long voyage to the Labrador Coast. She will make that voyage, starting after the Harvard-Yale boat race to-morrow night or Friday morning, under a crew of Princeton graduates, mainly recruited from the class just graduated.

Dr. McCosh of this city, always a loyal alumnus of Princeton, and son of Dr. James McCosh, once President of Princeton, was a great admirer of Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, whose medical work along the barren Labrador Coast has so often excited the admiration of young college men. So, when the question of a memorial to him came up, Princetonians, graduates and undergraduates, took the presentation of a yawl named for him, designed to further the work of Dr. Grenfell, as the most appropriate memorial that could be hit upon. Princeton men of all ages subscribed.

The yawl was bought from W. H. Parson. They changed the name from Idelon to Andrew J. McCosh, and had her so thoroughly overhauled as to make her practically new.

The McCosh set sail for New London yesterday with a Gloucester skipper, and among her crew these Princeton men: S. S. Feagles, 1900; E. F. Butler, '06, and H. C. Gilmour, H. P. Townsend, P. J. Tomlinson, and A. L. Causse, all of 1909.

They will sail the yawl up the coast from New London, across the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Nova Scotia, and then to Battle Harbor, Dr. Grenfell's headquarters. Then, after the presentation, they will return by steamer.

MUSIC TEACHERS' CONVENTION

Record Attendance at Opening Session—The Daily Programme.

With several hundred members present, a larger attendance than at any of the previous conventions, the twenty-first annual convention of the New York State Music Teachers' Association, opened yesterday morning in the great hall of City College. The convention will continue till Thursday night. The mornings will be given up to business and lectures on various phases of music, the evenings to recitals.

The convention was opened yesterday with a speech of welcome to the visiting music teachers from other parts of the State by Prof. Samuel A. Baldwin of the City College. In the afternoon at 2 o'clock, Prof. Baldwin gave an organ recital, rendering selections from Bach, Reger, Rousseau, and others. At 4 P. M. a recital was given by Mrs. Edith C. Good and Hans Kronold. In the evening various selections were given in a concert that included a chorus of 350 voices, boys and girls, from Public School 168.

To-day's proceedings begin at 9:30 with a business meeting. The lectures begin at 10. To-day, at 11, after the other lectures, David Bispham will speak on "The English Language in Song and Speech," illustrated by songs, and a recital of Poe's "Raven."

The music to-day begins with a recital at 2 P. M., with a second one at 4 P. M. The evening recital opens at 8:15. The exercises of the final day begin at 11 in the morning, the recitals at 2:15 P. M. and 8:15 P. M., all in Townsend Harris Hall.

WANTS TO LEAVE THE ISLAND.

"Typhoid Mary" Declares the Health Board Is Holding Her Illegally.

Mary Mallon, known as "Typhoid Mary," because the health authorities believed that she had become a menace to every person with whom she came in contact, for the reason that, although immune from typhoid, she possessed the power of communicating the fever to others, was before Supreme Court Justice Giegerich yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus sued out by her attorney, George Francis O'Neill, to obtain her release from North Brother Island, where she has been for two years.

Miss Mallon, who was once a cook in the family of J. Coleman Drayton of 56 East Seventy-ninth Street, flatly denied, through her lawyer, that she had the power of communicating typhoid, but admitted that while in Mr. Drayton's employ the butler and two maids fell ill with the fever. She alleged, however, that it was owing to the bad water in the house and not to any special faculty of hers that those servants caught typhoid.

"Why," she said, "I was cook for Mr. Stebbins's family and other families, too, and nobody fell sick while I was there."

While on North Brother Island, she said, she was treated like a leper and was compelled to occupy a house by herself, her only companion being a dog. Food, she stated, was brought to her three times a day by a nurse, who left it at the door and then made a hurried departure.

The case will be taken up again to-day. After the hearing Miss Mallon was taken back to the island.

LESSEE MUST PAY FOR INJURY.

Appellate Term Ruling on a Test Suit Involving Moving-Picture Shows.

Supreme Court Justice Gildersleeve, sitting in the Appellate Term, yesterday reversed the decision of Municipal Court Justice Wells dismissing the complaint in an action brought by Nathan Weiner against Stephen J. Scherer, proprietor of a moving picture show at 125 Rivington Street, claiming damages for personal injuries received through the collapse of a balcony on Dec. 12 last, which resulted in the death of several of the audience and injuries to about forty more.

Justice Wells dismissed the suit on the ground that no cause of action lay against the proprietor for the accident. Weiner, through his attorney, Abraham Oberstein, appealed. In reversing this judgment Justice Gildersleeve, in a long opinion, which is concurred in by Justices Seabury and MacLean, says that the law is well settled in this State that where a party in possession of premises throws the same open to the public for gain, he impliedly warrants the premises to be reasonably safe and for the purpose for which they were designed, and where, as in this case, the plaintiff is injured by the fall of a structure which he is using at the invitation of the person injured, the burden of explaining the cause of the accident and showing freedom from negligence is upon the defendant.

GRAND JURY CALLS ON POLICE.

Looks Into the Rogues' Gallery, Moved, Perhaps, by the Duffy Case.

The Kings County Grand Jury surprised Brooklyn Police Headquarters yesterday by an unexpected visit. It was explained that the jury was inspecting the various public buildings, but it was regarded as significant that the jurors asked particularly to see the system of photographing and measuring prisoners for the police records.

Because of the controversy between Justice Gaynor and Commissioner Bingham over the "mugging" of young George Duffy, it was thought that the Grand Jury had decided to investigate the system.

In the absence of Capt. Kuhne, who is spending a vacation in Raymond Street Jail for "mugging" a banker in defiance of a court order, Lieut. John Coughlin showed the Rogues' Gallery to the jurors.

The Grand Jury spent about an hour at Headquarters.

WAY ALL CLEAR FOR SUBWAY ACTION

BIG ISSUE IN CAMPAIGN

Tammany Thinks a Programme of Going Ahead with Subways Means Votes Next Fall.

The special Subway Committee of the Board of Estimate, at a meeting held in the Controller's office yesterday afternoon, decided to co-operate with the Public Service Commission in acting as speedily as possible on the proposed new subways, and voted unanimously to report to the board at the next meeting in favor of granting the request of the commission for permission to advertise for bids on all subway plans drawn to date.

The members of the committee present were Controller Metz, President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen, Chief Engineer Lewis of the board, and Borough Presidents Ahearn and Coler. Borough President Haffen was absent. The whole board, it is believed, will approve the action of the commission. It is believed by politicians that the rapid transit question will be the principal issue in the coming campaign, and it is known that it is fully realized in Tamamny Hall that definite subway progress must be assured to win votes.

This action by the board will give the Public Service Commission free rein to go ahead and advertise for definite proposals on all the subway plans drawn by the old Rapid Transit Commission and such additions as it has made since it came into office. It allows the immediate presentation and consideration of the Bradley-Gaffney-Steers proposal to build a subway from the Bronx to Coney Island, and such other offers as any syndicate or individual is prepared to make.

The special committee also gave its approval yesterday to the six-tracking of the Centre Street loop lines. This route, which is destined to cross the Williamsburg and Manhattan Bridges, is already in course of construction, but the commission declared some time ago that the present four-track line would not be adequate to handle the traffic.

SUIT HOLDS UP MRS. GOULD.

She Can't Go to Virginia Pending Decision in Paris Jeweler's Action.

The Howard Goulds made another appearance in the Supreme Court yesterday when counsel for Mr. Gould asked Justice Blanchard to vacate an order obtained from Justice Giegerich the day before by counsel for Cartier's, the Parisian jewelers, for the examination before trial of Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould in the action brough by Cartier's to recover $20,875 from Mr. Gould for jewelry and repairs to jewelry belonging to Mrs. Gould. Decision was reserved.

This is one of a number of actions brought by various trades people against Mr. Gould for bills incurred by his wife. These accounts were freely referred to in the recent separation proceedings. The order for the examination was got on the story that Mrs. Gould was about to depart for her Virginia farm, and that her return here is indefinite. The case cannot come up for trial before next October, and it will probably be several months later before it is actually heard.

John S. Wise, Jr., counsel for Cartier's, said that Mrs. Gould was waiting with all her effects packed up, ready to depart for Virginia, but could not do so until this application was decided.

"The general public may know more about these Gould cases than I do," said Justice Blanchard, "I do not follow them, but it seems to me that there is ample time to examine Mrs. Gould before the Fall. Her deposition can be taken within the next three months."

Cornelius J. Sullivan, counsel for Mr. Gould, said Mrs. Gould would have to be here in October to attend the suit brought by Mme. Osborn, the dressmaker. He told the court that the jewelry is at present held by Cartier's as security for the bill.

"Why doesn't the plaintiff sell it, then?" asked the court.

"That is what we want him to do," replied Mr. Sullivan, "and if there is any shortage, Mr. Gould stands ready to pay the difference."

Eventually the court took the papers. Until the motion is decided Mrs. Gould will have to wait in town. Mr. Sullivan alleged that she is really back of the action against her husband.

BOY DEPORTED BY FORCE.

Syrian Fought Immigration Men and Was Carried Aboard Vessel.

Mahomet Heffein, an eighteen-year-old Syrian, who was ordered deported by the immigration authorities a few days ago on the ground that he might become a public charge, was suddenly taken yesterday with the notion that he was being unjustly driven from this country as a deportation officer was leaving the Ellis Island boat with him, and became so obstreperous in the detention room of the Barge Office that four men were required to restrain him.

When it came time to start in a cab for the steamer Verona of La Vloce Line, West Thirty-fourth Street pier, he tried to break away, and screamed for help. He was overcome and taken to the vessel.
